RANKING OFFICERS STATE MEN TO BE HARD TO BEAT

Troops Are Now Working Into Position For Battle Practice

WITH THE THIRD ARMY IN LOUISIANA, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Western Louisiana's plains and rolling woodlands echoed tonight to discordant martial sounds as two of Uncle Sam's army corps, cheered by praise from their generals, advanced upon each other with the deadliest weapons of modern war.

They were working into position for a practice battle, preliminary to the greatest American peacetime maneuvers which will occupy nearly half a million men of the second and third armies next month.

The soldiers will fire only blanks, of course, and their problems will involve tests of supply and communications, without determining what troops can "beat" the other. But they had the word of their ranking officers that they would all be tough to lick in any real fight.

"The finest bunch of men I've seen in the service" is the way hard-boiled Lieutenant-General Walter Krueger has described the third army, which he commands.

Major-General Robert S. Beightler has pronounced his 37th (Ohio) division "ready to go," and Major-General Irving A. Fish has lauded the morale of his 32nd division, men from Wisconsin and Michigan.

Down from Mansfield, La., where Confederates under General Dick Taylor routed a Union army three times their number 77 years ago, Major-General George V. Strong tonight was moving his eighth corps which comprises the second, 36th and 45th divisions.

The eighth will engage the fifth corps, commanded by Major-General E. L. Daley and including the 32nd, 34th, 37th and 38th divisions, all trained in Louisiana and Mississippi and based at Camp Polk.

The fourth corps, the fourth, 31st and 43rd divisions, will train separately north of Alexandria, La. Those

Two Squadrons To Be Based At Selman Field Durng Maneuvers

Two bombing squadrons, comprising 34 planes and approximately 500 officers and men, will be based at Monroe's Selman field during the maneuvers, local army officials announced yesterday.

The 90th bombardment squadron of Savannah, Ga., with 13 planes, and a marine squadron from Quantico, Va., composed of 21 navy dive bombers, will arrive here sometime between August 26 and 30, where they will be stationed at the northeast corner of Selman field until early in October.

Tomorrow, an observation squadron composed of 60 men and 13 planes is scheduled to arrive at the local airport where it will be based until the two other squadrons arrive.

Last week, showers and toilet facilities were installed at the field under the direction of First Lieutenant Charles T. Holden, air corps engineering officer who was sent here from the Baton Rouge air base to supervise the laying out of the camp site and tent areas at the airport's northeast corner. Lieutenant Holden returned to Baton Rouge yesterday.

The two bombing squadrons and the observation squadron will operate in conjunction with the second army.

The temporary air base will be equipped with telephone ad teletype facilities, Lieutenant Holden said.

MER ROUGE PLANTER CRITICALLY INJURED

DERMOTT, Ark., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Will R. Norsworthy, 53, Mer Rouge, La., planter, was critically injured and his wife slightly hurt in an automobile-truck collision at Boydell, 12 miles south of here last night.

Nine other persons, including seven children, riding with the Norsworthys escaped injury. The others were five Norsworthy children, and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wells and their two children of Strong, Ark. The driver of the truck also escaped unhurt.

Attendants at a hospital here said Norsworthy suffered severe head injuries.

Japan Refuses To Let U. S. Vessel Pick Up Americans

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Japan, the state department disclosed today, has refused to permit the S. S. President Coolidge to call at a Japanese port and pick up more than 100 Americans desiring to leave that country.

A state department announcement explained that the Tokyo government offered to allow the President Coolidge to pick up 20 American officials there but declined to grant permission for non-official Americans to sail.

Officials said the Japanese government had not refused to permit the Americans to leave the country and that they would leave when other means of transportation were found. Officials were considering ways and means of providing transportation. One suggestion was that the Americans go to Shanghai and board American vessels there.

No Japanese ships are sailing for American ports since they fear seizure under the "freezing" orders now in effect. Presumably, it was in retaliation for this that the Japanese refused to permit the President Coolidge to make a call for passengers at a Japanese port.

MANY PROBLEMS AWAIT PRESIDENT

First Will Be Acute Question Of Delivering Defense Supplies

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's return to the capital tomorrow will find a variety of problems great and small awaiting his attention and disposition.

First of all, of course, will be the ever acute question of accelerating the delivery of defense supplies to Great Britain, the armed forces of the United States, and also to Russia.

This is an ever-continuing problem made now the more prominent by the president's conference at sea with Winston Churchill and the presence in Washington of Lord Beaverbrook, the British minister of supply.

For some time, criticisms of the defense setup, as lumbersome, less efficient than need be, and hampered by overlapping duties and powers, have been numerous. And the critics have not been confined to the group which opposes the president's policies.

There have been reports, some of them seemingly well-founded, that a shake-up of the defense organization is imminent, one report had it that Mr. Roosevelt had appointed Judge Samuel N. Rosenman, of New York, to look into the situation and make recommendations. However, a high official said Judge Rosenman was confining his studies to the overlapping of functions of the office of price administration and office of production management.

Whether or not major changes are made, however, the situation presented is one that calls for White House decisions of a major nature.

In addition, Washington would not be surprised if the president were bringing as many problems back to

BOOTH'S CONDITION IS 'MOST CRITICAL'

The condition of John Wilkes Booth, III, 21, of Fairbanks, who is in Highland sanitarium at Shreveport as a result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Mansfield last Tuesday night, was described as "most critical" yesterday by friends of his in Monroe who recently returned from Shreveport.

Booth sustained a fractured skull, a broken leg and other injuries in a collision between the auto he was driving and an army truck. Friends said that he had still not regained consciousness Friday.

Four soldiers, occupants of the truck, suffered cuts and bruises in the mishap. Booth, who had been admitted to the air corps and was awaiting induction, had taken a group of soldier friends from Mansfield to the bivouac area near Grand Cane and was returning to Mansfield when the crash occurred.

Booth is well known in Monroe. He attended Northeast Junior college last year.

POLLING LEGISLATURE BY MAIL ON BORROWING FUND

Number Of Defeated Politicians Among Those Opposing Executive

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 16.—(AP)—A maze of litigation, including ten suits of major significance, envelops the program Governor Sam Jones perfected last year when he came to power as a reform governor.

His scheme for streamlining state government and increasing the safeguards against excessive spending largely has been voided by a decision of the state supreme court in the only suit passed on by that tribunal, now in summer recess.

Other actions, affecting the fiscal operations of the welfare and other major departments, the promised completion of the Louisiana scandals investigations, election reform in New Orleans, the financing of the state highway program and other principal government concerns, are at various stages on the dockets of district and appellate courts.

The several instances of court restraint against fund expenditures designed to carry out reforms and various other functions were sought to be counteracted this week by the board of liquidation of the state debt which requested authority for Governor Jones to borrow $1,190,000 to replace funds shut off by injunctions and provide $500,000 additional for New Orleans Charity hospital. The governor is due to poll the legislature on the proposition next week.

Attorneys in the group of suits attacking various phases of the administration measures, which Governor Jones has repeatedly classified as a concerted attempt to "sabotage" his reform efforts, include a former gub-

Man Killed In Ferry Accident Husband Of Former Local Woman

Captain Philip F. Lee, Jr., of Frederick, Md., one of the 12 American fliers enlisted in the transatlantic bomber ferry service, conveying bombers from Canada to England, who was killed in England last Thursday, was the husband of the former Miss Nell Cole, daughter of the late Dr. Herbert Cole of Monroe.

When the news of the tragedy was published in the New-Star, Friday afternoon, the name of Captain Lee was not at once identified here, but it remained for J. S. Washburn, vice-president of the Central Savings Bank and Trust company, to make indentification, he being in close touch with the family.

Mr. Washburn stated that Miss Cole was married to Mr. Lee, who is a direct descendant of the famed General Fitzhugh Lee, in 1934. They have a daughter five years of age

Captain Lee enlisted in the work of transferring bombers from Canada to England some months ago and had just completed his third trip, being on his way back where he would have started with a fourth bomber shortly.

He had visited in Monroe several times and had attended several meetings of the Monroe Rotary club as guest of Mr. Washburn.

Mr. Lee's wife is now in New York City with her sister, Miss Mildred Cole. Their mother is spending the summer in Maine, Mr. Washburn stated.

SHAKE-UP OF ARMY OFFICERS STARTED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The army high command was reported today to have undertaken a sweeping shake-up of officers in line with its expressed intention of eliminating those who fail to measure up to the highest standards of military leadership.

Eventually, authorities said, several hundred officers, including regular army men, national guardsmen and reserves, may be retired from active duty and given an opportunity to resign.

SIX AXIS SHIPS, DESTROYER SUNK

Three Others Damaged By Aerial And U-Boat Attacks By Allies

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Six axis ships and a destroyer were sunk and three others were damaged by aerial and submarine attacks in the Mediterranean, the British and their allies reported today.

Torpedo planes which swooped down upon an Italian convoy plying from the homeland to African headquarters at Tripoli hit three of the five merchant ships and one of the protecting destroyers, an R. A. F. communique said. Later reconnaissance showed only three of the merchant ships nearing Tripoli, it was said.

Inasmuch as the stricken destroyer was seen transferring her crew, the British presumed she had gone down along with a vessel of 6,000 tons which was last seen emitting a great volume of smoke, and another of 3,000 tons which listed heavily after the torpedo blow. This attack began Thursday night and continued yesterday, the British said.

British bombers also attacked and hit two tankers of 4,000 tons and two schooners of 800 tons between Tripoli and Bengasi. One of the tankers blew up, the British said, and the other was presumed to have been lost from fire.

The admiralty of the exiled Netherlands government in London meantime announced that one of its submarines had sunk a 5,000-ton supply

Expect President To Act On Kearny Strike Not Later Than Monday

(By Associated Press)

Some officials expressed the belief last night that the government would take over the giant Kearny, N. J., yards of the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company—with $493,000,000 of defense contracts tied up for 10 days by a strike—within 48 hours.

The dispute has been in a stalemate since the company declined to accept a recommendation made by the defense mediation board that it sign a contract with the C. I. O. Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers providing for union maintenance.

Defense and navy department officials were reported to have turned the case over to President Roosevelt, and the expectation was that he would act on their recommendations not later than Monday.

The company has suggested that the navy operate the yards.

Meanwhile, the mediation board asked uninterrupted operations at five aluminum plants pending discussions of a demand by the C. I. O. Aluminum Workers union that the Alumi-

GOEBBELS SNEERS AT SEA MEETING

German Propaganda Minister Hits Hard At Disarmament Proposal

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Both the Roosevelt-Churchill eight points and plan to aid Soviet Russia drew German derision today, the first in scornful words from Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels.

He described the program of the United States president and British prime minister as "an outrage against common sense" and authoritative German sources called their promises to Joseph Stalin a "propaganda attempt to cover up the flop of their high seas meeting."

"The whole world realizes the eight points are a ridiculous outcome of so important a meeting," they said. "Hence, to keep alive world discussion, the message to Stalin was launched 36 hours later."

Goebbels added his gibes in an article released to the entire German press.

"Seldom has history seen such a stupid, unimaginative document as the two big guns of world plutocracy framed on the Potomac," he declared.

"Actually, the president left the Potomac, his presidential yacht, for the secret meetings and conferred wih Churchill on the United States cruiser Augusta and the British battleship Prince of Wales.)

"We didn't expect much from a meeting of Roosevelt and Churchill," Goebbels wrote, "but that the result would be so meager, foolish and ste-

Interpreting The War News: Hitler Unprepared For Red Resistance

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer)

In the eight weeks since Hitler hurled his mighty Nazi war machine against Russia it has ripped its way through Soviet buffer defenses from the Baltic to the Black sea and stormed into Russia itself an average depth of perhaps 100 miles on a 1,000 mile front; but it has signally failed as yet to achieve or closely to approach the quick earth-shaking victory the Nazi warlord foretold.

Russians, Germans, Rumanians and Finns by the hundred thousand, if not the million, are dead, maimed or prisoners. More millions of helpless non-combatants are dead or homeless and faced with freezing and starvation this winter.

Yet no Russian city of first magnitude strategically or economically has fallen to the invading hordes and none has been brought under Nazi fire except by air bombs. And only days away are the September rains in western Russia and behind them, in early October, the snow will fly and Russia's greatest ally, six months of winter, will enter the struggle.

Hitler was utterly unprepared when he struck at Russia June 22 for any such bitter resistance as he has met. As the ninth week of the vast battle opens, his armies seem breathless and nearing the exhaustion point in the vital center before Moscow. Only on the extreme flanks of the Baltic-Black sea front is the Nazi blitzkrieg still rolling, and neither sector offers the Germans an assurance of conclusive victory before winter sets in.

When he struck in late June, Hitler unquestionably expected within seven weeks or less to engulf Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev and sweep the Russian Black sea coast to the old 1918 German invasion line at Rostov, the gateway to Russia's great Caspian oil fields, to Iran and to India.

Instead, only the southern Ukraine and its potential resources in food and minerals seems yet within his grasp and its cost has been a great expenditure of German lives and German war reserves. Odessa is the first major Russian city to be closely invested by the Nazis. By Berlin accounting, a major Red army disaster is in the making there which will deliver the whole Ukrainian plateau east of the Dnieper into German control.

But given Russian will to fight on behind the Dnieper, even Nazi capture of the whole great bend of this river would not be a vital blow. Complete annihilation of Red army forces in the sea-backed Odessa pocket seems improbable. Routes of escape by land and sea are still open. Natural water barriers offer possibilities of bitter rear-guard stands to keep open a wide sea frontage against encirclement. They even afford the means of prolonged siege warfare if Russian army organization in the south has not broken down utterly.

It seems unquestionable that Hitler is desperately seeking to achieve in the Ukraine an appearance of victory on which to found some new peace offensive. Political and military gestures from Axis aligned non-belligerent nations such as Japan and Vichy France were synchronized too closely with the Nazi Ukrainian offensive to permit doubt that both were Berlin-dictated as diversions. Undoubtedly, too, the Roosevelt-Churchill joint declaration must be regarded as a counter move to offset in advance that expected Nazi "peace" bid.

The terms of that joint British-American statement beckon invitingly to the so-called "have-not" nations, great or small; but they also rule out peace on any terms with Hitlerism. Only its high-placed authors could say whether behind its issuance lies some ominous official knowledge in London and Washington of wavering Russian resolve, or some hopeful prospect of growing public unrest in Germany with Hitler's attempted blood-purge of half the world.

Says Every Continent Discussed At Dramatic Ocean Conference

ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL TRAIN EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—President Roosevelt intimated today that he and Winston Churchill were in complete accord upon tense developments in the Far East, as well as the Russo-German conflict, but asserted this nation was no nearer to war than when he sailed away to meet the British prime minister at sea.

The chief executive spoke aboard the yacht Potomac, with anti-aircraft guns mounted on her deck, just before he came ashore at Rockland, Me., and boarded his special train for conferences in Washington tomorrow with Secretary Hull on both the Far East and French situations.

Tanned and obviously happy at what he called the eminently successful swapping of ideas with Britain's leader, Mr. Roosevelt told more than a score of newsmen crowded into the Potomac's wardroom that there was not a single section of a single continent that went undiscussed during their dramatic meeting.

He made this statement after a reporter inquired whether his declaration that he and Mr. Churchill were in complete agreement on all aspects of the war situation would apply to the Far East as well as the Far West.

"Are we any closer to entering the war, actually?" another reporter asked earlier.

The president said he would say no.

Mr. Roosevelt also intimated that the heads of the two biggest democr-

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Senator Pepper, Democrat, Florida, urged today that the existing ban against sending selectees outside the Western Hemisphere be lifted but conceded that there was little prospect of immediate congressional action.

Pepper, a member of the foreign relations committee and advocate of more active aid to Great Britain and Russia, said in an interview that "the sooner we make an all-out effort the surer we are to stay out of a shooting war and the surer we are that we won't have to send an expeditionary force to Europe or South America.

"For example, there are islands in the Atlantic and Pacific which might be the subject of assault from Hitler and his axis associates. The army command ought to be in a position to send to those places that part of the army which is best adapted to such service."

LIBERTY, Tex., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and three others injured in an auto collision on Highway 90 just outside the city limits of Liberty today.

Mrs. A. G. Hinson of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was killed instantly and A. G. Hinson, riding in the same car, died a few minutes after being picked up at the wreck scene.

Sheriff Pat C. Lowe was making an effort to locate relatives of the two.

The other car in the wreck was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Skeels and a 10-year-old son of Port Arthur. They were taken to a hospital here. Skeels had a fractured rib and other injuries while Mrs. Skeels and the boy were bruised slightly.

Fighting General Along 2,000-Mile Front As Ninth Week Begins

FRANCE'S TROUBLES GROW HEAVIER WITH SABOTAGE

Police Warn People Railroad Attacks Are Threatening Food Supply

(By Associated Press)

The Soviet government which yesterday accepted the British-American offer of maximum material assistance in the battle against Germany reported today that fighting was still general along the whole 2,000-mile front at the start of the ninth week of the Nazi invasion.

In return for the promised help, Russia was reported to have pledged active aid in a "stop Japan" movement.

The British again were active in daylight raids on Nazi-occupied France. American-made fortress bombers flew in the attack on Brest and one was reported to have beaten off seven German fighters, returning safely although damaged and with some of its crew wounded.

The British claimed to have shot down 19 German planes and admitted losing four.

France's troubles grew heavier. In Paris the prefecture of police warned the population that sabotage on railroad lines was threatening the city's food supply and offered one million francs for information leading to arrest of the saboteurs.

The imminent possibilities of the Pacific situation were further accented when the United States department of state announced that Japan had refused to let the liner President Coolidge pick up about 100 American citizens seeking to leave Japan.

In London, where the Russian promise was reported by an authoritative source, it was said that Japan might stop short in her southward expansion and make an early push at Siberia to help herself and her German Axis partner by blocking the United States supply route to Vladivostok.

High Japanese, German and neutral quarters in Shanghai already had said Japan was preparing for a possible attack on Siberia within two or three weeks. If started later, it might be hampered by bad weather, they said.

In the German invasion of Russia, entering its ninth week today, the Red army was fighting a dogged battle of withdrawal on the southern front in the Ukraine while apparently preparing for a stand on the east bank of the Dnieper river.

Russians and Germans agreed on the fury of the fighting, but neither side gave official details. German military accounts claimed all the Ukraine west of the Bug river was virtually encircled and that dive bombers were wreaking havoc in and around Odessa.

The Germans admitted the Russians were defending themselves sternly, saying that as an example of the no-quarter type of fighting, 800 Russians out of 1,000 were killed in one small skirmish.

In the north, both the Germans and their Finnish allies claimed continuing progress. The Germans said they had about cleared up Estonia and were pressing on nearer to Leningrad, while the Finns reported capture of

SAYS OLD REGULARS ARE NOT WITH JONES

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Ulic Burke, Old Regular leader of the First ward and secretary-manager of the Choctaw club, said today the Old Regulars had declared themselves "an independent organization," and that there was "no amalgamation with the Jones forces."

"It was reported that Governor Sam H. Jones' political organization in New Orleans was due a shakeup," said Burke's prepared statement, "with present Jones leaders being replaced with some new leaders acceptable to the Old Regular organization.

"This move was calculated to strengthen the mayoralty campaign of former Representative Paul H. Maloney. In New Orleans this morning, the majority of the Old Regular caucus reports that they are still an independent organization . . . and that there is no amalgamation with the Jones forces.

"The majority of Old Regular leaders is 100 per cent behind the action of the Old Regular caucus, and they are not individually or collectively interested in the Jones political powwow being held in Baton Rouge."

Two New Orleans ward leaders of the independent Democratic organization said in Baton Rouge today after a conference with Governor Jones that they had refused to resign their organizational positions at the governor's request.

Meanwhile, James A. Noe, ally of Jones in the latter's successful fight for the governorship, was reported holding a meeting of his New Orleans ward leaders at a hotel here. Purpose of the meeting could not be learned.

Many At Varous Stages On Dockets Of District, Higher Courts

POLLING LEGISLATURE BY MAIL ON BORROWING FUND

Number Of Defeated Politicians Among Those Opposing Executive

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 16.—(AP)—A maze of litigation, including ten suits of major significance, envelops the program Governor Sam Jones perfected last year when he came to power as a reform governor.

His scheme for streamlining state government and increasing the safeguards against excessive spending largely has been voided by a decision of the state supreme court in the only suit passed on by that tribunal, now in summer recess.

Other actions, affecting the fiscal operations of the welfare and other major departments, the promised completion of the Louisiana scandals investigations, election reform in New Orleans, the financing of the state highway program and other principal government concerns, are at various stages on the dockets of district and appellate courts.

The several instances of court restraint against fund expenditures designed to carry out reforms and various other functions were sought to be counteracted this week by the board of liquidation of the state debt which requested authority for Governor Jones to borrow $1,190,000 to replace funds shut off by injunctions and provide $500,000 additional for New Orleans Charity hospital. The governor is due to poll the legislature on the proposition next week.

Attorneys in the group of suits attacking various phases of the administration measures, which Governor Jones has repeatedly classified as a concerted attempt to "sabotage" his reform efforts, include a former gub-

AIRPLANE VICTIM KNOWN IN MONROE

Man Killed In Ferry Accident Husband Of Former Local Woman

Captain Philip F. Lee, Jr., of Frederick, Md., one of the 12 American fliers enlisted in the transatlantic bomber ferry service, conveying bombers from Canada to England, who was killed in England last Thursday, was the husband of the former Miss Nell Cole, daughter of the late Dr. Herbert Cole of Monroe.

When the news of the tragedy was published in the New-Star, Friday afternoon, the name of Captain Lee was not at once identified here, but it remained for J. S. Washburn, vice-president of the Central Savings Bank and Trust company, to make indentification, he being in close touch with the family.

Mr. Washburn stated that Miss Cole was married to Mr. Lee, who is a direct descendant of the famed General Fitzhugh Lee, in 1934. They have a daughter five years of age.

Captain Lee enlisted in the work of transferring bombers from Canada to England some months ago and had just completed his third trip, being on his way back where he would have started with a fourth bomber shortly.

He had visited in Monroe several times and had attended several meetings of the Monroe Rotary club as guest of Mr. Washburn.

Mr. Lee's wife is now in New York City with her sister, Miss Mildred Cole. Their mother is spending the summer in Maine, Mr. Washburn stated.

SHAKE-UP OF ARMY OFFICERS STARTED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The army high command was reported today to have undertaken a sweeping shake-up of officers in line with its expressed intention of eliminating those who fail to measure up to the highest standards of military leadership.

Eventually, authorities said, several hundred officers, including regular army men, national guardsmen and reserves, may be retired from active duty and given an opportunity to resign.

SIX AXIS SHIPS, DESTROYER SUNK

Three Others Damaged By Aerial And U-Boat Attacks By Allies

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Six axis ships and a destroyer were sunk and three others were damaged by aerial and submarine attacks in the Mediterranean, the British and their allies reported today.

Torpedo planes which swooped down upon an Italian convoy plying from the homeland to African headquarters at Tripoli hit three of the five merchant ships and one of the protecting destroyers, an R. A. F. communique said. Later reconnaissance showed only three of the merchant ships nearing Tripoli, it was said.

Inasmuch as the stricken destroyer was seen transferring her crew, the British presumed she had gone down along with a vessel of 6,000 tons which was last seen emitting a great volume of smoke, and another of 3,000 tons which listed heavily after the torpedo blow. This attack began Thursday night and continued yesterday, the British said.

British bombers also attacked and hit two tankers of 4,000 tons and two schooners of 800 tons between Tripoli and Bengasi. One of the tankers blew up, the British said, and the other was presumed to have been lost from fire.

The admiralty of the exiled Netherlands government in London meantime announced that one of its submarines had sunk a 5,000-ton supply

Expect President To Act On Kearny Strike Not Later Than Monday

(By Associated Press)

Some officials expressed the belief last night that the government would take over the giant Kearny, N. J., yards of the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company—with $493,000,000 of defense contracts tied up for 10 days by a strike—within 48 hours.

The dispute has been in a stalemate since the company declined to accept a recommendation made by the defense mediation board that it sign a contract with the C. I. O. Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers providing for union maintenance.

Defense and navy department officials were reported to have turned the case over to President Roosevelt, and the expectation was that he would act on their recommendations not later than Monday.

The company has suggested that the navy operate the yards.

Meanwhile, the mediation board asked uninterrupted operations at five aluminum plants pending discussions of a demand by the C. I. O. Aluminum Workers union that the Alumi-

German Propaganda Minister Hits Hard At Disarmament Proposal

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Both the Roosevelt-Churchill eight points and plan to aid Soviet Russia drew German derision today, the first in scornful words from Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels.

He described the program of the United States president and British prime minister as "an outrage against common sense" and authoritative German sources called their promises to Joseph Stalin a "propaganda attempt to cover up the flop of their high seas meeting."

"The whole world realizes the eight points are a ridiculous outcome of so important a meeting," they said. "Hence, to keep alive world discussion, the message to Stalin was launched 36 hours later."

Goebbels added his gibes in an article released to the entire German press.

"Seldom has history seen such a stupid, unimaginative document as the two big guns of world plutocracy framed on the Potomac," he declared.

"Actually, the president left the Potomac, his presidential yacht, for the secret meetings and conferred wih Churchill on the United States cruiser Augusta and the British battleship Prince of Wales.)

"We didn't expect much from a meeting of Roosevelt and Churchill," Goebbels wrote, "but that the result would be so meager, foolish and ste-

Interpreting The War News: Hitler Unprepared For Red Resistance

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer)

In the eight weeks since Hitler hurled his mighty Nazi war machine against Russia it has ripped its way through Soviet buffer defenses from the Baltic to the Black sea and stormed into Russia itself an average depth of perhaps 100 miles on a 1,000 mile front; but it has signally failed as yet to achieve or closely to approach the quick earth-shaking victory the Nazi warlord foretold.

Russians, Germans, Rumanians and Finns by the hundred thousand, if not the million, are dead, maimed or prisoners. More millions of helpless non-combatants are dead or homeless and faced with freezing and starvation this winter.

Yet no Russian city of first magnitude strategically or economically has fallen to the invading hordes and none has been brought under Nazi fire except by air bombs. And only days away are the September rains in western Russia and behind them, in early October, the snow will fly and Russia's greatest ally, six months of winter, will enter the struggle.

Hitler was utterly unprepared when he struck at Russia June 22 for any such bitter resistance as he has met. As the ninth week of the vast battle opens, his armies seem breathless and nearing the exhaustion point in the vital center before Moscow. Only on the extreme flanks of the Baltic-Black sea front is the Nazi blitzkrieg still rolling, and neither sector offers the Germans an assurance of conclusive victory before winter sets in.

When he struck in late June, Hitler unquestionably expected within seven weeks or less to engulf Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev and sweep the Russian Black sea coast to the old 1918 German invasion line at Rostov, the gateway to Russia's great Caspian oil fields, to Iran and to India.

Instead, only the southern Ukraine and its potential resources in food and minerals seems yet within his grasp and its cost has been a great expenditure of German lives and German war reserves. Odessa is the first major Russian city to be closely invested by the Nazis. By Berlin accounting, a major Red army disaster is in the making there which will deliver the whole Ukrainian plateau east of the Dnieper into German control.

But given Russian will to fight on behind the Dnieper, even Nazi capture of the whole great bend of this river would not be a vital blow. Complete annihilation of Red army forces in the sea-backed Odessa pocket seems improbable. Routes of escape by land and sea are still open. Natural water barriers offer possibilities of bitter rear-guard stands to keep open a wide sea frontage against encirclement. They even afford the means of prolonged siege warfare if Russian army organization in the south has not broken down utterly.

It seems unquestionable that Hitler is desperately seeking to achieve in the Ukraine an appearance of victory on which to found some new peace offensive. Political and military gestures from Axis aligned non-belligerent nations such as Japan and Vichy France were synchronized too closely with the Nazi Ukrainian offensive to permit doubt that both were Berlin-dictated as diversions. Undoubtedly, too, the Roosevelt-Churchill joint declaration must be regarded as a counter move to offset in advance that expected Nazi "peace" bid.

The terms of that joint British-American statement beckon invitingly to the so-called "have-not" nations, great or small; but they also rule out peace on any terms with Hitlerism. Only its high-placed authors could say whether behind its issuance lies some ominous official knowledge in London and Washington of wavering Russian resolve, or some hopeful prospect of growing public unrest in Germany with Hitler's attempted blood-purge of half the world.

PRESIDENT BACK ON SHORE AFTER EPOCHAL VOYAGE

TANNED AND HAPPY OVER SEA TALKS WITH PREMIER

Says Every Continent Discussed At Dramatic Ocean Conference

ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL TRAIN EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—President Roosevelt intimated today that he and Winston Churchill were in complete accord upon tense developments in the Far East, as well as the Russo-German conflict, but asserted this nation was no nearer to war than when he sailed away to meet the British prime minister at sea.

The chief executive spoke aboard the yacht Potomac, with anti-aircraft guns mounted on her deck, just before he came ashore at Rockland, Me., and boarded his special train for conferences in Washington tomorrow with Secretary Hull on both the Far East and French situations.

Tanned and obviously happy at what he called the eminently successful swapping of ideas with Britain's leader, Mr. Roosevelt told more than a score of newsmen crowded into the Potomac's wardroom that there was not a single section of a single continent that went undiscussed during their dramatic meeting.

He made this statement after a reporter inquired whether his declaration that he and Mr. Churchill were in complete agreement on all aspects of the war situation would apply to the Far East as well as the Far West.

"Are we any closer to entering the war, actually?" another reporter asked earlier.

The president said he would say no. Mr. Roosevelt also intimated that the heads of the two biggest democra-

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Senator Pepper, Democrat, Florida, urged today that the existing ban against sending selectees outside the Western Hemisphere be lifted but conceded that there was little prospect of immediate congressional action.

Pepper, a member of the foreign relations committee and advocate of more active aid to Great Britain and Russia, said in an interview that "the sooner we make an all-out effort the surer we are to stay out of a shooting war and the surer we are that we won't have to send an expeditionary force to Europe or South America.

"For example, there are islands in the Atlantic and Pacific which might be the subject of assault from Hitler and his axis associates. The army command ought to be in a position to send to those places that part of the army which is best adapted to such service."

2 KILLED, 3 HURT IN AUTO COLLISION

LIBERTY, Tex., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and three others injured in an auto collision on Highway 90 just outside the city limits of Liberty today.

Mrs. A. G. Hinson of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was killed instantly and A. G. Hinson, riding in the same car, died a few minutes after being picked up at the wreck scene.

An identification case gave the address of the couple as 311 Southeast Seventh street, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Sheriff Pat C. Lowe was making an effort to locate relatives of the two.

The other car in the wreck was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Skeels and a 10-year-old son of Port Arthur. They were taken to a hospital here. Skeels had a fractured rib and other injuries while Mrs. Skeels and the boy were bruised slightly.

REDS PREPARING FOR LONG-DRAWN WAR WITH NAZIS

FRANCE'S TROUBLES GROW HEAVIER WITH SABOTAGE

(By Associated Press)

The Soviet government which yesterday accepted the British-American offer of maximum material assistance in the battle against Germany reported today that fighting was still general along the whole 2,000-mile front at the start of the ninth week of the Nazi invasion.

In return for the promised help, Russia was reported to have pledged active aid in a "stop Japan" movement.

The British again were active in daylight raids on Nazi-occupied France. American-made fortress bombers flew in the attack on Brest and one was reported to have beaten off seven German fighters, returning safely although damaged and with some of its crew wounded.

The British claimed to have shot down 19 German planes and admitted losing four.

France's troubles grew heavier. In Paris the prefecture of police warned the population that sabotage on railroad lines was threatening the city's food supply and offered one million francs for information leading to arrest of the saboteurs.

The imminent possibilities of the Pacific situation were further accented when the United States department of state announced that Japan had refused to let the liner President Coolidge pick up about 100 American citizens seeking to leave Japan.

In London, where the Russian promise was reported by an authoritative source, it was said that Japan might stop short in her southward expansion and make an early push at Siberia to help herself and her German Axis partner by blocking the United States supply route to Vladivostok.

High Japanese, German and neutral quarters in Shanghai already had said Japan was preparing for a possible attack on Siberia within two or three weeks. If started later, it might be hampered by bad weather, they said.

In the German invasion of Russia, entering its ninth week today, the Red army was fighting a dogged battle of withdrawal on the southern front in the Ukraine while apparently preparing for a stand on the east bank of the Dnieper river.

Russians and Germans agreed on the fury of the fighting, but neither side gave official details. German military accounts claimed all the Ukraine west of the Bug river was virtually encircled and that dive bombers were wreaking havoc in and around Odessa.

The Germans admitted the Russians were defending themselves sternly, saying that as an example of the no-quarter type of fighting, 800 Russians out of 1,000 were killed in one small skirmish.

In the north, both the Germans and their Finnish allies claimed continuing progress. The Germans said they had about cleared up Estonia and were pressing on nearer to Leningrad, while the Finns reported capture of

SAYS OLD REGULARS ARE NOT WITH JONES

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Ulic Burke, Old Regular leader of the First ward and secretary-manager of the Choctaw club, said today the Old Regulars had declared themselves "an independent organization," and that there was "no amalgamation with the Jones forces."

"It was reported that Governor Sam H. Jones' political organization in New Orleans was due a shakeup," said Burke's prepared statement, "with present Jones leaders being replaced with some new leaders acceptable to the Old Regular organization.

"This move was calculated to strengthen the mayoralty campaign of former Representative Paul H. Maloney. In New Orleans this morning, the majority of the Old Regular caucus reports that they are still an independent organization . . . and that there is no amalgamation with the Jones forces.

"The majority of Old Regular leaders is 100 per cent behind the action of the Old Regular caucus, and they are not individually or collectively interested in the Jones political powwow being held in Baton Rouge."

Two New Orleans ward leaders of the independent Democratic organization said in Baton Rouge today after a conference with Governor Jones that they had refused to resign their organizational positions at the governor's request.

Meanwhile, James A. Noe, ally of Jones in the latter's successful fight for the governorship, was reported holding a meeting of his New Orleans ward leaders at a hotel here. Purpose of the meeting could not be learned.

Washington as await him here, problems calling for decisions based on the information exchanged at the Churchill conference, or decisions on how best to effectuate policies adopted as a result of the meeting at sea.

On the domestic front, strikes continue to present problems, particularly that at the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock company in Kearny, N. J. The operators of the plant have asked the navy to take it over. Governor Edison of New Jersey has asked that such action be delayed.

These with other factors suggest a difference of opinion among affected officials, with indications that they may be awaiting the president's return and a final decision from him on the course of action to be followed.

Several bills await Mr. Roosevelt's signature, notably the army service extension bill, adding 18 months to the possible service of draftees, national guardsmen, reservists and army enlisted men. The measure was passed this week, with the house giving its approval by a one-vote margin.

Then, there is also another big defense appropriation bill—$7,586,895,000—but still carrying less money than the army and the administration requested. For the first time since the big appropriations began, the senate rebelled and slashed $1,347,000,000 from the measure's original total. At the urgent request of Secretary Stimson, $750,000,000 of the cut was later restored.

INDIAN CHIEF IS GIVEN RARE HONOR

WISCONSIN DELLS, Wis., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Proclaiming anew the brotherhood of man, Governor Julius P. Heil tonight bestowed upon Chief Yellow Thunder of the Winnebago Indian tribe an honorary membership in the white race.

The ceremony, which sponsors declared unprecedented, was held in a natural amphitheater on the Wisconsin river.

The Indian, wearing the flowing headdress of eagle feathers designating his high rank, and the state's white-haired chief executive exchanged felicitations in short talks before an audience of Indians and Caucasians.

"It is high time that we of Caucasian heritage make acknowledgment too long deferred, of the generosity of you, the North American aborigines. Oceans of human blood are being shed today on the fields of Europe, Asia and Africa in the most terrible war this earth has ever known. In our peace-blessed America, may there continue to be a happy brotherhood of the two races—the red and white."

Chief Yellow Thunder humorously acknowledged acceptance of the "white man's burden," declaring:

"I am aware of the great new life ahead of me. I must give up many privileges for new experiences."

rile we didn't even dare picture in our wildest dream."

Hitting especially hard at the question of disarmament, he declared:

"Whoever wants to disarm us will have to go to the little trouble of taking our weapons from us. To demand that we do that ourselves is stupidity which calls for police action.

"We did that once in November, 1918. But the German people then were still credulous. At that time it had foolish leadership and the enemy a smart one, while today that is reversed * * *.

"We understand clearly why these international profiteers of plutocracy hate the fuehrer and his system. He has established a social form in which order, cleanliness and clarity reign.

"He is building up a peoples' state which is socially organized, in which money serves industry and industry mankind. On the opponents' side, that is turned around. For that reason they keep dinning their everlasting complexes of jealousy and inferiority."

Goebbels concluded:

"Now that their last ally, world Bolshevism, is at the point of suffering a debacle, now in their despair, they turn to us most respectfully to do what they themselves have not accomplished and never will—to fleece ourselves. * * *

"These war and inflation profiteers, these fat capitalists and devoted Jewish servants, these perjurers of their own election promises deserve only that the German people contemptuously spit at them and return again to its work; thus do we want to work and fight until humanity is freed from this scourge of God."

TEN BIG SUITS BLOCKING JONES

ernatorial opponent, James H. Morrison of Hammond.

Others include George Wallace, Wade O. Martin, Jr., K. K. Kennedy, all of Baton Rouge; Charles Rivet and Emile Carmouche, both of New Orleans, and Joseph Arthur Sims, an ally of Morrison. Wallace, Martin, Kennedy and Rivet all held positions with the former state administration. Carmouche was an unsuccessful candidate for attorney general in 1940.

Farthest advanced among the litigations is the taxpayers' suit for an injunction against operations under the governmental reorganization amendment adopted by the legislature and approved by popular vote. The state supreme court, approving a preliminary injunction, declared the amendment invalid, but the state even so has not abandoned its right to represent its case this fall at a hearing on a permanent injunction.

District Judge James D. Womack here, who originally declared the amendment invalid, also ruled out the "other half" of reorganization—the enabling act—in a suit originally brought by the highway department to recover funds allegedly due on old contracts. This decision has been appealed and presumably will be reviewed by the state supreme court this fall. The high court meanwhile has granted writs suspending its effect.

The state crime commission was attacked in a taxpayers' suit in Judge Womack's court and another in the court of District Judge Charles Holcombe.

Judge Holcombe dismissed the action brought before him on an exception and the plaintiffs appealed. However, Judge Womack accepted jurisdiction and ruled that the state board of liquidation exceeded its powers by transferring $500,000 surplus in the property tax relief fund to the commission to finance investigations of alleged graft and corruption. The result of the decision was to cut off the commission's operating funds.

The state applied to the supreme court for writs and was refused. Governor Jones thereafter announced the temporary suspension of the commission's activities, saying scandals probes would be carried on as far as possible by other agencies.

In an attempt to make continued investigations possible, the state board of liquidation transferred $150,000 to the supervisor of public funds so that he could take over on his payroll some of the crime commission investigators. This precipitated another suit and a decision by Judge Womack that this transfer of funds also was illegal.

Because of the grounds given, that a department which had been given a fixed maximum appropriation by the 1940 legislature could not have that appropriation increased by the board, State Treasurer A. P. Tugwell refused to allow the state department of finance to use similarly transferred funds.

The finance department, now sole paying and general fiscal agency for relief benefits, Confederate pensions, and several state institutions, brought friendly suit against the treasurer for a mandamus order to force him to make available the departmental funds.

Judge Womack refused to issue the mandamus.

Both decisions—the original one in the case affecting the supervisor of public funds and the refusal to issue the mandamus—have been embodied in a single appeal to the state supreme court.

It was to cure the financial difficulties created by these interrelated suits that the state board of liquidation yesterday asked for permission to borrow $150,000 for the supervisor's department and $540,000 for the department of finance.

Supervisor Jerome A. Hayes is defendant in another suit affecting his authority. This action was brought in Amite by Sheriff Frank M. Edwards of Tangipahoa parish, seeking an injunction to prevent Hayes from removing records from his office. Edwards also has filed affidavits charging Hayes with criminal slander and removal of public records.

A decision in the injunction action is due next week. The criminal cases never have been set for trial.

The state attempted to facilitate purchase of voting machines, use of which the legislature made mandatory in New Orleans, by advancing part of the cost the city was directed to bear. Another injunction suit was filed to prevent this and an order issued limiting the state's share to $123,000, or one-half the cost.

Then, in an attempt to obtain from the city its full share, Attorney General Eugene Stanley advised Tugwell to withhold a portion of surplus property tax relief funds due the city. Another injunction application was promptly filed and hearing set for next Wednesday. Meanwhile the original case has been appealed to the state supreme court.

The highway department became directly involved in the maze with the filing of a suit seeking to force it to pay $1,168,000 to the state general fund for the account of the welfare department. The sum represents collections for several months last year of one cent of the state gasoline tax.

The legislature by an act transferred the tax from the welfare to the highway department and submitted to the people an amendment ratifying the transfer, which was approved. The amount at issue was collected between the effectiveness dates of act and amendment.

District Judge Holcombe ruled the sum should be returned. The state is asking the supreme court for writs setting aside his judgment until it is reviewed.

The state won one suit involving a $6,145,000 bond issue. Opponents contended the state board of liquidation was without authority to handle sale of the bonds. The district court's decision was for the state and the plaintiffs have appealed, but the bond already have been sold and part of the proceeds devoted to Confederate pensions.

State attorneys say there are numerous other suits pending in courts throughout the state in which administration reform statutes are under attack incidentally to other issues. However, these attacks in general duplicate those in the principal suits which are nearer final determination, the attorneys say.

Only about one two-billionth of the energy sent out from the sun is intercepted by the earth.

Original John Doe Is Arrested For Drunkenness, Disorderliness

Officers Picking Up Slumped Form Told By Woman To Make 'Charges Light'

The original John Doe was booked at police headquarters with drunkenness and disorderliness after his arrest Saturday afternoon, but, really, it didn't make any difference to the silent culprit.

Desk Sergeant Charles H. Sisson who booked J. D. received a call at 4:01 p.m. to send an officer to Thomas avenue just off Lee avenue where a negro was either dead or drunk in the street, the informer said.

A police radio message was sent immediately to Officers R. J. Goza and Ed Harper in car No. 3. They sped to the scene. At first glance they saw that the body was on the curb and the legs were in the street. A beer bottle was leaning against the supine figure.

As they idled in closer, Officer Goza, noting the peculiar position of the feet, ejaculated, "Looks like both legs are broken."

They pulled to the curb, got out of the car, and looked at the slump form. It was a dummy. It was made of straw. A dirty straw hat sat at an odd angle on the paper bag head. A dirty white flannel shirt, black leather belt, and old khaki pants completed the outfit, except for two leather shoes tied to the pants legs.

Realizing the joke, the officers picked up the figure and placed it in the back seat.

A woman across the street hollered as they were climbing into the automobile, "Make the charges as light as possible!"

Driving up to the front of city hall, the arresting officers radioed Sergeant Sisson on the second floor to send them a trustee to help carry the figure upstairs.

The sergeant sent them Uriah Johnson, negro trustee, who when he saw the crumpled figure in the rear seat, was held trembling to the spot before he realized the sot John Doe was only a dummy. Carrying J. D. was easy after that.

When you make a visit to police headquarters and look in the police blotter under August 16, you will see the name of John Doe, charged with "D and D," and arrested by Officers Goza and Harper.

But who played the prank on the police? John Doe isn't telling, and that may be the reason why the police may never find out.

num Company of America eliminate wage differentials between northern and southern factories.

Plants within the scope of a threatened strike to enforce the demand are located at New Kensington, Pa., Detroit, Alcoa, Tenn., Edgewater, N. J., and Badin, N. C. Wages are 55 cents an hour at the southern plants, 73 at New Kensington, and 75 at Detroit and Edgewater.

Improved situations appeared in prospect at several other defense production trouble spots.

A decision to return to work Monday on two naval air station projects at Pensacola, Fla., was voted by between 750 and 1,000 carpenters, electricians and laborers who quit work Wednesday over demands for wage increases of 25 cents an hour for the skilled workers and 10 cents for laborers. Carpenters have been getting $1 an hour, electricians, $1.25 and laborers, 40 cents. Representatives of the three A. F. of L. unions involved said they would go to Washington to discuss the demands with navy officials.

Spokesmen for Western Electric, Inc., and the Association of Communications Equipment Workers said that Dr. John A. Steelman, director of the federal conciliation service, would be asked to appoint a three-member "super-panel" of conciliators to review the breakdown in their negotiations for a contract. Details of the dispute have not been disclosed. Union members in 13 large cities voted strike authority. Union leaders said that a strike would tie up telephone installation work on defense projects and paralyze the vast Bell telephone system.

The mediation board announced an agreement ending a dispute involving 1,850 workers in a ship repair yard of Todd-Galveston Dry Docks, Inc., at Galveston, Texas. Members of two A. F. of L. unions—Galveston Metal Trades Council and International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders and Helpers of America—will consider the agreement Tuesday. Details of the proposal were not disclosed. The union struck July 15, but returned to work August 11 after the case was certified to the board.

Meanwhile the Steel Workers Organizing Committee (C.I.O.) accepted a compromise offer of the Tennessee Coal and Railroad Co., yesterday, ending a day-old strike in the huge tin plate mill at Fairfield, Ala. The 2,200 idle mill workers will return to their jobs today, ending a general strike threat in the steel mills of the T. C. I. at Fairfield, Sensley and Bessemer.

General Krueger has stressed these maneuvers are designed to give higher commanders and staffs practice in handling large forces in the field under simulated campaign conditions, both as regards tactical operations and those of supply and maintenance, and to develop the third army into one well coordinated, effective team capable of meeting the demand of modern warfare.

Fourteen hundred umpires will referee the August-September games, and they too will start functioning in the corps vs. corps maneuver.

The IV, V, and VIII army corps, which are the three main parts of the third army will concentrate in southern Louisiana on the first of September to maneuver against the invading second army. The second army vs. third army games start officially on September 15.

PRESIDENT BACK IN U. S. AGAIN

cies saw eye to eye in believing that Russia would hold on against Germany through the winter.

He said consideration had been given at the high-seas meeting both to fitting Russia's immediate needs into this country's production of war materials, and to Russia's needs for the campaigns of next spring.

Mr. Roosevelt declared that consideration of Russia's needs next spring were based on the assumption that winter would at least partially halt the Nazi drive.

Then, asked directly if he believed that Russia could stand up, the president said that he guessed from what he had said that there was an assumption in that.

Back from London and Moscow, Harry Hopkins, lend-lease administrator who accompanied Churchill to the conferences, sat quietly at his side, as newsmen plied the president with questions, seeking to learn what changes, if any, the deliberations would bring in this country's status in the world conflict.

He would say little on this point, however, beyond declaring that the next step would be only a further interchange of ideas.

The chief executive likewise was silent on the length of his meetings with Mr. Churchill or the setting of these sessions, except that he did reveal that only one conference was held aboard the British battleship Prince of Wales. The others, he said, took place on the United States cruiser Augusta.

He refused—for obvious reasons, he said—to discuss the exact location of the epochal exchange of ideas between the president of a nation at peace, and the head of a government at war. Nor would he, for the same reasons, say when he and Mr. Churchill parted company or where the prime minister was at present.

The chief executive explained, however, that the meeting was a joint idea, planned as long ago as February and postponed because of Britain's campaign in Greece and Crete. It was called, he said, for an exchange of views, looking to both the present and the future.

He said he had even objected to an announcement that he was landing at Rockland today. Then, smiling, he remarked that it had been foggy on the way over and that if any submarines had fired torpedoes they had not been sighted.

The president asserted that a new lend-lease program was still in its study stage, but that it was nearing the point where additional funds would be sought to finance aid for the democracies. In response to questions, however, he said Russia would not get lend-lease aid now on the grounds that that country had available cash to pay for war materials.

Mr. Roosevelt volunteered the remark that one of the statements overlooked in the joint declaration of policy made public Thursday was the necessity for a study of what is happening to the world under the Nazi regime.

The more this subject is investigated and discussed, he asserted, the worse becomes the thought of having these influences spread into affiliated nations.

Asked if any steps had been taken at the conference to implement achievement of the post war goal laid down in the eight-point program, he replied simply that there would be further exchange of views. He said, however, that he did not expect Churchill to come to this country, nor did he expect to go to England.

It was just pure luck, the president added, that his sons, Eliot and Franklin, Jr., were present for the writing of a document which may hold an important place in world history.

He explained that he just happened to catch them at the scene, indicating that they had been aboard ships which formed a naval screen against any eventuality while the president and the prime minister deliberated.

Mr. Roosevelt brought back one sharp memory, which he shared with the newsmen through a vivid word picture. He told in simple words of the Sunday church services on the quarterdeck of the battleship Prince of Wales. He said everyone present felt this had been one of the great historic services, in which he and the head of the British government, together with the heads of their armies and navies, had prayed together.

Mr. Roosevelt listed, as the American representatives at the high-sea conference, Hopkins, General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff; Major-General H. H. Arnold, assistant chief of staff in charge of air; Major-General James H. Brown, army coordinator for the lend-lease program; Colonel Bundy of the war plans division; Admiral Harold Stark, chief of naval operations; Rear-Admiral Ernest J. King, commander of the Atlantic fleet; Rear-Admiral Turner of the war plans division, Captain Sherman of the office of naval operations, Major-General E. M. Watson, secretary and military aide to the president; Rear-Admiral Ross T. McIntire, personal physician to the president and surgeon general of the navy; Captain John R. Beardall, the president's naval aide, and W. Averill Harriman, supervisor of the lend-lease program at the British end.

He said the British had what might be called opposite numbers to these men as their representatives.

The president made clear that the army and navy heads of the two governments and their aides had conferred separately, as well as sitting in on the discussions he held with Mr. Churchill.

18 months now is awaiting President Roosevelt's signature. It was approved in the house by the single-vote margin of 203 to 202, leading opponents of administration foreign policy to assert that there was no chance congress would lift the prohibition against sending selectees outside this hemisphere.

Pepper said that while the service extension measure would give additional flexibility to the assignment of army personnel, it was not adequate.

"We must keep Hitler from getting out of Europe," he declared. "If he does try to break out, we must meet him where he breaks out and we must hold him back before he gets to us. That is not war-mongering or aggression. It is intelligent defense."

Although General George C. Marshall, the chief of staff, originally recommended that the Western Hemisphere ban be lifted, Senator Thomas, Democrat, Utah, floor manager in the senate for the service extension measure, said army authorities had advised him they were content, for the present, to let the ban remain on the books.

Washington as await him here, problems calling for decisions based on the information exchanged at the Churchill conference, or decisions on how best to effectuate policies adopted as a result of the meeting at sea.

On the domestic front, strikes continue to present problems, particularly that at the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock company in Kearny, N. J. The operators of the plant have asked the navy to take it over. Governor Edison of New Jersey has asked that such action be delayed.

These with other factors suggest a difference of opinion among affected officials, with indications that they may be awaiting the president's return and a final decision from him on the course of action to be followed.

Several bills await Mr. Roosevelt's signature, notably the army service extension bill, adding 18 months to the possible service of draftees, national guardsmen, reservists and army enlisted men. The measure was passed this week, with the house giving its approval by a one-vote margin.

Then, there is also another big defense appropriation bill—$7,586,895,000—but still carrying less money than the army and the administration requested. For the first time since the big appropriations began, the senate rebelled and slashed $1,347,000,000 from the measure's original total. At the urgent request of Secretary Stimson, $750,000,000 of the cut was later restored.

INDIAN CHIEF IS GIVEN RARE HONOR

WISCONSIN DELLS, Wis., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Proclaiming anew the brotherhood of man, Governor Julius P. Heil tonight bestowed upon Chief Yellow Thunder of the Winnebago Indian tribe an honorary membership in the white race.

The ceremony, which sponsors declared unprecedented, was held in a natural amphitheater on the Wisconsin river.

The Indian, wearing the flowing headdress of eagle feathers designating his high rank, and the state's white-haired chief executive exchanged felicitations in short talks before an audience of Indians and Caucasians.

"It is high time that we of Caucasian heritage make acknowledgment too long deferred, of the generosity of you, the North American aborigines. Oceans of human blood are being shed today on the fields of Europe, Asia and Africa in the most terrible war this earth has ever known. In our peace-blessed America, may there continue to be a happy brotherhood of the two races—the red and white."

Chief Yellow Thunder humorously acknowledged acceptance of the "white man's burden," declaring:

"I am aware of the great new life ahead of me. I must give up many privileges for new experiences."

rile we didn't even dare picture in our wildest dream."

Hitting especially hard at the question of disarmament, he declared:

"Whoever wants to disarm us will have to go to the little trouble of taking our weapons from us. To demand that we do that ourselves is stupidity which calls for police action.

"We did that once in November, 1918. But the German people then were still credulous. At that time it had foolish leadership and the enemy a smart one, while today that is reversed * * *.

"We understand clearly why these international profiteers of plutocracy hate the fuehrer and his system. He has established a social form in which order, cleanliness and clarity reign.

"He is building up a peoples' state which is socially organized, in which money serves industry and industry mankind. On the opponents' side, that is turned around. For that reason they keep dinning their everlasting complexes of jealousy and inferiority."

Goebbels concluded:

"Now that their last ally, world Bolshevism, is at the point of suffering a debacle, now in their despair, they turn to us most respectfully to do what they themselves have not accomplished and never will—to fleece ourselves. * * *

"These war and inflation profiteers, these fat capitalists and devoted Jewish servants, these perjurers of their own election promises deserve only that the German people contemptuously spit at them and return again to its work; thus do we want to work and fight until humanity is freed from this scourge of God."

ernatorial opponent, James H. Morrison of Hammond.

Others include George Wallace, Wade O. Martin, Jr., K. K. Kennedy, all of Baton Rouge; Charles Rivet and Emile Carmouche, both of New Orleans, and Joseph Arthur Sims, an ally of Morrison. Wallace, Martin, Kennedy and Rivet all held positions with the former state administration. Carmouche was an unsuccessful candidate for attorney general in 1940.

Farthest advanced among the litigations is the taxpayers' suit for an injunction against operations under the governmental reorganization amendment adopted by the legislature and approved by popular vote. The state supreme court, approving a preliminary injunction, declared the amendment invalid, but the state even so has not abandoned its right to represent its case this fall at a hearing on a permanent injunction.

District Judge James D. Womack here, who originally declared the amendment invalid, also ruled out the "other half" of reorganization—the enabling act—in a suit originally brought by the highway department to recover funds allegedly due on old contracts. This decision has been appealed and presumably will be reviewed by the state supreme court this fall. The high court meanwhile has granted writs suspending its effect.

The state crime commission was attacked in a taxpayers' suit in Judge Womack's court and another in the court of District Judge Charles Holcombe.

Judge Holcombe dismissed the action brought before him on an exception and the plaintiffs appealed. However, Judge Womack accepted jurisdiction and ruled that the state board of liquidation exceeded its powers by transferring $500,000 surplus in the property tax relief fund to the commission to finance investigations of alleged graft and corruption. The result of the decision was to cut off the commission's operating funds.

The state applied to the supreme court for writs and was refused. Governor Jones thereafter announced the temporary suspension of the commission's activities, saying scandals probes would be carried on as far as possible by other agencies.

In an attempt to make continued investigations possible, the state board of liquidation transferred $150,000 to the supervisor of public funds so that he could take over on his payroll some of the crime commission investigators. This precipitated another suit and a decision by Judge Womack that this transfer of funds also was illegal.

Because of the grounds given, that a department which had been given a fixed maximum appropriation by the 1940 legislature could not have that appropriation increased by the board, State Treasurer A. P. Tugwell refused to allow the state department of finance to use similarly transferred funds.

The finance department, now sole paying and general fiscal agency for relief benefits, Confederate pensions and several state institutions, brought friendly suit against the treasurer for a mandamus order to force him to make available the departmental funds.

Judge Womack refused to issue the mandamus.

Both decisions—the original one in the case affecting the supervisor of public funds and the refusal to issue the mandamus—have been embodied in a single appeal to the state supreme court.

It was to cure the financial difficulties created by these interrelated suits that the state board of liquidation yesterday asked for permission to borrow $150,000 for the supervisor's department and $540,000 for the department of finance.

Supervisor Jerome A. Hayes is defendant in another suit affecting his authority. This action was brought in Amite by Sheriff Frank M. Edwards of Tangipahoa parish, seeking an injunction to prevent Hayes from removing records from his office. Edwards also has filed affidavits charging Hayes with criminal slander and removal of public records.

A decision in the injunction action is due next week. The criminal cases never have been set for trial.

The state attempted to facilitate purchase of voting machines, use of which the legislature made mandatory in New Orleans, by advancing part of the cost the city was directed to bear. Another injunction suit was filed to prevent this and an order issued limiting the state's share to $123,000, or one-half the cost.

Then, in an attempt to obtain from the city its full share, Attorney General Eugene Stanley advised Tugwell to withhold a portion of surplus property tax relief funds due the city. Another injunction application was promptly filed and hearing set for next Wednesday. Meanwhile the original case has been appealed to the state supreme court.

The highway department became directly involved in the maze with the filing of a suit seeking to force it to pay $1,168,000 to the state general fund for the account of the welfare department. The sum represents collections for several months last year of one cent of the state gasoline tax.

The legislature by an act transferred the tax from the welfare to the highway department and submitted to the people an amendment ratifying the transfer, which was approved. The amount at issue was collected between the effectiveness dates of act and amendment.

District Judge Holcombe ruled the sum should be returned. The state is asking the supreme court for writs setting aside his judgment until it is reviewed.

The state won one suit involving a $6,145,000 bond issue. Opponents contended the state board of liquidation was without authority to handle sale of the bonds. The district court's decision was for the state and the plaintiffs have appealed, but the bond already have been sold and part of the proceeds devoted to Confederate pensions.

State attorneys say there are numerous other suits pending in courts throughout the state in which administration reform statutes are under attack incidentally to other issues. However, these attacks in general duplicate those in the principal suits which are nearer final determination, the attorneys say.

Original John Doe Is Arrested For Drunkenness, Disorderliness

Officers Picking Up Slumped Form Told By Woman To Make 'Charges Light'

The original John Doe was booked at police headquarters with drunkenness and disorderliness after his arrest Saturday afternoon, but, really, it didn't make any difference to the silent culprit.

Desk Sergeant Charles H. Sisson who booked J. D. received a call at 4:01 p.m. to send an officer to Thomas avenue just off Lee avenue where a negro was either dead or drunk in the street, the informer said.

A police radio message was sent immediately to Officers R. J. Goza and Ed Harper in car No. 3. They sped to the scene. At first glance they saw that the body was on the curb and the legs were in the street. A beer bottle was leaning against the supine figure.

As they idled in closer, Officer Goza, noting the peculiar position of the feet, ejaculated, "Looks like both legs are broken."

They pulled to the curb, got out of the car, and looked at the slump form. It was a dummy. It was made of straw. A dirty straw hat sat at an odd angle on the paper bag head. A dirty white flannel shirt, black leather belt, and old khaki pants completed the outfit, except for two leather shoes tied to the pants legs.

Realizing the joke, the officers picked up the figure and placed it in the back seat.

A woman across the street hollered as they were climbing into the automobile, "Make the charges as light as possible!"

Driving up to the front of city hall, the arresting officers radioed Sergeant Sisson on the second floor to send them a trustee to help carry the figure upstairs.

The sergeant sent them Uriah Johnson, negro trustee, who when he saw the crumpled figure in the rear seat, was held trembling to the spot before he realized the sot John Doe was only a dummy. Carrying J. D. was easy after that.

When you make a visit to police headquarters and look in the police blotter under August 16, you will see the name of John Doe, charged with "D and D." and arrested by Officers Goza and Harper.

But who played the prank on the police? John Doe isn't telling, and that may be the reason why the police may never find out.

THINK U. S. TO TAKE BIG PLANT

num Company of America eliminate wage differentials between northern and southern factories.

Plants within the scope of a threatened strike to enforce the demand are located at New Kensington, Pa., Detroit, Alcoa, Tenn., Edgewater, N. J., and Badin, N. C. Wages are 55 cents an hour at the southern plants, 73 at New Kensington, and 75 at Detroit and Edgewater.

Improved situations appeared in prospect at several other defense production trouble spots.

A decision to return to work Monday on two naval air station projects at Pensacola, Fla., was voted by between 750 and 1,000 carpenters, electricians and laborers who quit work Wednesday over demands for wage increases of 25 cents an hour for the skilled workers and 10 cents for laborers. Carpenters have been getting $1 an hour, electricians, $1.25 and laborers, 40 cents. Representatives of the three A. F. of L. unions involved said they would go to Washington to discuss the demands with navy officials.

Spokesmen for Western Electric, Inc., and the Association of Communications Equipment Workers said that Dr. John A. Steelman, director of the federal conciliation service, would be asked to appoint a three-member "super-panel" of conciliators to review the breakdown in their negotiations for a contract. Details of the dispute have not been disclosed. Union members in 13 large cities voted strike authority. Union leaders said that a strike would tie up telephone installation work on defense projects and paralyze the vast Bell telephone system.

The mediation board announced an agreement ending a dispute involving 1,850 workers in a ship repair yard of Todd-Galveston Dry Docks, Inc., at Galveston, Texas. Members of two A. F. of L. unions—Galveston Metal Trades Council and International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders and Helpers of America—will consider the agreement Tuesday. Details of the proposal were not disclosed. The union struck July 15, but returned to work August 11 after the case was certified to the board.

Meanwhile the Steel Workers Organizing Committee (C.I.O.) accepted a compromise offer of the Tennessee Coal and Railroad Co., yesterday, ending a day-old strike in the huge tin plate mill at Fairfield, Ala. The 2,200 idle mill workers will return to their jobs today, ending a general strike threat in the steel mills of the T. C. I. at Fairfield, Sensley and Bessemer.

TWO ARMIES IN STATE ADVANCE

three corps form the third army, of some 300,000 men.

Monday General Krueger will give his corps commanders the tactical problem and the hostilities will begin with coordination of infantry, cavalry, artillery, mechanized forces, air forces, anti-aircraft and anti-tank forces on a scale unprecedented in America.

General Krueger has stressed these maneuvers are designed to give higher commanders and staffs practice in handling large forces in the field under simulated campaign conditions, both as regards tactical operations and those of supply and maintenance, and to develop the third army into one well coordinated, effective team capable of meeting the demand of modern warfare.

Fourteen hundred umpires will referee the August-September games, and they too will start functioning in the corps vs. corps maneuver.

The IV, V, and VIII army corps, which are the three main parts of the third army will concentrate in southern Louisiana on the first of September to maneuver against the invading second army. The second army vs. third army games start officially on September 15.

PRESIDENT BACK IN U. S. AGAIN

cies saw eye to eye in believing that Russia would hold on against Germany through the winter.

He said consideration had been given at the high-seas meeting both to fitting Russia's immediate needs into this country's production of war materials, and to Russia's needs for the campaigns of next spring.

Mr. Roosevelt declared that consideration of Russia's needs next spring were based on the assumption that winter would at least partially halt the Nazi drive.

Then, asked directly if he believed that Russia could stand up, the president said that he guessed from what he had said that there was an assumption in that.

Back from London and Moscow, Harry Hopkins, lend-lease administrator who accompanied Churchill to the conferences, sat quietly at his side, as newsmen plied the president with questions, seeking to learn what changes, if any, the deliberations would bring in this country's status in the world conflict.

PRICE CEILING ON PINE FIXED

Leon Henderson Says Douglas Fir Soon Will Be Included

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Price fixing was extended to the lumber industry today with the establishment of "ceiling" quotations on southern pine which officials estimated would save consumers $20,000,000 a year.

Announcing the action, Leon Henderson, price administrator, said that Douglas fir would soon be included.

A maximum charge for southern pine, said to be about $3 per thousand board feet below recent prices, was announced effective September 5 for mills and concentration yards. Wholesale and retail yard prices were expected to fall into conformity quickly.

"If this does not happen," Henderson said, "the ceiling will be extended to cover all wholesale and retail sales." He asserted that producers could operate profitably under the new prices and described present levels as exhorbitant.

Meanwhile, with gasoline rationing ordered for the eastern states, Secretary Ickes, the petroleum coordinator, said that the oil industry was making plans to double its capacity for refining high-octane gasoline, and thereby avert any shortage of fuel for the fighting planes of England, Russia or the United States.

"The availability of adequate supplies of oil and gasoline will determine the conflict now raging abroad," Ickes said.

Other defense developments:

Experimenting with camouflage, army engineers announced a project for building 20 buildings at Fort Belvoir, Va., to cost $2,540,000 and to be as nearly invisible as possible.

F. H. La Guardia, the civilian defense director, said the first statewide practice blackouts would be conducted in New Mexico September 12.

The army reported it had adopted a single-standard type of high-test gasoline for use in its motor vehicles. Previously four varieties have been used. The purpose of reducing the number of types was to simplify the provision of oil and gasoline for motorized units in the field.

ARGENTINE LABOR BACKS WAR ALLIES

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A proposal of Argentine labor leaders that this republic join the British-Russian-United States front against Nazism was greeted with a tremendous roar of approval tonight at a workers mass meeting which jammed Luna park stadium and overflowed into the streets.

A throng which police said numbered about 40,000 held up their fingers in the form of a "V," the so-called victory sign, as they shouted approval of the statement of former National Deputy Francisco Perez Leiro.

"Distant are the political leaders of our country from the problems of Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin," he said. "But wouldn't it be better to face these together than to be late?"

Dutch East Indies Pilots Sing Praises Of American Airplanes

Declare That Islands Are Ready If War Flares In Far East

EDITOR'S NOTE: "Van Soesterdijk" is the name of an important Dutch military airdrome smashed in the Nazi invasion. For official reasons, the author of the article belo wcould not use his own name, so adopted this nom de plume. He is an officer of the Dutch naval air arm, who, with a large contingent of other pilots under his command, is en route to join Dutch squadrons now fighting in England with the R. A. F. The article below was written exclusively for NEA Service an The Morning World when the group recently passed through New York.

By Captain "J. van Soesterdijk"
Royal Netherlands Navy
(Written for NEA Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—War drums are beating louder—and faster—in the Far East. The Dutch East Indies—economically rich strategically important Netherlands island empire—is ready for any eventuality.

Obviously, no one can say definitely whether or not we shall be forced to fight Japan. We have made great defensive progress in the past year and a half—especially in the modernization of our army. It is significant of the state of East Indies defenses that my group of pilots, in the pink of condition, can be spared for service in Europe, despite the danger-fraught situation in the Indies.

The East Indies air force has steadily grown in strength. American planes are arriving in an uninterrupted stream, practically every ship that puts into port from the United States bringing in more planes.

Our Indies pilots have been schooled in modern aerial battle tactics, using American-made machines. As a result, we have the feel of most of the newest American craft—Glenn Martins, Brewster Buffalos, Curtiss pursuits and Ryan trainers.

They are splendid machines under all kinds of conditions, day and night. Our training was pretty intense, and I am confident that all of my men—every one of whom is a qualified pilot—will give a splendid account of themselves from the moment they go into action against the Nazis.

Two lieutenants, left, and a lieutenant commander of the Royal Dutch Air Force examine a map of their homeland, which they have not seen since the Nazi invasion. The fliers, after training in American planes in the Dutch East Indies, are pictured as they stopped in New York, en route to join the Dutch squadrons with R. A. F. in England.

We do not know how long this last leg of our trip, which started on May 14, 1940, will take us, but we hope it will not be too long. All of us are eager to get a good crack at "Jerry"—and this time the fighting odds will be more even than they were in May of last year. This time the Germans will not be able to play on us the tricks they used during the invasion, when German soldiers, disguised in Dutch uniforms, punctured the tires of a number of our warplanes on the ground at the crucial moment.

Those of us who escaped after further resistance became impossible met again in England, with some thrilling tales to tell. Most of the men, at that time, were fledgling flyers, not fully trained in aerial combat. To relieve the burden on the British training schools and as part of the Empire training scheme, we were all sent to the Netherlands East Indies by a circuitous route.

Now we are going back. During our short stay in the United States we have been deeply impressed by the way the American aid-the-Allies effort is gaining momentum. Truly, with the growing power of the Allies, and the knowledge that your nation is behind us, we cannot possibly lose this war.

New American-built Curtiss 21B interceptor-fighter planes, pictured for the first time, are lined up at the great air base at Bandoeng, Java. Called "the fastest climbing plane in the world," they're credited with over a vertical mile a minute. Many other types of United States planes are being used by the Royal Netherlands East Indies Air Force.

HEAD OF ILLINOIS V. F. W. SUSPENDED

LANSING, Mich., Aug. 16.—(AP)—National Commander Joseph C. Menendez of the Veterans of Foreign Wars said tonight he had suspended Earl Southard as Illinois commander of the organization and ordered him to face a V. F. W. court-martial on charges of violating his membership oath.

Menendez said Southard's own post charged his activities as secretary of the Citizens Keep America Out of War committee constituted a violation of his oath.

At Chicago, Southard charged his suspension was a "war mongering effort to silence me."

The charges stemmed from a handbill issued by the Citizens Keep America Out of War committee, which advocated "no obedience" to the lease-lend bill in these words:

"H. R. 1776 is as viciously unconstitutional as anything ever advocated by a tyrannical governor or king or legislature, either local or foreign. Like the stamp act or other tyrannical acts, it calls for no obedience from free men and women. This way we can preserve peace and save our republic."

The handbill bore Southard's name along with several others.

"I will fight the charges to the limit," Southard said. "National Commander Menendez is a strong interventionist and a close follower of President Roosevelt. He alone ordered the suspension and trial. I rather expect the trial will be delayed in order to keep me off the floor at the national convention in Philadelphia, August 24, because the war issue will be paramount there and the Menendez crowd wants me out of the way."

Southard was elected state commander at the Quincy, Ill., convention last June.

UNITED GAS TO BUILD NEW LINE

200-Mile Conduit Will Meet Gulf Coast Defense Requirements

United Gas Pipe Line Company announced yesterday that construction of a 200-mile natural gas pipe line has been started to supply the increasing fule requirements of industries and cities in Louisiana and along the gulf coast of Mississippi and Alabama to Pensaloca, Fla.

The new line will run from the gas fields of Southern Louisiana across Lake Pontchartrain to Mandeville, La., eastward to Gulfport, Miss., and thence to Mobile, Ala. At Mandeville another line is being laid to Covington, La. It has been estimated that 56 per cent of the line's capacity of approximately 80 million cubic feet daily will be used by industries engaged in filling national defense contracts.

The crossing of Lake Ponchartrain will be the longest underwater natural gas pipe line in the world. A single line, 14 inches in diameter, will traverse the 25 miles of water from the southwestern bank to Mandeville on the northern shore. Construction on this section of the line will start the latter part of August.

SUITCASE STOLEN

James B. Brown of Grayson reported to Monroe police yesterday that a brown suitcase belonging to him was stolen from Joe Gonzales cafe between 3 and 4 a.m. Saturday. Brown said the suitcase contained a pair of sandals, a brown checked suit, a pair of blue trousers and two khaki shirts.

MODEL ARMY SET UP AS WINDOW DISPLAY

At least one firm in the Twin Cities has prepared to resist aggression—but it has all been done in miniature.

A military window display at Durrett Hardware and Furniture company in West Monroe, labeled a "division of the Second Army," has been set up with various small articles from the firm's stock.

Window shoppers in West Monroe Saturday saw models of army airplanes constructed by local youths, a series of door hinges set up like pup tents and numerous small hardware articles pieced together to resemble machine guns, light field guns and even heavy artillery.

A background of white stars on a blue field adorns the walls of the display.

PRICE CEILING ON PINE FIXED

L n Henderson Says Douglas Fir Soon Will Be Included

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Price fixing was extended to the lumber industry today with the establishment of "ceiling" quotations on southern pine which officials estimated would save consumers $20,000,000 a year.

Announcing the action, Leon Henderson, price administrator, said that Douglas fir would soon be included.

We Take Our Stand

After all, a person or a people must stand for something. The thing that distinguishes a person or a people from the vegetable kingdom is having principles. Having principles, it is right to avow them openly, to stand upon them, and to work for their survival and extension. To do that is life; to fail to do that is only a form of death.

President Roosevelt was on the side of life when he met Churchill at sea and laid down eight principles on which not only the British and American peoples, but uncounted millions of peoples all over the world (including many in Germany, Italy and Japan) agree. There was nothing new, nothing Americans have not long believed, nothing not directly implied in the fourteen points enunciated by President Wilson, January 8, 1918.

Here is no new step, then, but simply a reaffirmation of principles as old as the American people. There will be disagreement on how far the United States ought to go in backing them up. There can be no disagreement that the moral and material force of the United States, so far as it decides to make it felt, must be exercised along these lines.

The circumstances under which Wilson pronounced the fourteen points, stating the minimum principles of a peace in which the United States could acquiesce, are interesting. Russia had fallen; the Bolshevik revolution had taken it out of the war; Germany was dictating its hard terms at Brest-Litovsk, demonstrating what a pax Germanica would mean to any who were compelled to accept it. France was bled white, Britain sore beset by the submarine blockade. A rallying point, a clear indication of what the allies wanted, was needed. Wilson gave it, and men of good will everywhere saw that his terms were the absolute minimum.

So today, in this general reiteration of the kind of world which the British and American peoples, and free peoples everywhere feel must emerge, the way is open to the axis powers to proclaim publicly what they propose instead.

Should they do so, the world can then make a clearer choice.

Versailles, bad as it was, was better than Brest-Litovsk. The eight points formulated by Roosevelt and Churchill offer at least a hope for the world. It is a clear challenge to the axis to state equally clearly what kind of a world it wants.

WHO'S BOSS NOW?

This invasion business is not a new game. The women have been playing it for years. The program was not dedicated to the philosophy of the blitz. It came by easy stages.

First they got the vote, and thus armed they mooched in on the barbershop, the smoking car and the baseball game. Their big chance came during the speakeasy days. They roared into the delightful dens of pleasure and proceeded to out-sing and out-drink the male patrons. It was at this time that the girls broke off the last shackles of inequality and dissolved that fancy legend of being the weaker sex. They began to smoke and then to seal their victory they began to wear trousers. From then on the supremacy of the male began to wane.

The latest news—from Baltimore—adds one more drop of bitterness to the cup of woe. Some of the women of that city have organized the Put Your Husband in His Place club and right at the moment they are in Miami for a ten-day frolic, without their husbands and without any dishes to wash or children to take care of.

The respective spouses have been given strict instructions on how to conduct themselves while their wives are making whoopee. They are to stay at home and keep the fires burning. They must get their own meals, carry on dealings with the butcher and the baker, keep the rooms clean and otherwise make themselves useful. Banish the thought that these men will kick over the traces. Definitely, they have been put in their places and they will stick to the rules, as provided by the ball-and-chain.

The men have only themselves to blame for their predicament. They had nourished themselves for years on the art of chivalry, gallantry and cavalierism. They had paid the bills and squired the ladies to balls and parties. They had made sacrifices and had offered the banal excuse that these things were being done in the interest of good breeding and gentility.

Now the men know where they stand, or rather where they sit, for very definitely they have been put in their places.

NO, IT'S NOT THE HUMIDITY

It's not the heat. It's not the humidity.

It's the relentless talking about it that gets us down.

Suppose it IS hot? Does it make it any cooler to wag the jaws 18 hours a day moaning about it?

Did it ever cool you off any to have some perspiring friend greet you with, "Well, is it hot enough for you?" For us, that only adds to the general caloricity a self-generated band of heat just beneath the collar.

What to do about the heat? Take it easy, don't go in for foolish excesses of food, drink, or exercise, and—talk about something else for a change!

JIMMIE FIDLER In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 16.—In a current fan magazine, there's a story that leaves me balancing between amusement and disgust. It's written in mawkish praise of a Hollywood "Mr. Big Shout," and it insists that the whole world should be deeply grateful to the guy because of his life-long "contributions to the entertainment of millions."

Fah!

I, for one, am weary of that persistent, smugly self-adoring, blatantly hypocritical theme song in Hollywood publicity. Every actor insists that he's a public benefactor because he's devoting his life to your entertainment and mine. Every director and every producer makes the same claim. And the magazine sob-sisters who add their dulcet tones to the "Ain't-we-noble" chorus are now working overtime to laud the entire industry for the great pictures it's donating to this good cause and that.

ONCE AGAIN—HORSE-FEATHERS! What a low opinion of our intelligence Hollywood must have to kid us in such fashion.

Actors are acting for just one reason—to make money. Producers produce pictures for the same compelling reason. And I have yet to meet anyone in this town who isn't out to grab just as much cash as he possibly can.

WE—you and I— pay in the long run, and we're glad to pay for GOOD pictures (which unfortunately we don't get too often). So why hand us a side-dish of unwanted baloney? Which exhorbitant salaries, bonuses and prodigal waste keeping picture costs above the clouds, the word "contributions" is not the one to use.

WHAT'S NEWS: Wotzis about Orson Welles plotting an all-negro movie, based on the life of Louis Armstrong? . . . Vic McLaglen dropped 20 pounds during that recent illness, more serious than first suspected . . . Honeychile Wilder will open a N Y bistro (the "Chez Honeychile") in September . . . Does Harry Richman's constant dating with Rose (burlesque flower) La Rose mean his announced merger with showgal Eileen Shirley is off? . . . Laraine Day, whose papa was government agent on Utah's Piute Indian reserve, has been made "Princess Little Star" by that tribe . . . Hear Linda Darnell, currently taking dance lessons from Arthur Murray, is petitioning Darryl Zanuck and company for a filmusical break . . . Miliza Korjus has signed for 4 weeks (minimum) concert appearances in South America, starting September 14 . . . N Y sleuths report that Patricia (Harry Conover's model) Garfield can't decide between a Dave Selznick screen contract and marriage to Jack Gallatly, heir to railway industrial supplies millions . . . Tsk-tsk! Sally Rand and Gypsy Rose Lee aren't speaking yet—this time over policy matters concerning Beauty Parade mag, of which they're both associate editors.

FIDLINGS:

The ladies' regard for Boyer
Should dispel—or do much to allay—
A man's worry and care

And having to wear a toupe.

IDOL CHATTER: If you're a close friend of Jeannette MacDonald's you'll call her "Nettie" . . . Smile-alikes Virginia Bruce and Isabel Jewell . . . It's while gazing at Betty Grable's gams that I really appreciate the tragic potentialities of silk curtailment . . . In-a-word description of Stan Laurel's comedy: Chum-tuous . . . When a gal with Madeleine Carroll's natural coloring uses makeup, it's a case of gilding the lily . . . Nominated for this week's "Cutest Dimples" award: George Brent . . . Would it be correct to refer to an actor's child as "a slice off the old ham?" . . . Maybe Sally Rand isn't a great dramatic actress, but her performances always move her fans . . . Patsy Kelly's stride reminds me of a prize-fighter walking into the ring.

INTIMATE NOTES: A Jamaica Long Islander asks: "Hasn't Bing Crosby ever failed at ANYTHING?" After exhaustive research, I finally found, in an old Crosby biography, the one blemish on his amazing record of successes. Just between the two of us, ma'am, he was once fired from a bottle-washing job in a Seattle pickle cannery! . . . A "Connecticut Yankee" wants to know if I think it's fair for big-money stars to buy ranches and compete with hard-working farmers? Maybe not, but as long as it costs stars a dollar per each to grow artichokes and $3 a pound to raise chickens, farmers can feel reasonably safe . . . From a Chicagoan: "How can Gary Cooper remain successful in a high-pressure business if he's as taciturn as he's been pictured?" Take a glance at that recent report on stars' income tax returns and you'll agree Gary can be as taciturn as he pleases. His money talks for him.

OUR CHILDREN

Healthy Children Are Selfish

Our baby is close to 2 years old now, and very bright. But he is selfish. He clings to his ball and won't let any other child play with it. He won't give a bite of his food to anybody. Sometimes we make him and then he fights and cries and we don't know what to do with him. We don't want him to grow up to be selfish."

All healthy little children are selfish. If a 2-year-old, or a three-year one, for that matter, cheerfully handed over his dearest possessions, his ball and his dinner, I would suspect there was something radically wrong with him.

Little children know only themselves. They cannot as yet project themselves beyond their own feelings, appetites, desires. It is not wise to try to make them do under compulsion what they will learn to do by and by with far less pain because they will have grown the necessary power to feel beyond their own little clutching hands.

When a visitor comes provide two toys, one for each, so that the baby will not have to give his to the guest and sit by to watch him play with it. He can hand the extra toy to his guest, but beyond that he is not to be asked to go because he does not understand beyond that point. He must first attend to himself, and when he is satisfied he may have a gleam of interest in the other child. And he may not.

Don't force generosity, or good manners, or morals on little children. Such developments of personality lie in the future. They have to be acquired gradually. Avoid occasion for grabbing by providing enough for all concerned. Correct lapses of good manners casually; adjust things and pass on. Don't dwell on the faults of little children when they are faults only because the child is measured on adult standards.

You know that by and by this child will say "Please," "Thank you," "Excuse me," "May I?" "Would you like to use this ball?" And the other polite forms demanded of him if he lives long enough and your good intentions hold out. A little daily touch, a good example constantly with him, reminders and suggestions of the good way, in time will develop this self-centered little child into a cooperative human being. We can afford to give him time to grow to be a healthy child.

It is unwise to try to make little children into the image or their elders, or into the image of some dream person their elders hold in their minds as pattern for him. He must first be a healthy child of his own stage of growth. Each stage must be fed, protected and encouraged so that its full development may add strength and quality to the succeeding one.

If little children are reared wisely, allowed to develop with a minimum of pressure from adults, kept clean, fed well, guided out of harm's way, they will merge into childhood, and then into adolescence, with increasing grace and power. A baby marred is an adolescent spoiled.

Getting along with other people is a fundamental of success—even little children, as well as adolescents, must learn how to do so. Sunday School Lesson

Sunday School Lesson For August 24
Text: Hebrews 9:11-22
By William E. Gilroy, D.D.
(Editor of Advance)

The early Christian writers had the task of explaining the new Christian faith in relation to the religion in which many of the disciples had been brought up. In the thought of Paul and other Christian writers, there was no breach between Judaism and Christianity. They thought of their Christian experience as a fulfillment of the faith and practice to which they had been accustomed.

Deep in this former faith and practice had been the emphasis upon blood sacrifice. It was part of the Jewish ritual. The doorposts of Jewish homes, when the avenging hand had smitten the Egyptians, were marked by blood to save the faithful. In common with almost all religions, the conception of blood sacrifice and blood covenant played an essential part.

Then came the sacrifice of Christ upon the cross, and the Christian teaching relating this sacrifice to the Jewish ritual and practice. This in the Christian thought marked a new covenant. The salvation of men was no longer to be won, or their sins purged, by the shedding of the blood of goats and bulls and the sprinkling of the ashes of a heifer. Salvation was rather through the sacrifice of Christ.

This is a lesson of mystery which it is not easy either to understand or to explain. Perhaps we are unwise to attempt too exact an explanation, and we might do better to turn to practical illustrations.

We see surely in our world today how the innocent suffer for the guilty, and how inevitable it is that some men should suffer and die if their country, their homes, and the laws and institutions that they value are to be preserved. The war has not come to our own shores, but we see in many lands how the maintenance of democracy and freedom is inevitably bound up with suffering and sacrifice.

The Christian teaching is not that Jesus is a sacrifice to an angry God, bearing a penalty that enables others to go free. There was something of that in the Jewish conception, and in their idea of the scapegoat, but if one reads carefully the New Testament, he will see that the real emphasis was upon the fact that even on the cross "God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto Himself."

A great theologian has said, "What Christ is on the cross, God eternally is." We ought to interpret all conception of blood sacrifice in religion in terms of that statement.

The idea of Christianity and the New Testament is that for our salvation no sacrifice is needed but that of a sincere and contrite heart. God is not to be appeased. He is Himself through Christ the appeaser, inviting us to receive His grace and accept the sacrifice made through love.

IN WASHINGTON

By Peter Edson
(Monroe Morning World Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—The Economic Defense Board of cabinet members headed by Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, which is intended to wage the economic war, is beginning to shape up in a little better perspective now and it's possible to tell a few things about how it will function.

In the first place, this is the board which has been talked about since last January, and it should have been named then. The trouble is nobody could agree who should be on it and who should head it. So in all the wrangling no board was appointed. Wallace was finally agreed on to head the committee, being unbbjectionable to all, being a good man besides, and presidential timber for 1944 if he makes good as vice-president.

The other members of the committee are, titularly, the secretaries of state, treasury, war, navy, commerce, and the attorney general. These cabinet members, however, will all be so busy with their regular work that they will be expected to attend only the opening sessions and the plenary sessions when papers are to be signed and, presumably, pictures taken.

Provision was made in the president's order creating the board for "alternates" to function in place of the brass hats, do all the executive work, and report back to their bosses. Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles will function for Secretary Hull. Undersecretary of Commerce Wayne Chatfield-Taylor will sit in for Secretary Jones, and so on. In other words, the big name board itself is another holding company setup, under which others will function.

There will be an executive director of the board, and Dr. Wifield W. Riefler of Princeton, sometime federal reserve board economist, is now generally mentioned for this job. Riefler and his staff will be largely planners. Execution will be left to others.

Super Zoning Board

When the board gets going, the idea will be for it to divide up the world into four economic zones. Europe will be one, the British Empire another, the Orient a third, and the Western Hemisphere less Canada, the fourth. There will be a division in charge of each zone, and its job will be to study the economy of the area and see how economic war can be waged there to best advantage.

Take the Western Hemisphere as an example of how it works. Organization of this group is a little further along than the others, so it's a good specimen.

It will be run by a Committee on Inter-American affairs. This committee will reach into a number of existing governmental agencies for representatives. State, treasury, commerce, agriculture, export-import bank, OPM, OPACS, and export control are a likely lineup for the team. This group will have as a titular chairman Nelson Rockefeller, whose committee on cultural and commercial relations has been renamed and reshaped. Coordinator Rockefeller will continue to do most of the things he has been doing and a few others besides, but the emphasis will be more on the cultural than on the commercial relations, the commercial programs having been transferred to the commerce department. The finance company to buy up German control of South American airlines, for instance, which started as a Rockefeller enterprise, has been moved over under the banner of the federal loan agency, the other half of the Jesse Jones enterprises.

The extra role which Nelson Rockefeller will have thrust upon him is that of acting as an unofficial friend in court for all the South and Central American countries. Whenever any one of these republics has a problem, instead of trying to make an appointment with Cordell Hull for a formal state call, the ambassador will be able to get Rockefeller on the telephone and tell his story. Rockefeller, not being bound by protocol, will be able to call up the government department concerned and get something going, quick. As such, the Rockefeller office may be able to cut through more red tape in less time than any other government agency has ever been able to do.

Strategy Boys In Charge

Actual administration of the commercial end of the program, as it concerns the waging of economic war, will be placed with a committee on strategy, and its plans are being worked out now.

With this committee, General Maxwell's new export clearance section will operate in such a way that clearance of priorities and permits in all government departments can be obtained without delay. Under General Maxwell will be a staff of hardboiled army majors and colonels whose instructions will be to ride roughshod through the red tape and to forget all they ever knew about the infamous military channels which clutter up so much army procedure.

If a project involves the sending of three shiploads of machine guns to some South American republic to arm its troops for hemisphere defense, and the bringing back of hides to make into shoes for the Russian army, the idea will be to get it started and get it done quicker than it was ever done before.

U. S. SEEKS MEN TO FILL VACANCIES

The federal government is urgently in need of employes for filling immediately vacancies in the following positions:

Junior inspector, signal corps equipment; $2,600 per annum; engineers, $3,800 per annum; associate engineers, $3,200 per annum; assistant engineers, $2,600 per annum.

Applicants for the position of inspector of signal corps equipment must have completed a full four-year course in electrical or radio engineering at a college or university of recognized standing or must have had four years of practical experience in inspectional or testing work in connection with signal corps equipment, radio, telephone, telegraph and power units, assemblies, sub-assemblies and component parts to determine compliance with specifications.

Applicants for the positions of engineer mentioned must have completed a full four-year course leading to a bachelor degree in engineering and in addition must have had five years, three years and two years respectively of professional engineering experience. Persons who have not completed a full four-year course at a college or university of recognized standing may substitute experience year for year for the education which is lacking, which substitution must be in addition to the five years, 3 years or 2 years experience mentioned. Persons who have had experience on irrigation projects are particularly desired at this time by the various departments of the federal government.

Appointments to these positions are being made from day to day and immediate appointments will be made until the needs of the service are met. An excellent opportunity is afforded qualified persons to be of assistance to the federal government in connection with the national defense program in connection with these positions. Qualified persons are urged to see the secretary of the board of United States civil service examiners at the postoffice immediately and secure the necessary application blanks and forms. Detailed information regarding these positions may also be secured from the secretary at the postoffice.

STAMP NEWS

Hungary and Russia Not on Speaking Terms

NO doubt exists as to Hungary's position in regard to the Russo-German conflict. Shortly after Nazi panzer divisions smashed their way ruthlessly into Soviet territory, Hungary broke off diplomatic relations with the Kremlin.

Interesting sidelight to this action is the fact that Hungary herself, shortly after being set up within her present territorial limits after World War I, embraced a Soviet form of government under Bela Kun for a few months in 1919.

In 1920, however, after the Soviet administration had been succeeded by a short-lived Socialist regime, a regency was set up with Admiral Nicholaus von Horthy elected as regent. The stamp above shows Admiral Horthy on horseback, and was issued by Hungary in 1939, with the surtax set aside for the "Hungary for Hungarians" movement.

With nearly all other racial elements removed after World War I, Hungary has been, for the past 20 years, nearly entirely a Maygar state. Since the inception of World War II, her sympathies for Germany have been clearly evident.

STATE BOARD TO HOLD TESTS FOR LIBRARIANS

Certification examinations for librarians wishing to qualify for administrative positions in public libraries, will be conducted at the state capitol on Saturday morning September 27 at 10 o'clock, it has been announced by J. Newt Ogden, director of the department of occupational standards.

All applications must be filed with the department of occupational standards, state capitol, before the 27th of this month.

The board of library examiners will conduct the examinations, required by state law. James A. McMillen, librarian of the Louisiana State university library, is board chairman, Miss Debora Abramson, assistant executive secretary of the Louisiana library commission, is secretary; and John Hall Jacobs, librarian of the New Orleans public library, is the third member of the board.

New York Day by Day

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL
Title Reg. U. S. Patent Office

NEW YORK—Diary: A long walk that began in mid-afternoon extended itself through Chinatown, down along the Bowery, through Foley Square, into Park Row and City Hall park. By that time, I was tired enough to hunt up my car and drive home. For the first time in my life, I felt sleepy at the wheel, and had to shake my head from time to time to keep awake. . . . Falling asleep at the wheel is dangerous enough business anywhere. On these crowded highways, with the river on one side, it would be extremely unwise. . . . Dinner at the China Lane, all Chinese food, very good, but too much of it. It is an Old Chinese custom to serve twice as much as anybody could possibly eat. One wonders what happens to the left-overs. . . . Orientals believe in abundance of food. Once in a while I like a plate of Sukiyaki for lunch or dinner. I had it at the Daruma, up a flight of rickety stairs on Sixth avenue, the other day, and asked for an extra portion of beef with it. I think the waiter must have thought extra meat meant extra large. There was enough beef to feed a board of directors on vacation, and they charged me an extra dollar for the extra meat.

A memorable sight is the soaring tower of the Municipal building against the full moon in a sky flecked by fleecy clouds. I saw it thus, the graceful statue atop the pinnacle seemingly embedded in the warm effulgence of the summer moon.

This is the statue from which, a few years ago, an arm dropped, clattering from stone to stone, and barely missing a group in the street, far below.

Max Rubin is not my kind of taxi driver, though he undoubtedly does the best he can. I picked up his cab on Broadway, near 40th street and said, "Drive to 23rd street, please."

"Whereabouts do you want to go on 23rd?"

"Just 23d; that's good enough. You hit it at Madison Square.

I noticed that we were going out of the way, but thought I'd let the driver do the driving, so long as he didn't take me to the Battery. We crossed over Madison avenue.

As we approached Madison avenue and 25d street, I said, "I'm curious to know why you brought me so far out of my way. Why didn't you drive directly down Broadway to 23rd, as I told you?"

"You said you wanted Madison avenue."

"Not at all. I said 23rd, at Madison Square."

"Well, there ain't no Madison Square here no more. They took it away years ago."

"Now, if you're getting fresh, that's all right. This is Madison Square, on your right."

"Not for my money it aint. They put it up at Eight avenue and 50th street, and that's where I take anybody that asks for Madison Square."

The poor fellow wasn't trying to be fresh. He thought Madison Square Garden was Madison Square. And he said he had been driving nine years in Manhattan.

During the recent silk stocking panic in New York, a man from Mars might have thought that the whole future of our civilization depended upon an adequate supply of silk stockings. Many women actually fainted when they saw the mobs at the stores. Life had lost its meaning; there was no future; the sun of joy had set.

Yet I seem to remember when a lot of mighty attractive women wore black cotton stockings and made their way in the world rather beautifully. Maybe another generation will wear cotton and like it.

Briefly I talked with Miss Paula Lecler, free-lance war correspondent, on the eve of her departure by Clipper for Europe.

Miss Lecler, attractive brunette, travels alone wherever there is trouble or danger, and lives to write and lecture about her experiences.

BAPTISTS TO ATTEND STATE ENCAMPMENT

Led by Mrs. Clara Seaman, director of the Training union, a group of young people from the First Baptist church will leave here early Monday for Mandeville, near New Orleans, for the annual state Baptist encampment.

They will visit Baton Rouge en route, making the trip by bus.

The encampment will be attended by groups from all important cities of the state and will last for 10 days.

TO WARN TROOPS AWAY FROM CERTAIN POINTS

White cardboard signs displaying the words, "Troops Keep Out," printed in big red letters, will be posted at numerous points in "hazardous areas" in this district during the coming army maneuvers, local army officials said yesterday.

Troops will be warned to watch especially for areas where gas or explosives exist.

Posted areas will include refineries, pumping stations, gasoline plants, and other similar installations.

WILL HOLD TESTS

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 16.—(Special)—An examination will be held by the department of occupational standards and the state board of examiners of journeymen plumbers in the house of representatives, state capitol, August 23 at 10 a.m., which will be open to all applicants for license as journeymen plumbers who are working in towns of 10,000 population and over.

We Take Our Stand

After all, a person or a people must stand for something. The thing that distinguishes a person or a people from the vegetable kingdom is having principles. Having principles, it is right to avow them openly, to stand upon them, and to work for their survival and extension. To do that is life; to fail to do that is only a form of death.

President Roosevelt was on the side of life when he met Churchill at sea and laid down eight principles on which not only the British and American peoples, but uncounted millions of peoples all over the world (including many in Germany, Italy and Japan) agree. There was nothing new, nothing Americans have not long believed, nothing not directly implied in the fourteen points enunciated by President Wilson, January 8, 1918.

Here is no new step, then, but simply a reaffirmation of principles as old as the American people. There will be disagreement on how far the United States ought to go in backing them up. There can be no disagreement that the moral and material force of the United States, so far as it decides to make it felt, must be exercised along these lines.

The circumstances under which Wilson pronounced the fourteen points, stating the minimum principles of a peace in which the United States could acquiesce, are interesting. Russia had fallen; the Bolshevik revolution had taken it out of the war; Germany was dictating its hard terms at Brest-Litovsk, demonstrating what a pax Germanica would mean to any who were compelled to accept it. France was bled white, Britain sore beset by the submarine blockade. A rallying point, a clear indication of what the allies wanted, was needed. Wilson gave it, and men of good will everywhere saw that his terms were the absolute minimum.

So today, in this general reiteration of the kind of world which the British and American peoples, and free peoples everywhere feel must emerge, the way is open to the axis powers to proclaim publicly what they propose instead.

Should they do so, the world can then make a clearer choice.

Versailles, bad as it was, was better than Brest-Litovsk. The eight points formulated by Roosevelt and Churchill offer at least a hope for the world. It is a clear challenge to the axis to state equally clearly what kind of a world it wants.

WHO'S BOSS NOW?

This invasion business is not a new game. The women have been playing it for years. The program was not dedicated to the philosophy of the blitz. It came by easy stages.

First they got the vote, and thus armed they mooched in on the barbershop, the smoking car and the baseball game. Their big chance came during the speakeasy days. They roared into the delightful dens of pleasure and proceeded to out-sing and out-drink the male patrons. It was at this time that the girls broke off the last shackles of inequality and dissolved that fancy legend of being the weaker sex. They began to smoke and then to seal their victory they began to wear trousers. From then on the supremacy of the male began to wane.

The latest news—from Baltimore—adds one more drop of bitterness to the cup of woe. Some of the women of that city have organized the Put Your Husband in His Place club and right at the moment they are in Miami for a ten-day frolic, without their husbands and without any dishes to wash or children to take care of.

The respective spouses have been given strict instructions on how to conduct themselves while their wives are making whoopee. They are to stay at home and keep the fires burning. They must get their own meals, carry on dealings with the butcher and the baker, keep the rooms clean and otherwise make themselves useful. Banish the thought that these men will kick over the traces. Definitely, they have been put in their places and they will stick to the rules, as provided by the ball-and-chain.

The men have only themselves to blame for their predicament. They had nourished themselves for years on the art of chivalry, gallantry and cavalierism. They had paid the bills and squired the ladies to balls and parties. They had made sacrifices and had offered the banal excuse that these things were being done in the interest of good breeding and gentility.

Now the men know where they stand, or rather where they sit, for very definitely they have been put in their places.

NO, IT'S NOT THE HUMIDITY

It's not the heat. It's not the humidity.

It's the relentless talking about it that gets us down.

Suppose it IS hot? Does it make it any cooler to wag the jaws 18 hours a day moaning about it?

Did it ever cool you off any to have some perspiring friend greet you with, "Well, is it hot enough for you?" For us, that only adds to the general caloricity a self-generated band of heat just beneath the collar.

What to do about the heat? Take it easy, don't go in for foolish excesses of food, drink, or exercise, and—talk about something else for a change!

JIMMIE FIDLER In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 16.—In a current fan magazine, there's a story that leaves me balancing between amusement and disgust. It's written in mawkish praise of a Hollywood "Mr. Big Shout," and it insists that the whole world should be deeply grateful to the guy because of his life-long "contributions to the entertainment of millions."

Fah!

I, for one, am weary of that persistent, smugly self-adoring, blatantly hypocritical theme song in Hollywood publicity. Every actor insists that he's a public benefactor because he's devoting his life to your entertainment and mine. Every director and every producer makes the same claim. And the magazine sob-sisters who add their dulcet tones to the "Ain't-we-noble" chorus are now working overtime to laud the entire industry for the great pictures it's donating to this good cause and that.

ONCE AGAIN—HORSE-FEATHERS! What a low opinion of our intelligence Hollywood must have to kid us in such fashion.

Actors are acting for just one reason—to make money. Producers produce pictures for the same compelling reason. And I have yet to meet anyone in this town who isn't out to grab just as much cash as he possibly can.

WE—you and I— pay in the long run, and we're glad to pay for GOOD pictures (which unfortunately we don't get too often). So why hand us a side-dish of unwanted baloney? Which exhorbitant salaries, bonuses and prodigal waste keeping picture costs above the clouds, the word "contributions" is not the one to use.

New York Day by Day

Title Reg. U. S. Patent Office

NEW YORK—Diary: A long walk that began in mid-afternoon extended itself through Chinatown, down along the Bowery, through Foley Square, into Park Row and City Hall park. By that time, I was tired enough to hunt up my car and drive home. For the first time in my life, I felt sleepy at the wheel, and had to shake my head from time to time to keep awake. . . . Falling asleep at the wheel is dangerous enough business anywhere. On these crowded highways, with the river on one side, it would be extremely unwise. . . . Dinner at the China Lane, all Chinese food, very good, but too much of it. It is an Old Chinese custom to serve twice as much as anybody could possibly eat. One wonders what happens to the left-overs. . . . Orientals believe in abundance of food. Once in a while I like a plate of Sukiyaki for lunch or dinner. I had it at the Daruma, up a flight of rickety stairs on Sixth avenue, the other day, and asked for an extra portion of beef with it. I think the waiter must have thought extra meat meant extra large. There was enough beef to feed a board of directors on vacation, and they charged me an extra dollar for the extra meat.

A memorable sight is the soaring tower of the Municipal building against the full moon in a sky flecked by fleecy clouds. I saw it thus, the graceful statue atop the pinnacle seemingly embedded in the warm effulgence of the summer moon.

This is the statue from which, a few years ago, an arm dropped, clattering from stone to stone, and barely missing a group in the street, far below.

Max Rubin is not my kind of taxi driver, though he undoubtedly does the best he can. I picked up his cab on Broadway, near 40th street and said, "Drive to 23rd street, please."

"Whereabouts do you want to go on 23rd?"

"Just 23d; that's good enough. You hit it at Madison Square.

I noticed that we were going out of the way, but thought I'd let the driver do the driving, so long as he didn't take me to the Battery. We crossed over Madison avenue.

As we approached Madison avenue and 23d street, I said, "I'm curious to know why you brought me so far out of my way. Why didn't you drive directly down Broadway to 23rd, as I told you?"

"You said you wanted Madison avenue."

"Not at all. I said 23rd, at Madison Square."

"Well, there ain't no Madison Square here no more. They took it away years ago."

"Now, if you're getting fresh, that's all right. This is Madison Square, on your right."

"Not for my money it aint. They put it up at Eight avenue and 50th street, and that's where I take anybody that asks for Madison Square."

The poor fellow wasn't trying to be fresh. He thought Madison Square Garden was Madison Square. And he said he had been driving nine years in Manhattan.

During the recent silk stocking panic in New York, a man from Mars might have thought that the whole future of our civilization depended upon an adequate supply of silk stockings. Many women actually fainted when they saw the mobs at the stores. Life had lost its meaning; there was no future; the sun of joy had set.

Yet I seem to remember when a lot of mighty attractive women wore black cotton stockings and made their way in the world rather beautifully. Maybe another generation will wear cotton and like it.

Briefly I talked with Miss Paula Lecler, free-lance war correspondent, on the eve of her departure by Clipper for Europe.

Miss Lecler, attractive brunette, travels alone wherever there is trouble or danger, and lives to write and lecture about her experiences.

OUR CHILDREN

Healthy Children Are Selfish

Our baby is close to 2 years old now, and very bright. But he is selfish. He clings to his ball and won't let any other child play with it. He won't give a bite of his food to anybody. Sometimes we make him and then he fights and cries and we don't know what to do with him. We don't want him to grow up to be selfish."

All healthy little children are selfish. If a 2-year-old, or a three-year one, for that matter, cheerfully handed over his dearest possessions, his ball and his dinner, I would suspect there was something radically wrong with him.

Little children know only themselves. They cannot as yet project themselves beyond their own feelings, appetites, desires. It is not wise to try to make them do under compulsion what they will learn to do by and by with far less pain because they will have grown the necessary power to feel beyond their own little clutching hands.

When a visitor comes provide two toys, one for each, so that the baby will not have to give his to the guest and sit by to watch him play with it. He can hand the extra toy to his guest, but beyond that he is not to be asked to go because he does not understand beyond that point. He must first attend to himself, and when he is satisfied he may have a gleam of interest in the other child. And he may not.

Don't force generosity, or good manners, or morals on little children. Such developments of personality lie in the future. They have to be acquired gradually. Avoid occasion for grabbing by providing enough for all concerned. Correct lapses of good manners casually; adjust things and pass on. Don't dwell on the faults of little children when they are faults only because the child is measured on adult standards.

You know that by and by this child will say "Please," "Thank you," "Excuse me," "May I?" "Would you like to use this ball?" And the other polite forms demanded of him if he lives long enough and your good intentions hold out. A little daily touch, a good example constantly with him, reminders and suggestions of the good way, in time will develop this self-centered little child into a cooperative human being. We can afford to give him time to grow to be a healthy child.

It is unwise to try to make little children into the image or their elders, or into the image of some dream person their elders hold in their minds as pattern for him. He must first be a healthy child of his own stage of growth. Each stage must be fed, protected and encouraged so that its full development may add strength and quality to the succeeding one.

If little children are reared wisely, allowed to develop with a minimum of pressure from adults, kept clean, fed well, guided out of harm's way, they will merge into childhood, and then into adolescence, with increasing grace and power. A baby marred is an adolescent spoiled.

Getting along with other people is a fundamental of success—even little children, as well as adolescents, must learn how to do so. Text: Hebrews 9:11-22
By William E. Gilroy, D.D.
(Editor of Advance)

The early Christian writers had the task of explaining the new Christian faith in relation to the religion in which many of the disciples had been brought up. In the thought of Paul and other Christian writers, there was no breach between Judaism and Christianity. They thought of their Christian experience as a fulfillment of the faith and practice to which they had been accustomed.

Deep in this former faith and practice had been the emphasis upon blood sacrifice. It was part of the Jewish ritual. The doorposts of Jewish homes, when the avenging hand had smitten the Egyptians, were marked by blood to save the faithful. In common with almost all religions, the conception of blood sacrifice and blood covenant played an essential part.

Then came the sacrifice of Christ upon the cross, and the Christian teaching relating this sacrifice to the Jewish ritual and practice. This in the Christian thought marked a new covenant. The salvation of men was no longer to be won, or their sins purged, by the shedding of the blood of goats and bulls and the sprinkling of the ashes of a heifer. Salvation was rather through the sacrifice of Christ.

This is a lesson of mystery which it is not easy either to understand or to explain. Perhaps we are unwise to attempt too exact an explanation, and we might do better to turn to practical illustrations.

We see surely in our world today how the innocent suffer for the guilty, and how inevitable it is that some men should suffer and die if their country, their homes, and the laws and institutions that they value are to be preserved. The war has not come to our own shores, but we see in many lands how the maintenance of democracy and freedom is inevitably bound up with suffering and sacrifice.

The Christian teaching is not that Jesus is a sacrifice to an angry God, bearing a penalty that enables others to go free. There was something of that in the Jewish conception, and in their idea of the scapegoat, but if one reads carefully the New Testament, he will see that the real emphasis was upon the fact that even on the cross "God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto Himself."

A great theologian has said, "What Christ is on the cross, God eternally is." We ought to interpret all conception of blood sacrifice in religion in terms of that statement.

The idea of Christianity and the New Testament is that for our salvation no sacrifice is needed but that of a sincere and contrite heart. God is not to be appeased. He is Himself through Christ the appeaser, inviting us to receive His grace and accept the sacrifice made through love.

IN WASHINGTON

By Peter Edson
(Monroe Morning World Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—The Economic Defense Board of cabinet members headed by Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, which is intended to wage the economic war, is beginning to shape up in a little better perspective now and it's possible to tell a few things about how it will function.

In the first place, this is the board which has been talked about since last January, and it should have been named then. The trouble is, nobody could agree who should be on it and who should head it. So in all the wrangling no board was appointed. Wallace was finally agreed on to head the committee, being unobjectionable to all, being a good man besides, and presidential timber for 1944 if he makes good as vice-president.

The other members of the committee are, titularly, the secretaries of state, treasury, war, navy, commerce, and the attorney general. These cabinet members, however, will all be so busy with their regular work that they will be expected to attend only the opening sessions and the plenary sessions when papers are to be signed and, presumably, pictures taken.

Provision was made in the president's order creating the board for "alternates" to function in place of the brass hats, do all the executive work, and report back to their bosses. Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles will function for Secretary Hull. Undersecretary of Commerce Wayne Chatfield-Taylor will sit in for Secretary Jones, and so on. In other words, the big name board itself is another holding company setup, under which others will function.

There will be an executive director of the board, and Dr. Wifield W. Riefler of Princeton, sometime federal reserve board economist, is now generally mentioned for this job. Riefler and his staff will be largely planners. Execution will be left to others.

Super Zoning Board

When the board gets going, the idea will be for it to divide up the world into four economic zones. Europe will be one, the British Empire another, the Orient a third, and the Western Hemisphere less Canada, the fourth. There will be a division in charge of each zone, and its job will be to study the economy of the area and see how economic war can be waged there to best advantage.

Take the Western Hemisphere as an example of how it works. Organization of this group is a little further along than the others, so it's a good specimen.

It will be run by a Committee on Inter-American affairs. This committee will reach into a number of existing governmental agencies for representatives. State, treasury, commerce, agriculture, export-import bank, OPM, OPACS, and export control are a likely lineup for the team. This group will have as a titular chairman Nelson Rockefeller, whose committee on cultural and commercial relations has been renamed and reshaped. Coordinator Rockefeller will continue to do most of the things he has been doing and a few others besides, but the emphasis will be more on the cultural than on the commercial relations, the commercial programs having been transferred to the commerce department. The finance company to buy up German control of South American airlines, for instance, which started as a Rockefeller enterprise, has been moved over under the banner of the federal loan agency, the other half of the Jesse Jones enterprises.

The extra role which Nelson Rockefeller will have thrust upon him is that of acting as an unofficial friend in court for all the South and Central American countries. Whenever any one of these republics has a problem, instead of trying to make an appointment with Cordell Hull for a formal state call, the ambassador will be able to get Rockefeller on the telephone and tell his story. Rockefeller, not being bound by protocol, will be able to call up the government department concerned and get something going, quick. As such, the Rockefeller office may be able to cut through more red tape in less time than any other government agency has ever been able to do.

Strategy Boys In Charge

Actual administration of the commercial end of the program, as it concerns the waging of economic war, will be placed with a committee on strategy, and its plans are being worked out now.

With this committee, General Maxwell's new export clearance section will operate in such a way that clearance of priorities and permits in all government departments can be obtained without delay. Under General Maxwell will be a staff of hardboiled army majors and colonels whose instructions will be to ride roughshod through the red tape and to forget all they ever knew about the infamous military channels which clutter up so much army procedure.

If a project involves the sending of three shiploads of machine guns to some South American republic to arm its troops for hemisphere defense, and the bringing back of hides to make into shoes for the Russian army, the idea will be to get it started and get it done quicker than it was ever done before.

U. S. SEEKS MEN TO FILL VACANCIES

The federal government is urgently in need of employes for filling immediately vacancies in the following positions:

Junior inspector, signal corps equipment, $2,600 per annum; engineers, $3,800 per annum; associate engineers, $3,200 per annum; assistant engineers, $2,600 per annum.

Applicants for the position of inspector of signal corps equipment must have completed a full four-year course in electrical or radio engineering at a college or university of recognized standing or must have had four years of practical experience in inspectional or testing work in connection with signal corps equipment, radio, telephone, telegraph and power units, assemblies, sub-assemblies and component parts to determine compliance with specifications.

Applicants for the positions of engineer mentioned must have completed a full four-year course leading to a bachelor degree in engineering and in addition must have had five years, three years and two years respectively of professional engineering experience. Persons who have not completed a full four-year course at a college or university of recognized standing may substitute experience year for year for the education which is lacking, which substitution must be in addition to the five years, 3 years or 2 years experience mentioned. Persons who have had experience on irrigation projects are particularly desired at this time by the various departments of the federal government.

Appointments to these positions are being made from day to day and immediate appointments will be made until the needs of the service are met. An excellent opportunity is afforded qualified persons to be of assistance to the federal government in connection with the national defense program in connection with these positions. Qualified persons are urged to see the secretary of the board of United States civil service examiners at the postoffice immediately and secure the necessary application blanks and forms. Detailed information regarding these positions may also be secured from the secretary at the postoffice.

STAMP NEWS

Hungary and Russia Not on Speaking Terms

NO doubt exists as to Hungary's position in regard to the Russo-German conflict. Shortly after Nazi panzer divisions smashed their way ruthlessly into Soviet territory, Hungary broke off diplomatic relations with the Kremlin.

Interesting sidelight to this action is the fact that Hungary herself, shortly after being set up within her present territorial limits after World War I, embraced a Soviet form of government under Bela Kun for a few months in 1919.

In 1920, however, after the Soviet administration had been succeeded by a short-lived Socialist regime, a regency was set up with Admiral Nicholaus von Horthy elected as regent. The stamp above shows Admiral Horthy on horseback, and was issued by Hungary in 1939, with the surtax set aside for the "Hungary for Hungarians" movement.

With nearly all other racial elements removed after World War I, Hungary has been, for the past 20 years, nearly entirely a Maygar state. Since the inception of World War II, her sympathies for Germany have been clearly evident.

STATE BOARD TO HOLD TESTS FOR LIBRARIANS

Certification examinations for librarians wishing to qualify for administrative positions in public libraries, will be conducted at the state capitol on Saturday morning September 27 at 10 o'clock, it has been announced by J. Newt Ogden, director of the department of occupational standards.

All applications must be filed with the department of occupational standards, state capitol, before the 27th of this month.

The board of library examiners will conduct the examinations, required by state law. James A. McMillen, librarian of the Louisiana State university library, is board chairman; Miss Debora Abramson, assistant executive secretary of the Louisiana library commission, is secretary; and John Hall Jacobs, librarian of the New Orleans public library, is the third member of the board.

BAPTISTS TO ATTEND STATE ENCAMPMENT

Led by Mrs. Clara Seaman, director of the Training union, a group of young people from the First Baptist church will leave here early Monday for Mandeville, near New Orleans, for the annual state Baptist encampment.

They will visit Baton Rouge en route, making the trip by bus.

The encampment will be attended by groups from all important cities of the state and will last for 10 days.

TO WARN TROOPS AWAY FROM CERTAIN POINTS

White cardboard signs displaying the words, "Troops Keep Out," printed in big red letters, will be posted at numerous points in "hazardous areas" in this district during the coming army maneuvers, local army officials said yesterday.

Troops will be warned to watch especially for areas where gas or explosives exist.

WILL HOLD TESTS

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 16.—(Special)—An examination will be held by the department of occupational standards and the state board of examiners of journeymen plumbers in the house of representatives, state capitol, August 23 at 10 a.m., which will be open to all applicants for license as journeymen plumbers who are working in towns of 10,000 population and over.

NEW ANTI-TANK UNITS ORDERED

Will Be Tested In Great Louisiana War Games Next Month

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Organization of three fast-moving new anti-tank groups designed to break through the enemy's advance units and harry and shatter his armored forces before they are prepared for battle has been ordered by the army's general headquarters.

The units, making up a force of about 6,000 men, have been designated provisional GHQ anti-tank groups, and will be tested in the great war games between the second and third armies in Louisiana next month.

Without disclosing details of their composition, the war department said each of the "tank killer" groups would be composed of three battalions, would be fully motorized and would be armed with 37 and 75 millimeter guns.

The intention, the department said, is to develop "tank-shattering gunfire that will be flexible enough to surpass the speed of any armored force and massive enough to defeat it."

"The basic tactical doctrine for these organizations," the announcement continued, "calls for enterprise, speed and offensive action of the most persistent kind. They will not wait for an armored force to attack. Their mission will be to search out such a force and stab at it before it gets into formation for battlefield action."

Nine existing anti-tank units will be combined in the provisional groups. Lieutenant-General Lesley J. McNair, GHQ chief of staff, has directed that Lieutenant-General Walter Krueger, third army commander, select a concentration point at which to begin intensive training before the Louisiana maneuvers.

General McNair, in issuing instructions for creation of the GHQ groups, said that working closely with aircraft and scouting forces, they should locate and keep contact with enemy armored units and take advantage of favorable opportunities to "attack such units with massed gun fire."

If the foe attempts a tank counter-attack or a counter-offensive by dismounted troops, the anti-tank groups should exploit their "superior mobility" to gain a more favorable position and resume gun fire.

Organization of the anti-tank groups was left to General Krueger. Four anti-tank battalions and five field artillery battalions were placed at his disposal.

The anti-tank battalions, made up of about 700 officers and men each, divided into three companies of twelve 37 millimeter guns each, are:

94th anti-tank battalion, IV army corps, third army, Fort Benning, Ga.

101st anti-tank battalion, third army, Fort Benning, Ga.

102nd anti-tank battalion, V army corps, third army, Camp Shelby, Miss.

104th anti-tank battalion, VIII army corps, third army, Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

The field artillery battalions, numbering 675 officers and men each, are equipped with four gun batteries' of 75s, each battery having eight guns. They are:

18th field artillery brigade, VIII army corps, third army, Fort Sill, Okla.

73rd field artillery brigade, V army corps, third army, Camp Shelby, Miss.

DESTRUCTIVE

During the five years after World war I, European typhus is estimated to have taken 2,000,000 lives in eastern Europe. It is non-existent in the United States except in a milder form.

Census figures show that Idaho's population increased from 445,032 in 1930 to 523,440 in 1940.

MONROE MERCHANTS' AUGUST DOLLAR DAY IS BIG SUCCESS

World Staff Photos

Dollar Day Friday was an unqualified success, according to Monroe merchants who participated in the event. Large crowds packed the stores and hundreds came from neighboring towns to take advantage of the unusual values. After the stores closed, a throng gathered on Harrison street where prizes were awarded. The top photo is a general view of the crowd. Second row, left, shows Louis Mathis, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, before the microphone as he presided at the awarding of the prizes. Other pictures show crowds in various stores of the city.

Utter Destruction Of Nazi State Is Joint Aim In War

Steps Taken For Safety In Face Of Axis Dangers Important

By Harold Brayman

WASHINGTON, Aug 16.—(Special)—The Roosevelt-Churchill conference at sea initiates a new phase of British-American collaboration in the war.

The joint war aims announced by the heads of the two governments are aims that can be put into effect only by the complete and utter destruction of the Nazi state. Since these aims are jointly announced, it must be assumed that the means of putting them into effect are jointly supported.

The most immediately important results of the conference are not the decisions as to the future announced in the official communique, but rather are the understandings which have been reached about "the steps which their countries are respectively taking for their safety in the face of these (Axis) dangers."

No announcement is made of these and obviously none could be made. In times like the present, nations do not tell the enemy what they are going to do before they do it. Whatever has been considered and discussed in respect to military, naval and economic moves will develop as times goes on, but that closer cooperation in these ways will occur is regarded as inevitable.

That understandings have been reached about the aid which America will give, and that these understandings involve increased support for Britain and her allies is regarded as almost implicit in the official communique issued.

Any examination of the problem, such as the communique mentioned, could only lead to the conclusion that more American aid was necessary if the complete destruction of the Nazi state is to be brought about.

President Roosevelt is hardly the kind of person who would invite Churchill to meet him at sea, explore the problems of war, reach a conclusion that more aid was needed, and then deny the aid.

Furthermore, the eight-point program of peace aims which were announced were distinctly American peace aims to which Churchill agreed. It is very likely that his agreement to these aims will cause him some political embarrassment in England, where people are angry and at this moment are little concerned that life for the defeated Nazis, when that time comes, should be all sweetness and light.

It is only reasonable to assume, and it is assumed by most persons in Washington, that Churchill agreed to these terms in exchange for Roosevelt's agreement to certain things which Churchill wanted. That such an exchange of agreements took place seems almost suggested in the wording of the White House announcement, and in the immediate arrival here of Lord Beaverbrook, minister of supply of the British government.

But passing over what the communique did not say to what it actually said, the peace aims which are set forth are plainly designed to the subject and conquered peoples of Europe.

To the extent that they do they will probably improve the morale of the common people, not only of unoccupied France but of all the occupied territory. Insofar as these terms permeate to the people of Germany they may, to some extent, undermine morale there. Certainly what is held out to the German people as individuals in these peace aims is better than anything they could hope for, as individuals, under a Hitler domination of Europe.

The eighth point in the program was carefully worded to call for disarmament in the beginning only of those nations "which threaten, or may threaten, aggression outside of their frontiers."

That would presumably mean that Germany, Italy and Japan would be at once disarmed and that disarmament of the other powers would come gradually as "establishment of a wider and permanent system of general security" occurred.

That phrase is interpreted to commit the United States to some satisfactory form of a League of Nations which would be dominated by the Anglo-American world. Any such commitment, however, is naturally contingent upon the working out of a system of collective security which would be satisfactory to the United States.

But the joint statement as such is hardly one to which Churchill and Roosevelt could not have arranged agreement by cable. It was not necessary for them to meet at sea for this purpose. But once having met at sea it was necessary for them to make some statement. The statement of peace aims was a happy solution, but the more vital results will develop later.

President Roosevelt, in initiating this historic meeting between the heads of the British and American governments, took quite a considerable political risk. The isolationists in congress may be expected to say of any action he now takes that he is taking orders from Churchill.

The meeting is likely, in this respect at least, to widen the chasm between the president and the large group in congress which opposes his foreign policy. He is probably due for attack from the isolationists based on insistent demands to know what he has agreed to, and strong denials of his right to commit the United States to any course of action without consultation with congress.

But in general that form of attack will be effective only with those who are already convinced that the isolationists are right.

200 NUDISTS WILL HOLD ANNUAL MEET

STOCKHOLM, N. J., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Two hundred American nudists and special guests from France and Egypt will assemble at nearby Rock Ledge next week-end for an annual session of undressed business and fun dedicated to nudism's five-year plan.

The occasion will be the 10th annual convention of the American Sunbathing Association. Presiding at the mecca of deshabille will be Carl Easton Williams of Cambria, Calif., author and physical culture editor.

The Rev. Dr. Ilsey Boone of Mays Landing, executive secretary of the association, cites the theme of the convention as "Our Five-Year Plan of Progress." Dr. Boone is a retired Baptist minister.

The convention program lists such diversions as informal chats, hikes, games, swimming and "camp capers" as scheduled convention entertainment.

Business to come before the conclave ranges from addresses on "Local Nudist Publicity" and "The Winter Nudist Program" to "The Function of Nudism in Shaping the American Pattern."

VICKSBURG PAINTER DROWNED IN CANAL

VICKSBURG, Miss., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Pete Ballew, 35-year-old painter, was drowned in the Yazoo canal north of here late today, Sheriff Julius Buchanan of Warren country reported.

The sheriff said Ballew, in company with three fellow workers, had been fishing and decided to take a swim. He jumped into the canal but went under before assistance could reach him. His body had not been recovered late tonight.

A brother and two sisters survive.

WATCHERS TO HOLD MEETING TOMORROW

Ex-service men and others who are interested in manning observation posts in West Monroe are urged to attend a meeting to held at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the West Monroe city hall, G. B. Folds, commander of the Burnette-Downs post of the American Legion, announced yesterday.

One post will be located just west of Brownville and the other on the Old Arkansas road.

More aircraft observers, Commander Folds said, are needed to man these two observation posts. "We have some volunteers but not enough. As the posts must be working during the maneuvers beginning Wednesday, there is only a short time left to learn the duties," the commander stated.

All who desire to volunteer for service are asked to contact Commander Folds at Durrett Hardware Company, West Monroe; Russell Woods at Woods Laundry, and persons living in the vicinity of Brownville and Baucomville should see Wilbur Jarrell at the Old Timers Club at the Brown Paper Mill for work at the post west of Brownville.

DEATHS

MRS. IDA STAFFORD

The body of Mrs. Ida Elarbee Stafford, 73, formerly of Monroe, who died at 10 p. m. Friday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. E. Bush, Shreveport, was sent overland yesterday to the Dixie Funeral home here ,and last night was shipped by train to Savannah, Ga.

Services will be held Monday afternoon at the Thomas Hill cemetery at Savannah.

Mrs. Stafford, who formerly lived at 619 Jackson street here, is survived by six daughters, Mrs. M. E. Bush, Shreveport; Mrs. W. D. Johns, Macon, Ga.; Mrs. J. H. McClain, Winchester, Tenn.; Mrs. W. T. Clark, Sylvania, Ga.; Mrs. C. D. Clark, Savannah, and Mrs. C. L. Floyd, Bloomingdale, Ga.; eight sons, P. D. Stafford, Charleston, S. C.; H. P., H. B., and P. E. Stafford, all of Savannah; J. B. Stafford, Claxton, Ga.; L. E. Stafford, Darien, Ga.; A. B. Stafford, Ludowici, Ga., and W. I. Stafford, Hinesville, Ga.

She leaves also 45 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren.

MRS. DOSHIE WALL

Mrs. Doshie Wall, 58, died at her residence, White's Ferry road, at 11:20 o'clock Saturday morning.

She is survived by her husband, Rubin Wall; two sons, Clarence Wall, West Monroe, and Huey Wall, Lake Village, Ark.; a daughter, Mrs. Sarah Mae Brashier, Translyvania, La.; two brothers, Nicholas Thurston and H. W. Thurston, both of Downsville; a sister, Elizabeth Whitington, West Monroe, and 13 grandchildren.

The funeral procession will leave the residence at 10:30 a. m. Sunday for services at Rocky Branch church. Rev. Freeman, pastor of Good Hope Baptist church, will officiate. Burial will follow in Rocky Branch cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Billy Bayles, O. L. Bates, M. R. Harris, M. M. Bayles, Frank Johnson, and Cobb Sawyer.

The Dixie Funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

WILDER RITES TODAY

The funeral of Mrs. Serleter Wilder, 65, residing on the Monroe-Swartz highway, who died at her home Friday, will be held in the Dixie Funeral chapel today at 3 p.m.

Pallbearers will be Alvin Harris, Vernos Griffin, C. C. Brandenburg, Jr., Chester Morgan, Billy Trimble, Jack Trimble, Carl White and M. C. Chase.

Surviving are her husband, William M. Wilder; three sons, G. L. Wilder, Washington, D. C.; Wendel Wilder, West Monroe; and J. Wilder, Corrigan, Tex.; three daughters, Mrs. Ulrich Burkhart, Monroe; Mrs. Gus Lazalier, Corrigan; and Mrs. Lettie Newton, El Dorado, Ark.; a sister, Mrs. James Harris, Hot Springs, Ark.; and a brother, C. C. Brandenburg, Denton, La.

CHURCH OF GOD TO BEGIN TENT MEET HERE TODAY

A tent meeting of the Church of God begins Sunday August 17 at the corner of Hart and Oak streets. Rev. J. A. Causey of Shreveport is the evangelist.

Due to the fact that the piano and seats have been moved from the church at Third and Pine streets, the group also will have Sunday school and Sunday morning worship at the tent.

The meeting will be featured with congregational singing in addition to some solos and quartettes, A. B. Mizell, pastor, said.

NEW ANTI-TANK UNITS ORDERED

Will Be Tested In Great Louisiana War Games Next Month

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Organization of three fast-moving new anti-tank groups designed to break through the enemy's advance units and harry and shatter his armored forces before they are prepared for battle has been ordered by the army's general headquarters.

The units, making up a force of about 6,000 men, have been designated provisional GHQ anti-tank groups, and will be tested in the great war games between the second and third armies in Louisiana next month.

Without disclosing details of their composition, the war department said each of the "tank killer" groups would be composed of three battalions, would be fully motorized and would be armed with 37 and 75 millimeter guns.

The intention, the department said, is to develop "tank-shattering gunfire that will be flexible enough to surpass the speed of any armored force and massive enough to defeat it."

"The basic tactical doctrine for these organizations," the announcement continued, "calls for enterprise, speed and offensive action of the most persistent kind. They will not wait for an armored force to attack. Their mission will be to search out such a force and stab at it before it gets into formation for battlefield action."

Nine existing anti-tank units will be combined in the provisional groups. Lieutenant-General Lesley J. McNair, GHQ chief of staff, has directed that Lieutenant-General Walter Krueger, third army commander, select a concentration point at which to begin intensive training before the Louisiana maneuvers.

General McNair, in issuing instructions for creation of the GHQ groups, said that working closely with aircraft and scouting forces, they should locate and keep contact with enemy armored units and take advantage of favorable opportunities to "attack such units with massed gun fire."

If the foe attempts a tank counter-attack or a counter-offensive by dismounted troops, the anti-tank groups should exploit their "superior mobility" to gain a more favorable position and resume gun fire.

Organization of the anti-tank groups was left to General Krueger. Four anti-tank battalions and five field artillery battalions were placed at his disposal.

The anti-tank battalions, made up of about 700 officers and men each, divided into three companies of twelve 37 millimeter guns each, are:

101st anti-tank battalion, third army, Fort Benning, Ga.

104th anti-tank battalion, VIII army corps, third army, Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

The field artillery battalions, numbering 675 officers and men each, are equipped with four gun batteries of 75s, each battery having eight guns. They are:

18th field artillery brigade, VIII army corps, third army, Fort Sill, Okla.

DESTRUCTIVE

During the five years after World war I, European typhus is estimated to have taken 2,000,000 lives in eastern Europe. It is non-existent in the United States except in a milder form.

Census figures show that Idaho's population increased from 445,032 in 1930 to 523,440 in 1940.

MONROE MERCHANTS' AUGUST DOLLAR DAY IS BIG SUCCESS

World Staff Photos

Dollar Day Friday was an unqualified success, according to Monroe merchants who participated in the event. Large crowds packed the stores and hundreds came from neighboring towns to take advantage of the unusual values. After the stores closed, a throng gathered on Harrison street where prizes were awarded. The top photo is a general view of the crowd. Second row, left, shows Louis Mathis, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, before the microphone as he presided at the awarding of the prizes. Other pictures show crowds in various stores of the city.

Utter Destruction Of Nazi State Is Joint Aim In War

Steps Taken For Safety In Face Of Axis Dangers Important

By Harold Brayman

WASHINGTON, Aug 16.—(Special)—The Roosevelt-Churchill conference at sea initiates a new phase of British-American collaboration in the war.

The joint war aims announced by the heads of the two governments are aims that can be put into effect only by the complete and utter destruction of the Nazi state. Since these aims are jointly announced, it must be assumed that the means of putting them into effect are jointly supported.

The most immediately important results of the conference are not the decisions as to the future announced in the official communique, but rather are the understandings which have been reached about "the steps which their countries are respectively taking for their safety in the face of these (Axis) dangers."

No announcement is made of these and obviously none could be made. In times like the present, nations do not tell the enemy what they are going to do before they do it. Whatever has been considered and discussed in respect to military, naval and economic moves will develop as times goes on, but that closer cooperation in these ways will occur is regarded as inevitable.

That understandings have been reached about the aid which America will give, and that these understandings involve increased support for Britain and her allies is regarded as almost implicit in the official communique issued.

Any examination of the problem, such as the communique mentioned, could only lead to the conclusion that more American aid was necessary if the complete destruction of the Nazi state is to be brought about.

President Roosevelt is hardly the kind of person who would invite Churchill to meet him at sea, explore the problems of war, reach a conclusion that more aid was needed, and then deny the aid.

Furthermore, the eight-point program of peace aims which were announced were distinctly American peace aims to which Churchill agreed. It is very likely that his agreement to these aims will cause him some political embarrassment in England, where people are angry and at this moment are little concerned that life for the defeated Nazis, when that time comes, should be all sweetness and light.

It is only reasonable to assume, and it is assumed by most persons in Washington, that Churchill agreed to these terms in exchange for Roosevelt's agreement to certain things which Churchill wanted. That such an exchange of agreements took place seems almost suggested in the wording of the White House announcement, and in the immediate arrival here of Lord Beaverbrook, minister of supply of the British government.

But passing over what the communique did not say to what it actually said, the peace aims which are set forth are plainly designed to the subject and conquered peoples of Europe.

To the extent that they do they will probably improve the morale of the common people, not only of unoccupied France but of all the occupied territory. Insofar as these terms permeate to the people of Germany they may, to some extent, undermine morale there. Certainly what is held out to the German people as individuals in these peace aims is better than anything they could hope for, as individuals, under a Hitler domination of Europe.

The eighth point in the program was carefully worded to call for disarmament in the beginning only of those nations "which threaten, or may threaten, aggression outside of their frontiers."

That would presumably mean that Germany, Italy and Japan would be at once disarmed and that disarmament of the other powers would come gradually as "establishment of a wider and permanent system of general security" occurred.

That phrase is interpreted to commit the United States to some satisfactory form of a League of Nations which would be dominated by the Anglo-American world. Any such commitment, however, is naturally contingent upon the working out of a system of collective security which would be satisfactory to the United States.

But the joint statement as such is hardly one to which Churchill and Roosevelt could not have arranged agreement by cable. It was not necessary for them to meet at sea for this purpose. But once having met at sea it was necessary for them to make some statement. The statement of peace aims was a happy solution, but the more vital results will develop later.

President Roosevelt, in initiating this historic meeting between the heads of the British and American governments, took quite a considerable political risk. The isolationists in congress may be expected to say of any action he now takes that he is taking orders from Churchill.

The meeting is likely, in this respect at least, to widen the chasm between the president and the large group in congress which opposes his foreign policy. He is probably due for attack from the isolationists based on insistent demands to know what he has agreed to, and strong denials of his right to commit the United States to any course of action without consultation with congress.

But in general that form of attack will be effective only with those who are already convinced that the isolationists are right.

200 NUDISTS WILL HOLD ANNUAL MEET

STOCKHOLM, N. J., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Two hundred American nudists and special guests from France and Egypt will assemble at nearby Rock Ledge next week-end for an annual session of undressed business and fun dedicated to nudism's five-year plan.

The occasion will be the 10th annual convention of the American Sunbathing Association. Presiding at the mecca of deshabille will be Carl Easton Williams of Cambria, Calif., author and physical culture editor.

The Rev. Dr. Ilsey Boone of Mays Landing, executive secretary of the association, cites the theme of the convention as "Our Five-Year Plan of Progress." Dr. Boone is a retired Baptist minister.

The convention program lists such diversions as informal chats, hikes, games, swimming and "camp capers" as scheduled convention entertainment.

Business to come before the conclave ranges from addresses on "Local Nudist Publicity" and "The Winter Nudist Program" to "The Function of Nudism in Shaping the American Pattern."

VICKSBURG PAINTER DROWNED IN CANAL

VICKSBURG, Miss., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Pete Ballew, 35-year-old painter, was drowned in the Yazoo canal north of here late today, Sheriff Julius Buchanan of Warren country reported.

The sheriff said Ballew, in company with three fellow workers, had been fishing and decided to take a swim. He jumped into the canal but went under before assistance could reach him. His body had not been recovered late tonight.

A brother and two sisters survive.

WATCHERS TO HOLD MEETING TOMORROW

Ex-service men and others who are interested in manning observation posts in West Monroe are urged to attend a meeting to held at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the West Monroe city hall, G. B. Folds, commander of the Burnette-Downs post of the American Legion, announced yesterday.

One post will be located just west of Brownville and the other on the Old Arkansas road.

More aircraft observers, Commander Folds said, are needed to man these two observation posts. "We have some volunteers but not enough. As the posts must be working during the maneuvers beginning Wednesday, there is only a short time left to learn the duties," the commander stated.

New System Put Into Operation By State Employment Service

New procedures for the payment of partial employment benefits, effective on August 15, were explained yesterday by A. C. Wilkinson, manager of the Monroe office of the Louisiana State Employment Service. He explained that a worker is partially unemployed when he continues to work for a regular employer, but suffers a loss of earnings because of a reduction made in his working hours below full time. In other words, the employe is not separated from his job but his working hours are cut because of lack of work. However, he would be available for full-time work if his employer needed him. Partial unemployment might perhaps better be called "under-employment," he said.

"Four conditions must be met," Mr. Wilkinson stated:

First: He is working less than his normal full-time hours for his regular employer.

Second: He has a continuous attachment to his regular employer during the period for which he claims partial benefits.

Third: His reduced hours are due to lack of work on his job because the employer is unable to provide full-time work. However, the employe must be available for full-time work if his employer needs him.

Fourth: He must have earned, during the week for which he claims partial benefits, less than his weekly benefit amount for total unemployment.

The employer participates in the initiation of a first claim for partial benefits when workers become potentially eligible for them, Mr. Wilkinson explained. The employer is required to do the following:

First: Immediately after the termination of a pay-period week in which a worker earns less than 60 per cent of his customary full-time weekly wage and not more than $18 the employer must fill out a claim for benefits for partial unemployment.

Second: After the form has been filled in and has been signed by the worker, the employer must either mail or forward it to the nearest office of the Louisiana State Employment Service.

Third: The employer must determine whether or not the worker is available for full-time employment and that the worker is not voluntarily absent from work.

Fourth: If the worker continues to be partially unemployed, the employer is required to submit a report for each week.

The employer is required to verify in connection with claims filed, the amount earned in each claim period and the reason for wage loss, that is whether or not it was due to lack of work, Mr. Wilkinson said.

The employer may keep his pay roll in any manner best suited to his convenience, but they must be kept in such form that it is possible from an inspection to determine: (1) Wages earned in partial claim periods as prescribed by the Louisiana law; (2) Whether any period of partial unemployment claimed by any individual is in fact a claim period of less than full time work; and (3) Time lost by each worker who may be eligible for partial benefits.

The employe should familiarize himself with the new Louisiana procedures concerning partial unemployment benefits, Mr. Wilkinson said. If he believes he is entitled to partial benefits under the law, and if he has not been notified by his employer, he should check with the local state employment office. If his employer has not initiated a claim on his behalf, he should file his claim himself through the local office. In any case, as soon as a claim has been initiated, the worker should do his part in the follow-through process as prescribed by the Louisiana unemployment compensation law, he added.

FUEL RATIONING STIRS GRUMBLING

Service Station Men In Manhattan Think It's Wrong Procedure

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The new gasoline rationing plan inspired grumbling among service station men generally in midtown Manhattan today—but it was just a ray of sunshine to Happy Harry the Hackie.

If there are racket possibilities in a situation, Harry can scent them out. Repeal put him out of the bootlegging business; the pari-mutual machines ruined his once-bustling book-making business; but the recent night-time blackout on gasoline sales has given him enough side money to broaden his grin.

"I carry extra gasoline," he explained. "When some dope gets stalled at night because he runs out of gas, I drive up and sell him two gallons for a dollar. This last week I made more from gas than from fares."

He frowned at first when told that a new plan of gasoline conservation had been put into effect but regained his grin when told that it called for a 10 per cent reduction in deliveries to eastern states and that the service station attendants would see to the rationing themselves.

"That's great," he said. "I get me a bigger business than ever now."

Approximately a million cars operate in New York City daily—the greatest number anywhere in the nation—and consume the largest quantity of fuel.

The owner of a station serving tourists entering the city through Lincoln tunnel said the reduction would not affect him. Based upon July sales, he pointed out, the reduction would mean nothing with the wane of the tourist season.

In general, however, the reverse was true. Of the million cars operated daily in New York, only about 200,000 are transient; and July sales throughout the city are 20 per cent lower than September sales, because many motorists are out of town on vacation.

Thus, operators explained, the cut generally may amount to 30 per cent or more of the fuel normally available.

Charles Moore, president of the West Side Garage Owners association, said of rationing, "This is obviously the wrong procedure, and it will not obtain the required result fairly and justly."

MONROE FIRM IS GIVEN CONTRACT

Salley And Ellis Gets Project For Red River Bank Protection

Salley and Ellis, Monroe contracting firm, has been awarded the contract for the construction of steel fascine boxes to protect the bank of the Red river near the Shreveport municipal airport from erosion. The firm's bid was $103,172.50.

The levee board in awarding the contract reserved the right to reduce the project to 80 per cent if necessary in order that the cost may be met with available funds. At present, only $85,000 has been made available.

Only one other bid was submitted for the work, being that of the M. B. Treadwell Company of Monroe, for $149,136.

Three government agencies are participating in the bearing of the cost of the project. The levee board has provided $25,000, the Shreveport city council $10,000, and the state board of engineers $50,000.

NEGRO WPA RECREATION CENTER IN OPERATION

The colored WPA community recreation center, directed by Mrs. Courland Landreaux and I. G. Penn, chairman of the sponsoring committee, is located in Martin's Temple, corner of 19th and Adams streets. Colored soldiers are welcome at this place.

With a regular daily attendance of children, the program has met with success. New games have been introduced, and hiking parties, competitive games, relays, programs, craft for boys and girls, and many other activities have been added.

Each Wednesday at 7 p.m., adult night is observed. All colored grown people interested are welcome, Ora E. West and Julian Decahur, directors, said yesterday.

An "airscape" is a coined word used to describe a picture taken from an airplane. The word may replace the old term of "bird's-eye view."

Second: He has a continuous attachment to his regular employer during the period for which he claims partial benefits.

Third: His reduced hours are due to lack of work on his job because the employer is unable to provide full-time work. However, the employe must be available for full-time work if his employer needs him.

Fourth: He must have earned, during the week for which he claims partial benefits, less than his weekly benefit amount for total unemployment.

The employer participates in the initiation of a first claim for partial benefits when workers become potentially eligible for them, Mr. Wilkinson explained. The employer is required to do the following:

First: Immediately after the termination of a pay-period week in which a worker earns less than 60 per cent of his customary full-time weekly wage and not more than $18 the employer must fill out a claim for benefits for partial unemployment.

Second: After the form has been filled in and has been signed by the worker, the employer must either mail or forward it to the nearest office of the Louisiana State Employment Service.

Third: The employer must determine whether or not the worker is available for full-time employment and that the worker is not voluntarily absent from work.

Fourth: If the worker continues to be partially unemployed, the employer is required to submit a report for each week.

The employer is required to verify in connection with claims filed, the amount earned in each claim period and the reason for wage loss, that is whether or not it was due to lack of work, Mr. Wilkinson said.

The employer may keep his pay roll in any manner best suited to his convenience, but they must be kept in such form that it is possible from an inspection to determine: (1) Wages earned in partial claim periods as prescribed by the Louisiana law; (2) Whether any period of partial unemployment claimed by any individual is in fact a claim period of less than full time work; and (3) Time lost by each worker who may be eligible for partial benefits.

The employe should familiarize himself with the new Louisiana procedures concerning partial unemployment benefits, Mr. Wilkinson said. If he believes he is entitled to partial benefits under the law, and if he has not been notified by his employer, he should check with the local state employment office. If his employer has not initiated a claim on his behalf, he should file his claim himself through the local office. In any case, as soon as a claim has been initiated, the worker should do his part in the follow-through process as prescribed by the Louisiana unemployment compensation law, he added.

FUEL RATIONING STIRS GRUMBLING

Service Station Men In Manhattan Think It's Wrong Procedure

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The new gasoline rationing plan inspired grumbling among service station men generally in midtown Manhattan today—but it was just a ray of sunshine to Happy Harry the Hackie.

If there are racket possibilities in a situation, Harry can scent them out. Repeal put him out of the bootlegging business; the parimutuel machines ruined his once-bustling book-making business; but the recent night-time blackout on gasoline sales has given him enough side money to broaden his grin.

"I carry extra gasoline," he explained. "When some dope gets stalled at night because he runs out of gas, I drive up and sell him two gallons for a dollar. This last week I made more from gas than from fares."

He frowned at first when told that a new plan of gasoline conservation had been put into effect but regained his grin when told that it called for an 18 per cent reduction in deliveries to eastern states and that the service station attendants would see to the rationing themselves.

"That's great," he said. "I get me a bigger business than ever now."

Approximately a million cars operate in New York City daily—the greatest number anywhere in the nation—and consume the largest quantity of fuel.

The owner of a station serving tourists entering the city through Lincoln tunnel said the reduction would not affect him. Based upon July sales, he pointed out, the reduction would mean nothing with the wane of the tourist season.

In general, however, the reverse was true. Of the million cars operated daily in New York, only about 200,000 are transient; and July sales throughout the city are 20 per cent lower than September sales, because many motorists are out of town on vacation.

Thus, operators explained, the cut generally may amount to 30 per cent or more of the fuel normally available.

Charles Moore, president of the West Side Garage Owners association, said of rationing. "This is obviously the wrong procedure, and it will not obtain the required result fairly and justly."

MONROE FIRM IS GIVEN CONTRACT

Salley And Ellis Gets Project For Red River Bank Protection

Salley and Ellis, Monroe contracting firm, has been awarded the contract for the construction of steel fascine mats to protect the bank of the Red river near the Shreveport municipal airport from erosion. The firm's bid was $103,172.50.

The levee board in awarding the contract reserved the right to reduce the project to $0 per cent if necessary in order that the cost may be met with available funds. At present, only $85,000 has been made available.

Only one other bid was submitted for the work, being that of the M. B. Treadwell Company of Monroe, for $149,536.

Three government agencies are participating in the bearing of the cost of the project. The levee board has provided $25,000, the Shreveport city council $10,000, and the state board of engineers $50,000.

NEGRO WPA RECREATION CENTER IN OPERATION

The colored WPA community recreation center, directed by Mrs. Courland Landreaux and J. G. Penn, chairman of the sponsoring committee, is located in Martin's Temple, corner of 19th and Adams streets. Colored soldiers are welcome at this place.

With a regular daily attendance of children, the program has met with success. New games have been introduced, and hiking parties, competitive games, relays, programs, craft for boys and girls, and many other activities have been added.

Each Wednesday at 7 p.m. adult night is observed. All colored grown people interested are welcome, Ora E. West and Julian Decahur, directors, said yesterday.

SECRET VOYAGE

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER VII

Monday morning Jim Mallory returned to the company's base and got things moving. He wanted to sail Wednesday. He was in a hurry, his haste due to the knowledge that others besides himself were interested in the Sonora.

He had the diving equipment moved aboard the Aurora, his chief boat, and put Curly Bates below to check over the Diesels. Blacksheep, the big Cayman, was to provision the ship.

The Aurora was 110 feet of boat; 20 years ago she had been a pleasure yacht, then had fallen into a period of disrepute. During the late twenties she had been a rum-runner, and during the depression a fishing craft. Jim Mallory had bought her for a song four years ago, after she had run hard aground near Key West. There would have to be hands hired to augment the crew, and Jim was being careful about that. He sought men he knew and could trust.

Jeffery Hammond came to the landing Tuesday afternoon, boarded the Aurora, looked about in his worried way and asked a lot of questions about the diving gear. Explaining, Jim saw that Hammond listened with avant attention. The man seemed burdened with trouble.

He said, just before going ashore to his car, "Radio me when you've completed the preliminary work, Mallory, and I'll send the carrier to take the ore aboard."

"I'll keep in touch with you, of course."

"I may take a cruise on my yacht later on, and see how the job is progressing. Lois wants to come out and see how divers work."

"I'll be glad to see you both, sir."

Hammond went, frowning for a moment, and Jim had the impression that there was something on his mind which he wanted to say. But he merely nodded then, and went ashore.

Later that afternoon, Mary Larsen came aboard. Jim was up in the chartroom, idly laying out a course, when she appeared in the doorway. He was surprised, then suspicious, but soon how he was pleased.

He said, "Well, come in!" And watched her step over the coaming, enter and stand in the center of the cabin room. Sunlight

Bareheaded, and in low-heeled sandals, she looked small and very young. She wore a green tailored dress with a row of globular white buttons all the way down the front. Her smile was a little shy.

She said, "I know I'm not welcome. Or am I?"

"It all depends on your purpose in coming."

"I have several. One is, I wanted to tell you how right you were about Eric Forbes. He is trying to get back to the New York office. He's going back tomorrow, by plane, and he expects me to accompany him."

"And you're going?"

"I don't know yet." She gave him an oblique glance, then looked away. "His offer is rather attractive. He wants me to be his private secretary. It's a good job, more money, and Mr. Forbes is rather attractive—don't you think?"

Jim said, "Does it matter what I think?" He was surprised by his gruffness. This made him sore. Forbes was putting one over on her, and she was falling for him. "What was another of your reasons for coming here?"

"Sunday you promised to tell me if you had found Bert Halloran's cigaret case when you went down to the Sonora. You didn't get around to it. Will you tell me now?"

"Why should I bother? You wouldn't believe me."

"Maybe I wouldn't at that."

She walked about the room, stopped and looked at the charts. Jim watched her. He saw the smile on her lips and, particularly, uneasiness in her eyes.

He said, "Listen, is it in your mind that if I didn't drop that cigaret case the man who did was Bert Halloran?"

She didn't answer, but she turned her face fully from him.

"You told me he was the Sonora's first mate, and the mate along with the captain was last when the Sonora went down."

"Then someone else got the case off the ship—if you're telling the truth."

"Not necessarily. The thing could have come into another man's hands in a number of ways. One of the crew might have stolen it. Halloran may have lost it to someone in a poker game."

"You may be right." Mary said, turning to him. "Bert did like to play poker." She walked past him toward the door, halted there and faced him again. "Well, goodby, Spike. Knowing you was pleasant, if not much fun."

He dropped his cigaret, stepped it out, stepped to her. He stood close but he did not touch her.

"I haven't much money now," he said, "but I will have some day. I'm not as tough as I seem, but I am steadfast. Does that interest you?"

Her eyes met his; they were amused. "Why should it interest me?"

"It will be a good deal for walking out on Eric Forbes."

"Did I say I was quitting a reason for walking out on him?"

Pice face turned darkly intent. "So you have fallen for him," he said. "You won't believe he merely wants you where he can watch you, so you won't spill what you know about this mysterious Sonora business."

"And did I say I have fallen for him?" she asked.

He touched her then. He took her in his arms and bent and kissed her mouth. He had wondered days ago what she would be like to kiss, and it was everything he had expected and a lot more. The moment it took was unfamiliar ecstacy. It had a stunning impact.

He said then, still holding her, "You'll not go with Forbes!"

"Not if you don't want me to, Jim."

"You know I dont want you to. You know this is on the level, don't you? You know that I'm in love with you?"

"How much in love with me?" she asked, her eyes searching his face. "Enough to tell me about the Sonora? All about the Sonora?"

It was like a blow, a hard blow to the face. Jim reeled a little, releasing her and stepping back. He stared, seeing how luminously bright her eyes were and the way her lips curled in a smile.

"Well, I'm a sucker," he said; he almost yelled it. "You baited a trap with your lips, and I stepped right into it. Sure, sure! But I'm stepping right back out of it!"

"But, Jim darling—"

He turned his back. "Get out. Get out before I lose my temper. I might call you cheap, but I'm beginning to think the stakes in this are pretty steep. Get out. Get off this ship."

"Very well, Jim," she said, her voice dry and cold. He didn't move until he was sure she was gone from the ship.

He went down to deck then, rage still burning in him. He felt like hitting something, or someone, and hitting hard. Then he saw a man coming up the gangplank from the pier. It was the tall, lean man of the carefull voice; the man who had offered the bribes.

Jim went up to him. "What do you want, mister?"

STRESSES HIS FIGHT TO MODERNIZE ARMY

ABERDEEN, Miss., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Congrman Ross Collins continued to stress his fight to modernize the American army in an address today in his campaign for United States senator from this district's 3rd section.

"Wars are fought today," he said, "by machines and men in machines. Long before Hitler came into power I knew that a great conflict was coming and I began trying to prepare our army for the mechanized monsters that were to come.

"We're in the fighting zone today. We have a million and a half men in training camps; we have nearly a million men in the navy and marine corps. We have modern, mechanized equipment for only a fraction of the number of soldiers in training. It would be nothing but mass murder to permit those men to go into battle against modern high-speed tanks and heavily armored war planes. Khaki shirts cannot stop machine gun bullets. Wishful thinking cannot stop high-speed tanks."

Collins also spoke Saturday at Tupelo and Pipelo. He goes to northwest Mississippi next week, opening Monday at Batesville, Senatobia and Oxford.

TWO NEGROES CHARGED WITH HIGHWAY ROBBERY

Arrested by local police early yesterday morning, two young negroes, Robert Allen and Robert Lucas, were being held in the city jail yesterday on a charge of highway robbery after they allegedly assaulted W. E. Burke, 305 South Second street, Friday night and robbed him of $32 and his watch.

Burke identified the pair as the ones who robbed him and said one of them knocked him in the head with a club and took his money and watch, police reported. The alleged assault and theft occurred on Adams street, it was said.

Officers who searched the two negroes said they found $3.50 and a watch, which Burke identified as his own, in Allen's pockets and $30 hidden in his shoe.

"How much in love with me?" she asked, her eyes searching his face. "Enough to tell me about the Sonora? All about the Sonora?"

It was like a blow, a hard blow to the face. Jim reeled a little, releasing her and stepping back. He stared, seeing how luminously bright her eyes were and the way her lips curled in a smile.

"Well, I'm a sucker," he said; he almost yelled it. "You baited a trap with your lips, and I stepped right into it. Sure, sure! But I'm stepping right back out of it!"

"But, Jim darling—!"

He turned his back. "Get out. Get out before I lose my temper. I might call you cheap, but I'm beginning to think the stakes in this are pretty steep. Get out. Get off this ship!"

"Very well, Jim," she said, her voice dry and cold. He didn't move until he was sure she was gone from the boat.

He went down to deck then, rage still burning in him. He felt like hitting something, or someone, and hitting hard. Then he saw a man coming up the gangplank from the pier. It was the tall, lean man of the careful voice; the man who had offered the bribes.

Jim went up to him. "What do you want, mister?"

STRESSES HIS FIGHT TO MODERNIZE ARMY

ABERDEEN, Miss., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Congressman Ross Collins continued to stress his fight to modernize the American army in an address today in his campaign for United States senator in the September 23 election.

"Wars are fought today," he said, "by machines and men in machines. Long before Hitler came into power I knew that a great conflict was coming, and I began trying to prepare our army for the mechanized monsters that were to come.

"We're in the fighting zone today. We have a million and a half men in training camps; we have nearly a million men in the navy and marine corps. We have modern, mechanized equipment for only a fraction of the number of soldiers in training. It would be nothing but mass murder to permit those men to go into battle against modern high-speed tanks and heavily armored war planes. Khaki shirts cannot stop machine gun bullets. Wishful thinking cannot stop high-speed tanks."

Collins also spoke Saturday at Pontotoc and Tupelo. He goes to northwest Mississippi next week, opening Monday at Batesville, Senatobia and Hernando.

TWO NEGROES CHARGED WITH HIGHWAY ROBBERY

Arrested by local police early yesterday morning, two young negroes, Robert Allen and Robert Estus, were being held in the city jail yesterday on a charge of highway robbery after they allegedly assaulted W. E. Burke, 505 South Second street, Friday night and robbed him of $52 and his watch.

Burke identified the pair as the ones who robbed him and said one of them knocked him in the head with a club and took his money and watch, police reported. The alleged assault and theft occurred on Adams street, it was said.

Officers who searched the two negroes said they found $10.50 and a watch, which Burke identified as his own, in Allen's pockets and $30 hidden in his shoe.

REDS PREPARING FOR LONG CLASH

Sortavala, ... city north of Lake Ladoga.

While the fighting raged, the Russians were preparing for a long-drawn war with the Nazis.

Premier Joseph Stalin accepted the suggestion of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill for an early conference in Moscow of Russian, American and British officials to work out a general aid program.

President Roosevelt, returning from his sea conference with British Prime Minister Churchill, disclosed at Rockland, Me., the far reaching character of the talks by saying there was not a single continent, not a single section of a continent that was not discussed, and made plain his confidence Russian resistance will continue through the winter.

Russia needs material for next summer's campaign, he said.

He and Churchill were in complete agreement on all aspects of the war situation, he said, but he did not think the conference had brought United States intervention closer.

The Russian press acclaimed the Roosevelt-Churchill eight-point statement of war aims, and in Russia generally there was a feeling that the pooling of resources of all three nations was implied in the diplomatic exchanges.

The British Royal air force spent Saturday in repeated attacks on the French coast, bombing rail communications used by the Germans.

Air war also continued in the Mediterranean, where the British said their planes hit three of five Italian merchant ships and a destroyer in a convoy and believed that the destroyer and two of the merchantmen were sunk near Tripoli, Libya.

The R. A. F. also reported blasting railways and supplies in Sicilian harbors while navy bombers attacked Sicilian airdromes.

The Italians admitted many deaths in the raids.

The Royal Netherlands government in exile announced that one of its submarines had sunk a 5,000-ton supply ship and a 1,000-ton sailing ship in the Mediterranean.

The German high command reported its bombers had destroyed three British ships in British waters and raided the British outpost at Tobruk, Libya.

ship and a sailing ship of 1,000 tons in the Mediterranean.

R. A. F. and heavy bombers teamed up for an assault which raked harbors and airdromes of Sicily from end to end, a communique said.

Trucks, railway tracks and stores were blown up when heavy bombers blasted the neighboring harbors of Catania and Augusta at the eastern end of the island, the communique said, while navy bombers attacked nearby Gerbini airdrome and the air field at Trapani on the western end of the island.

Many were killed and injured in the Catania attack, the Italian high command said, but "the population's behavior was disciplined."

Three of the British planes attacking the convoy near Tripoli were shot down, the Italian said.

In the Culquabert mountain pass defenses of Gondar in Ethiopia, the Italian communique said, the defenders made a brilliant thrust deep into British lines, inflicting considerable casualties and capturing war material.

Another heavy air bombardment of Gondar was reported, while the Italian air force made a new attack on Malta.

Out of 35,000 cases considered by England's enemy alien tribunals, only 348 have been interned.

JAPAN WILL NOT ALLOW PICK-UP

at some Japanese port, will now proceed direct to the United States without calling at Japan.

The state department said that efforts were also being made to arrange transportation facilities for Americans in other "danger spots."

DON'T THINK JAPAN WILL FORCE CONFLICT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Belief grew in informed diplomatic quarters tonight that Japan would not force an extension of the European war into the Pacific by military action against Thailand, or an attack on Siberia.

At the same time, events were regarded as pushing the Tokyo government to an early decision for war or peace and one authority on the Far East predicted a show-down within 10 days.

Peace could be maintained, it was said, if Japan would halt her southeastward expansion and maintain the staus quo. But if Japan invades Thailand, gateway to Singapore and the rich Dutch and British oil, rubber and tin territories beyond, or Siberia, it was predicted the Far East would burst into war from Vladivostok to Australia.

Among developments believed giving Japan reason to pause were the conferences of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill—authoritatively reported to have included discussions of Japan's threat to American, British, Dutch and Russian interests in the Pacific even though that subject was not mentioned in their official joint statement.

President Roosevelt told newspapermen upon landing at Rockland, Maine, today that he and Churchill were in complete agreement on all aspects of the war situation, but that he did not think that the United States was any closer to entering the conflict because of their unprecedented conferences on the high seas.

In informed quarters that statement was interpreted as meaning the president believed the unmistakable warnings given Japan would cause the Tokyo government to reconsider its policy of armed expansion and thereby avoid a showdown.

FAILS TO CUT AWAY FROM DEAD HORSE

BROADUS, Mont., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The slow death which overtook John Edwin Robinson, 64, while he tried vainly to hack his way free with a pocketknife after being pinned to earth by his fatally injured horse was reported today by Coroner Marvin Amick.

Dr. Amick told this story, pieced together from a gruesome find made late Friday by Robinson's half-brother George and neighboring ranchers:

Robinson set out Thursday afternoon to trace some horses on his property.

His horse stumbled, threw Robinson some distance, then somersaulted, landing on top of the rancher. The horse's neck was broken. Robinson suffered a broken leg.

Robinson unloosed his lasso from the saddle and roped sagebrush in the immediate area, trying to pull himself away. In some manner, he obtained a heavy stick, cut a hole through the horse and attached his rope, pulling until the rope broke.

As a final effort he apparently was trying to hac kthe horse in two with a pocketknife when he lost consciousness.

The coroner estimated Robinson had been dead about 18 hours when found.

New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Cotton fluctuated indecisively today.

The list advanced at the outset on trade and mill demand then yielded all its gains under New Orleans selling and light hedge offerings but closed higher.

Losses at one time ranged to 50 cents a bale but a rally came in the last few minutes on buying based on indications of further rains over the week-end in the southeastern belt.

Futures closed 1 to 4 higher.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Scattered favorites managed to make moderate recovery headway in today's stock market but the buying track still was too muddy for either speed or distance.

While selling dried up at the start, bidding was of a decidedly timid character and, at the close of the brief ceremonies, fractional gains and losses were seen in most departments.

The two-hour turnover of around 100,000 shares was one of the smallest for the past year and compared with 321,110 last Saturday.

Sortavala, [illegible] city north of Lake Ladoga.

While the fighting raged, the Russians were preparing for a long-drawn war with the Nazis.

Premier Joseph Stalin accepted the suggestion of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill for an early conference in Moscow of Russian, American and British officials to work out a general aid program.

President Roosevelt, returning from his sea conference with British Prime Minister Churchill, disclosed at Rockland, Me., the far reaching character of the talks by saying there was not a single continent, not a single section of a continent that was not discussed, and made plain his confidence Russian resistance will continue through the winter.

Russia needs material for next summer's campaign, he said.

He and Churchill were in complete agreement on all aspects of the war situation, he said, but he did not think the conference had brought United States intervention closer.

The Russian press acclaimed the Roosevelt-Churchill eight-point statement of war aims, and in Russia generally there was a feeling that the pooling of resources of all three nations was implied in the diplomatic exchanges.

The British Royal air force spent Saturday in repeated attacks on the French coast, bombing rail communications used by the Germans.

Air war also continued in the Mediterranean, where the British said their planes hit three of five Italian merchant ships and a destroyer in a convoy and believed that the destroyer and two of the merchantmen were sunk near Tripoli, Libya.

The R. A. F. also reported blasting railways and supplies in Sicilian harbors while navy bombers attacked Sicilian airdromes.

The Italians admitted many deaths in the raids.

The Royal Netherlands government in exile announced that one of its submarines had sunk a 5,000-ton supply ship and a 1,000-ton sailing ship in the Mediterranean.

The German high command reported its bombers had destroyed three British ships in British waters and raided th British outpost at Tobruk, Libya.

ship and a sailing ship of 1,000 tons in the Mediterranean.

R. A. F. and heavy bombers teamed up for an assault which raked harbors and airdromes of Sicily from end to end, a communique said.

Trucks, railway tracks and stores were blown up when heavy bombers blasted the neighboring harbors of Catania and Augusta at the eastern end of the island, the communique said, while navy bombers attacked nearby Gerbini airdrome and the air field at Trapani on the western end of the island.

Many were killed and injured in the Catania attack, the Italian high command said, but "the population's behavior was disciplined."

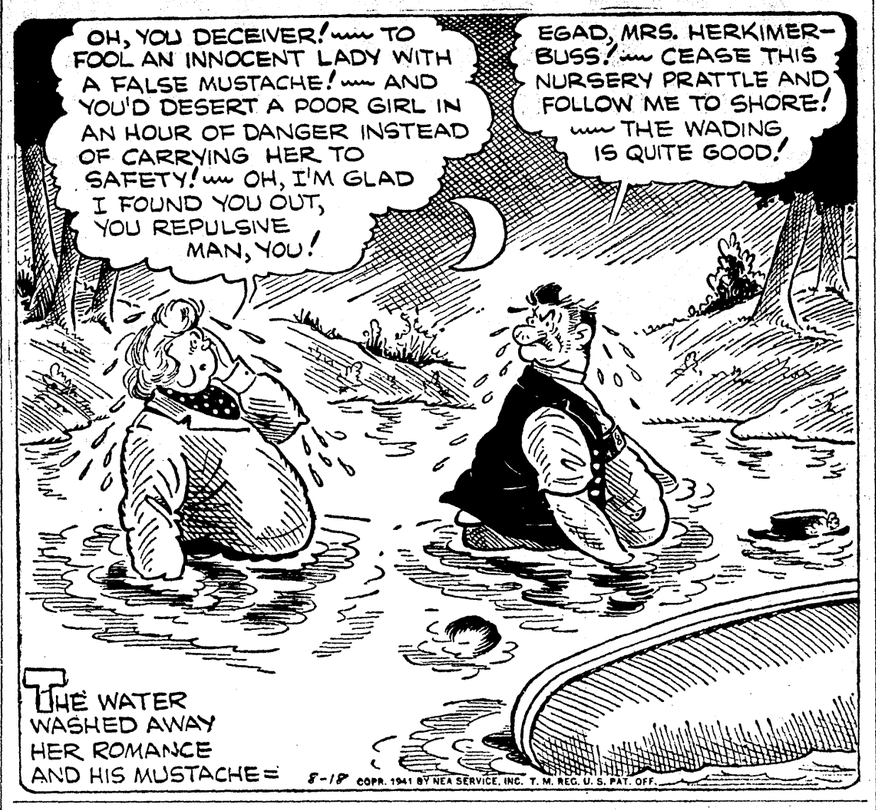

Three of the British planes attacking the convoy near Tripoli were shot down, the Italian said.

In the Culquabert mountain pass defenses of Gondar in Ethiopia, the Italian communique said, the defenders made a brilliant thrust deep into British lines, inflicting considerable casualties and capturing war material.

Another heavy air bombardment of Gondar was reported, while the Italian air force made a new attack on Malta.

Out of 35,000 cases considered by England's enemy alien tribunals, only 548 have been interned.

at some Japanese port, will now proceed direct to the United States without calling at Japan.

The state department said that efforts were also being made to arrange transportation facilities for Americans in other "danger spots."

DON'T THINK JAPAN WILL FORCE CONFLICT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Belief grew in informed diplomatic quarters tonight that Japan would not force an extension of the European war into the Pacific by military action against Thailand, or an attack on Siberia.

At the same time, events were regarded as pushing the Tokyo government to an early decision for war or peace and one authority on the Far East predicted a show-down within 10 days.

Peace could be maintained, it was said, if Japan would halt her southeastward expansion and maintain the staus quo. But if Japan invades Thailand, gateway to Singapore and the rich Dutch and British oil, rubber and tin territories beyond, or Siberia, it was predicted the Far East would burst into war from Vladivostok to Australia.

Among developments believed giving Japan reason to pause were the conferences of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill—authoritatively reported to have included discussions of Japan's threat to American, British, Dutch and Russian interests in the Pacific even though that subject was not mentioned in their official joint statement.

President Roosevelt told newspapermen upon landing at Rockland, Maine, today that he and Churchill were in complete agreement on all aspects of the war situation, but that he did not think that the United States was any closer to entering the conflict because of their unprecedented conferences on the high seas.

In informed quarters that statement was interpreted as meaning the president believed the unmistakable warnings given Japan would cause the Tokyo government to reconsider its policy of armed expansion and thereby avoid a showdown.

FAILS TO CUT AWAY FROM DEAD HORSE

BROADUS, Mont., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The slow death which overtook John Edwin Robinson, 64, while he tried vainly to hack his way free with a pocketknife after being pinned to earth by his fatally injured horse was reported today by Coroner Marvin Amick.

Dr. Amick told this story, pieced together from a gruesome find made late Friday by Robinson's half-brother George and neighboring ranchers:

Robinson set out Thursday afternoon to trace some horses on his property.

His horse stumbled, threw Robinson some distance, then somersaulted, landing on top of the rancher. The horse's neck was broken. Robinson suffered a broken leg.

Robinson unloosed his lasso from the saddle and roped sagebrush in the immediate area, trying to pull himself away. In some manner, he obtained a heavy stick, cut a hole through the horse and attached his rope, pulling until the rope broke.

As a final effort he apparently was trying to hac kthe horse in two with a pocketknife when he lost consciousness.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Scattered favorites managed to make moderate recovery headway in today's stock market but the buying track still was too muddy for either speed or distance.

While selling dried up at the start, bidding was of a decidedly timid character and, at the close of the brief ceremonies, fractional gains and losses were seen in most departments.

The two-hour turnover of around 100,000 shares was one of the smallest for the past year and compared with 321,110 last Saturday.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Wheat prices tried to advance further early today but ran into profit taking, hedging sales and adjustment of accounts selling that weakened the market, causing quotations to skid downward as much as a cent a bushel. Corn and other grains also declined.

EL DORADO BEATS SOX, 4 TO 3, IN 12 INNINGS

MONROE BATTERS FAIL IN PINCHES IN EARLY STAGES

Double Header With Oilers Starts At 2:15 Today At Casino Park

The El Dorado Oilers, continuing their role of "giant-killer" of the Cotton States league, battled the Monroe White Sox for twelve innings here last night before handing the league leaders their second straight defeat, 4 to 3, in a rousing battle.

It was the first game of the season to go beyond the nine-inning route at Casino park, and two hits, an error and an outfield fly gave the Oilers victory in the twelfth frame.

Will Reeder, lanky Monroe right-hander, pitched the entire game, giving up twelve hits, fanning fourteen and walking only four. Sam Taunton started for El Dorado, fanned five, walked five and gave up three hits before he was relieved in the third by Bob Snider, the winning hurler, who went the rest of the route, allowing seven hits, walking four and whiffing seven.

El Dorado took a two-run lead in the second inning, but the Sox knotted the count in the third and took a one run lead in the fourth. The Oilers managed to tie the score at 3 and 3 in the seventh and the game then picked up speed as the pitchers began to bear down in the heat of battle, sending the game on into the extra innings.

Woody Head, first up for El Dorado in the twelfth, singled. Manager Sam Hancock bunted safely, but Reeder, fielding the ball, threw past Medak at first, allowing Head to go to third and putting Hancock on second. Ben Hale flied out to Englehorn in right field, but Head came home with the winning run after the catch.

The Sox failure to hit in the pinches in the earlier stages of the game was chiefly responsible for their loss. On three occasions, the third, fourth and eighth innings, the Sox went down with the bases loaded. A total of 15 Monroe runners were left stranded. The Oilers had 14 left on.

A pair of doubles by Hancock and Hale followed by Charlie Zachritz' single gave the Oilers two runs in the second inning.

Monroe tied the score in the third. Joe Eagar walked and went to third on Jimmy Keith's single. Dave Philley doubled against the right field fence, scoring Eagar and putting Keith on third. A double by Joe Dooley scored Keith.

Then in the third, after two were out, the Sox took a one run lead. Keith drew a base on balls and went to second on Dale Englehorn's infield hit. A single by Philley scored Keith.

The Oilers tied the score for the last time in the seventh after Earl Mayence hit a hot single through short. John Taylor was safe when Eagar booted his grounder and Mayence went to third. Head forced Tay-

TWIN BILL TODAY

Monroe and El Dorado will tangle in two games at Casino park today, with the opener of the double header slated for 2:15 p.m.

Manager Doug Taitt said he would start Verne Williamson in the opener and Ted Hoemann in the nightcap. Both are righthanders. Manager Hancock of the Oilers said Graham, a newcomer to the El Dorado staff, would hurl the first game but added that he was undecided on his starter in the second contest. Graham is a southpaw.

The Oilers and White Sox wind up their series with a single game Monday night. It also marks the end of the Monroe club's home stand.

'Appreciation Night' Is Set At Casino Park On Monday

Fans Will Be Admitted To Game At Reduced Rates, Officials Announce

As a means of expressing their appreciation for the support baseball enthusiasts of Monroe have given the White Sox during their 1941 campaign, officials of the Monroe club have designated tomorrow night's series final with the El Dorado Oilers as "Appreciation Night" and the fans will be admitted at cut-rate prices.

"Despite some bad nights earlier in the season that put a strain on the club's financial standing, the support given the club as a whole has been gratifying," Walter Kellogg, club treasurer, said last night. "The group of business men who took charge of the White Sox organization this season did so only with the idea of keeping baseball here on a non-profit basis.

"So far the club has been about able to keep up its end of the expenses, thanks to the fans, and we want as many as possible to be out for the Monday night celebration."

The only assessments the fans will have to pay Monday will be the usual service tax and league fee. Adults will be admitted for 20 cents, children for 10 cents, and negroes for 15 cents.

Dave Philley, Monroe's stellar outfielder who was sold several days ago by the Shreveport Sports to the Chicago White Sox, is expected to make his final appearance here in the Monday game. Philley has been called in by the Sports and is due to report to Shreveport not later than Wednesday.

Joe Dooley, sent here from Waterloo, Ia., to take Philley's place, has already been holding down Philley's left field position while Philley is working in center during the absence of Bob Hill who suffered sunstroke at El Dorado a week ago. Hill has been under the club physician's care since, but it was reported last night that the stellar outfielder would begin working out again today or tomorrow and be ready for play sometime this week.

There are only nineteen more days before the end of the Cotton States schedule and the beginning of the championship games. As soon as the Sox finish their campaign, Manager Doug Taitt plans to launch a baseball school for all talent of this area.

Skipper Taitt will personally conduct the school and hopes to uncover more talent for use in the White Sox camp next season. Requirements for entering the school will be announced soon.

Although the Sox at the present are leading the Cotton States league they still have a tough schedule ahead before concluding their regular games. After the present El Dorado schedule they go to Texarkana for three and possibly four games as a postponed game is still pending between the Twins and Sox, and then move over to Marshall for three games.

After that only the first division club will be in the Sox' way and anything can happen in games with Greenville, Helena and Vicksburg. The Sox owe the Buckshots seven games, five regularly scheduled, one postponed and a tie game that must be played over. Only two games remain to be played with Helena's Seaporters and then there are four games on tap with the Vicksburg Hill Billies.

After tomorrow's engagement with El Dorado the locals hit the road and won't be back until the following Monday when they meet the Greenville Buckshots. Club officials, with the cooperation of Monroe and West Monroe merchants, will award an automobile to some fan on the first night of the Greenville invasion. After the Greenville series the Sox will leave again and return September 4 for a single game, their last of the regular schedule, with Vicksburg.

Although Monroe holds a fairly comfortable lead and is already considered a sure shot for the title games, the race is still close, with Vicksburg, Hot Springs, Greenville and Helena closely bunched behind the Sox. Even the Texarkana Twins are still in the race, being only half a dozen games out of the first division. El Dorado, however, would have to win just about every one of its remaining games to stand a chance of breaking into the upper class and only a miracle could help the Oilers. Marshall is definitely beyond playoff hopes.

WILLIAMS TOPS LOOP WITH .405

Joe DiMaggio Leading League In Doubles And Runs Batted In

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The leading batters in the American league this week are spaced enough that no close battles for positions are evident until the No. 5 spot is considered.

Ted Williams of Boston, still rolling merrily on, stands far atop the field with his .405. Thirty-eight points back is Cecil Travis of Washington with .367. Five points back of Travis is Joe DiMaggio of New York with .362. Dick Siebert of Philadelphia is another 10 behind Joe with .352. But beyond that, it's a free for all.

Bunched within three points of each other are Roy Cullenbine of St. Louis, with .339; Jeff Heath of Cleveland, with .338, and Sam Chapman of Philadelphia, with .336.

After that there's a gap between the averages again. Joe Cronin of Boston is nine points below Chapman with .327. Barney McCosky of Detroit has a .323 average and Taft Wright of Chicago, only new member this week in the top ten, has a .318 mark.

Through Friday's games Joe DiMaggio was the only American league batter to hold more than one leadership in the various specialty departments. He has the most doubles, 36, and the most runs batted in, 112. Otherwise Travis leads in triples with 13, Charley Keller of New York in home runs with 29 and George Case of Washington in stolen bases with 19.

Charley Ruffing's position as the league's top pitcher was improved during the week as the big Yankee right-hander turned in his 13th victory. He has lost only four games. Bobby Feller of Cleveland, the only hurler with 20 victories, has been stopped nine times. Feller, however, is still tops in strikeouts, with 209.

Boston's team batting leadership was boosted by three points during the week to .283, while Cleveland's team fielding edge remained at .977. New York's double-play total is the league's most impressive—138, which is 12 better than a week ago.

UNSUNG HOOSIER TEAM VIRTUALLY SEWS UP CROWN

By Fritz Littlejohn

HIGH POINT, N. C., Aug. 16.—(AP)—A Hoosier team from Indianapolis, so overlooked in the early predictions that nobody bothered to take pictures of its stars, all but sewed up the National Women's A. A. U. swimming championship today with a story-book comeback that swept three of four events and piled up a team total of 34 points.

And the happiest man on the place was 33-year-old Charles Lawrence (Bud) Sawin, coaching the Indianapolis Riviera Club for the first year, but a familiar figure in the Nationals. He won last year with the Lakeside Club of Louisville, Ky., before returning to his home town to take over the Riviera Club.

Four events were run today and four meet records fell, along with three American marks.

Gloria Callen, the Nyack, N. Y., high school girl with the magazine cover face and figure, kept her 100-meter backstroke crown with a performance that erased the last of Eleanor Holm Rose's marks from the record books. Glorious Gloria's time of 1 minute, 17.5 seconds clipped .7 second off the mark set by Miss Holm in 1936.

But the story today was the unsung Hoosier team. Betty Bemis climaxed the day's record-smashing by doing the 400-meters in 5 minutes, 23.7 seconds to beat out Nancy Merki of the second-place Portland, Ore., team representing the Multnomah Club.

Miss Merki set the old American and A. A. U. mark of 5:29.6 in 1939.

Betty Aspinal set a new meet mark in winning the 200-meter breast stroke for Indianapolis. She did the distance in 3 minutes, 14.9 seconds to dethrone Fujiro Katsutani and break the little Hawaiian's mark of 3:16.1 set in 1939. Miss Katsutani came the 10,000 miles from her home in Maui island, T. H., but became ill and was unable to defend her laurels.

The Indianapolis outfit had sounded a hint of what was to come in the opening event, the 800-meter relay. Miss Bemis, teamed with Joan Fogle, Mary Ann Walter and Ann Hardin, snatched the lead from the Portlanders by beating Miss Merki in a tense stretch drive that converted a four-length deficit into a four-length margin at the finish. The flying legs of the pretty little unknown drove the team to an American mark of 10 minutes, 30.7 seconds, beating the old mark held by the Washington A. C. of Seattle since 1936.

FRESHMEN LEAD IN SENIOR LOOP

Johnny Hopp Of The Cardinals Takes Over Top Spot With .332

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Rookies almost never win big league batting championships, but the way the freshmen have been passing around the National league hitting leadership in recent weeks it appears one of them will capture the honor this year.

In the past three weeks Nick Etten of the Phillies, Pete Reiser of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Johnny Hopp of the St. Louis Cardinals have rotated on the top rung of the batting ladder and they still have the first three places between them.

Hopp's average dropped seven points to .332 this week, but he took over first place anyway because Reiser slumped from .340 to .328.

Etten also slipped from .331 to .325, stopping just a notch above the Cardinals' Johnny Mize, who had .324.

The other leading hitters, for games played before Saturday, included John Cooney, Boston, 322; Joe Medwick, Brooklyn .316; Dixie Walker, Brooklyn .316; Stan Hack, Chicago .313; Enos Slaughter, St. Louis .312; and Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh .312.

Dolph Camilli of Brooklyn hit three homers to stay n front of the home-run parade at 23, although Mel Ott of the Giants and Bill Nicholson of the Cubs kept right on his heels with two apiece for a second-place tie at 21.

Mize remained the leading run producer with 87 batted in, five more than Nicholson.

Hack has scored the most runs, 80, one more than Reiser and Terry The broken shoulder Slaughter returned in total hits, however, with Moore in front at 136 and Hack second with 135. Reiser has hit the most two-baggers, 33, while Hopp and Slaughter are tied for triples at nine. The broken shoulder Slaughter received last Sunday probably has knocked him out of the batting competition for the remainder of the campaign.

Lonnie Frey of Cincinnati still paces Lee Handley of Pittsburgh in stolen bases, 13 to 12, and Elmer Riddle of the Reds has held onto the pitching leadership with a record of 12-2, just a percentage jump ahead of the 14-3 of Ernie White of St. Louis.

Mac Givens Joins Ouachita High Lions Coaching Staff

Will Assist Mentor Mack Avants; Hopefuls Will Report Tomorrow

For the first time in the history of Ouachita Parish High school, the Lions will have an alumnus on their coaching staff when they go into training here tomorrow for their 1941 campaign which opens September 12 against the Ruston Bearcats.

Mac Givens, who graduated from Ouachita in 1931 after three seasons on local gridirons, has been named assistant to Coach Mack Avants who is beginning his second season as head coach, it was announced yesterday.

Givens, who played a season with the Bastrop Rams before entering Ouachita in 1928, was a member of the last combined Ouachita and city school system team and played center on the first two Lion aggregations after the local high schools began putting separate elevens on the gridirons of Louisiana.

The former Ouachita center, who succeeds Wiltz Ott who resigned to accept a civil service position in Mississippi, is a graduate of Southwestern of Memphis. He was line coach at Memphis Tech in 1935, later coached at Morrilton, Ark., and for the past three seasons coached at Smackover, Ark. His 1940 Smackover team went through an eleven game schedule undefeated.

A squad of 36 candidates is expected to report to Coaches Avants and Givens tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock for the initial workout. Drills will be conducted twice daily at Northeast Junior college until the opening of the season.

One of the Lions' best additions for the season is Jack Johnson, a newcomer from Baton Rouge. The 195-pound halfback made the All-State team as a member of the Baton Rouge High school eleven last year and Ouachita expects him to do a world of good toward making the locals a Class AA title contender.

Outstanding lettermen returning are Sam McInnis and "Sonny" Foreman, tackles; Wayne Doss, guard; Herbert Pace, fullback; Hoyt Moncrief, quarterback; Cullen Kirby and Burren Sikes, ends.

Others due to report are Wilford Rogers, Randall Brown, Bill Hatten, Rudy Eason and James Spillers, tackles; Charles Cain, James Foster and Billy Riphorn, guards; J. S. Robinson, Fred Gulledge and Nalda Gilmore, centers; Percy Pace and Larry Bennett, fullbacks; Orville Barnes and Emmett Otwell, quarterbacks; Paul Cook, Curtis Hall, James Brown, J. M. McBeth, Dan Pickens, Robert Tull, Jerry Gregg, Malcolm Stone and Junior Mears, halfbacks; and DeWitt Benton, Paul Cottingham, Melvyn Lambert and Bobby Kilpatrick, ends.

The Ruston Bearcats, recently turned Class AA, are on the Ouachita schedule for the first time since 1934 when the Lincoln parish eleven won a 14 to 7 victory over the locals. The game will be played here.

The Minden Crimson Tide is back on schedule for the September 19 date here, and then the Lions go to Homer on September 26.

Smackover, Ark., replaced Clarks on the schedule for October 3, here, and them the locals got to Magnolia, Ark., on October 10. The October 17 date is open.

The Haynesville Golden Tornado will be met at Haynesville on October 31, and then the Lions will have another open date, November 7, before taking on the Byrd Yellow Jackets on November 14, and Bolton's Bears here November 20. The engagement with Byrd has not been definitely setiled, however.

Money To Burn

Joe Engel To Pay $100 For Marrow's Scoreless Innings

ATLANTA, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Not many Sundays ago the Atlanta Crackers were handed a double setback by a veteran Chattanooga hurler by the name of Buck Marrow.

He's going to try the "iron man" stunt again Sunday, August 24, and Joe Engel, Chattanooga president who says he "has money to burn," is going to make it a possible profitable occasion for Flinger Marrow.

Down here for the day to make plans for the occasion, Joshing Joe said he would give Marrow a crisp $100 bill for every scoreless inning he pitches against the league-leading Crackers.

Engel said he would occupy a front row box seat at Ponce de Leon park and Marrow would be presented each century note in full view of the crowd. "He will visit my box after each scoreless inning," Engel announced.

"I am also considering," Engel went on, "giving away a few bucks to deserving Atlanta box seat holders. Some of them may have had a tough season, too."

in both ends of a doubleheader at

When Marrow defeated the Crackers Chattanooga recently, he pitched 15 scoreless innings and allowed a total of six hits. The scores were 5 to 0 and 10 to 1. Such a performance, at Engel's latest evaluation, would have netted him $1,500.

"I hope he pitches two shutouts against those Crackers next Sunday," Engel boasted. "I have money (Clark Griffith's?) to burn."

Chattanooga opens its final series with Atlanta next Friday. Four games are scheduled. Engel said the only reason that he would not have Marrow hurl all four games was that he "wants to give the Crackers a chance."

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(Morning World Special News Service)—The lowdown on all the beanings the Dodgers have suffered lately is that other clubs have been switching signals on 'em but the Brooks went right on swiping the old ones. . . . That's what happened when the Braves' Dick Errickson nicked three. Catcher Ray Berres continued to give his old signs but it was Errickson who was signalling what he would throw. . . . Dick Bartell says the biggest change he noticed after a year's absence from the National league was that almost every pitcher had picked up an extra pitch. . . . Southern golfers are hollering that the 340-yard hole-in-one that William A. Freene made at Rye (N. Y.) the other day would be just a putt down in their part of the country. A fellow named Cardwell sank a 425-yard ace at Winston-Salem, N. C., a few years back. . . . When Lou Nova checked in at Doc Bier's training camp, Abe Simon packed up and left because "he didn't want to train with somebody who was so recently an invalid."

To make it tougher on sports writers, who were just learning to call him "the eminent zoologist," Dick Harlow, the Harvard coach, has switched his hobby from birds' eggs to ferns, so now he's a pteridologist. . . . Eddie Walker, the fight manager, lays 'em in the aisles with a story about how he took Henry Armstrong to London when Henry's hands were so sore he had to take violent ray treatments every day. . . . And General Phelan, the boxing commissioner head, protested to a local columnist: "I don't speak double talk. I don't even understand it."

WHIRLAWAY WINS TRAVERS STAKES

Warren Wright's Kentucky Flier Makes Detractors Eat Their Words

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Whirlaway made his detractors eat their words today.

After two mediocre efforts, Warren Wright's Kentucky flier spotted two other rivals 18 pounds and 13 lengths in the 72nd running of the historic Travers Stakes, and then high-balled right past them in the gooey mud of Saratoga's stretch to win the nation's oldest horse race in a common gallop.

He did it the hard way, with a record crowd of 24,131 looking on, and with his victory made it quite an afternoon for Owner Wright and Trainer Ben Jones.

Before Whirly picked up the $16,900 pay check for his work in the Travers his stablemate, Mar-Kell, captured the 50th running of the Spinaway Stakes for two-year-old fillies, thereby ending the unbeaten record of Al Vanderbilt's Petrify, who finished third. This one aded $8,125 to the Wright bankroll.

Going into today's race, there were all kinds of prophets around the SPA foreseeing the end of the remarkable record Whirlaway has piled up since he charged to the head of the three-year-olds in the Kentucky Derby. He had won the triple crown and, with today's success, had boosted his earnings to $275,636 for two years of racing.

But he lost the Arlington Classic to Attention three weeks ago, and he barely beat War Relic here just ten days back.

Attention wasn't on hand today. He was back in the barn with an ailing leg.

BARONS WIN TWO

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Birmingham's Barons unleashed a bombardment of home runs today to turn back the Knoxville Smokies in both ends of a double header, 10 to 4 and 3 to 2.

With the Barons trailing, 5 to 4, in the seventh inning of the first match Hank Auer drove out a four bagger to score Dutch Mele ahead of him. Roland Van Harrington followed with another homer and Lee Gamble later came through with the third circuit clout of the inning with Earl Harrist on base.

Score by innings:

First Game

CHICKS EVEN SERIES

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Memphis Chicks evened the series at one-all today by inching a 3-2 win over the Chattanooga Lookouts. Although touched for 11 hits, Southpaw Wimpy Willis pitched a steady game, bearing down in the pinches.

Chattanooga	011	000	000	—	2	11	0

Polli, Miller and Lewis; Willis and Smith.

PHILS DOWN PELS

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Frank Kerr's slicing double down the right field line with the bases full in the eighth inning was the blow that enabled New Orleans to take the opening game of the series with Nashville today, 7 to 4.

FOOT ITCH
ATHLETE'S FOOT

RELIEF GUARANTEED OR MONEY BACK

According to the Government Health Bulletin No. E-28, at least 50% of the adult population of the United States are being attacked by the disease known as Athlete's Foot.

Usually the disease starts between the toes. Little watery blisters form, and the skin cracks and peels. After a while, the itching becomes intense, and you feel as though you would like to scratch off all the skin.

Beware of It Spreading

Often the disease travels all over the bottom of the feet. The soles of your feet become red and swollen. The skin also cracks and peels, and the itching becomes worse and worse.

Get relief from this disease as quickly as possible because it is both contagious and infectious and it may go to your hands or even to the under arm or crotch of the legs.

Why Take Chances?

The germ that causes the disease is known as Tinea Trichophyton. It buries itself deep in the tissues of the skin and is very hard to kill. A test made shows it takes 15 minutes of boiling to destroy the germ, whereas, upon contact, laboratory tests show that H. F. will kill the germ Tinea Trichophyton within 15 seconds.

H. F. was developed solely for the purpose of relieving Athlete's Foot. It is a liquid that penetrates and dries quickly. You just paint the affected parts. H. F. gently peels the skin, which enables it to get to parasites existing under the outer cuticle.

Itching Often Relieved Quickly

As soon as you apply H. F. you may find that the itching is relieved. You should paint the infected part with H. F. night and morning until your feet are better. Usually this takes from three to ten days.

H. F. should leave the skin soft and smooth. You may marvel at the quick way it brings you relief.

Don't wait for Athlete's Foot to become serious. Get H. F. today.

Double Header With Oilers Starts At 2:15 Today At Casino Park

The El Dorado Oilers, continuing their role of "giant-killer" of the Cotton States league, battled the Monroe White Sox for twelve innings here last night before handing the league leaders their second straight defeat, 4 to 3, in a rousing battle.

It was the first game of the season to go beyond the nine-inning route at Casino park, and two hits, an error and an outfield fly gave the Oilers victory in the twelfth frame.

Will Reeder, lanky Monroe right-hander, pitched the entire game, giving up twelve hits, fanning fourteen and walking only four. Sam Taunton started for El Dorado, fanned five, walked five and gave up three hits before he was relieved in the third by Bob Snider, the winning hurler, who went the rest of the route, allowing seven hits, walking four and whiffing seven.

El Dorado took a two-run lead in the second inning, but the Sox knotted the count in the third and took a one run lead in the fourth. The Oilers managed to tie the score at 3 and 3 in the seventh and the game then picked up speed as the pitchers began to bear down in the heat of battle, sending the game on into the extra innings.

Woody Head, first up for El Dorado in the twelfth, singled. Manager Sam Hancock bunted safely, but Reeder, fielding the ball, threw past Medak at first, allowing Head to go to third and putting Hancock on second. Ben Hale flied out to Englehorn in right field, but Head came home with the winning run after the catch.

The Sox failure to hit in the pinches in the earlier stages of the game was chiefly responsible for their loss. On three occasions, the third, fourth and eighth innings, the Sox went down with the bases loaded. A total of 15 Monroe runners were left stranded. The Oilers had 14 left on.

A pair of doubles by Hancock and Hale followed by Charlie Zachritz' single gave the Oilers two runs in the second inning.

Monroe tied the score in the third. Joe Eagar walked and went to third on Jimmy Keith's single. Dave Philley doubled against the right field fence, scoring Eagar and putting Keith on third. A double by Joe Dooley scored Keith.

Then in the third, after two were out, the Sox took a one run lead. Keith drew a base on balls and went to second on Dale Englehorn's infield hit. A single by Philley scored Keith.

The Oilers tied the score for the last time in the seventh after Earl Mayence hit a hot single through short. John Taylor was safe when Eagar booted his grounder and Mayence went to third. Head forced Tay-

TWIN BILL TODAY

Monroe and El Dorado will tangle in two games at Casino park today, with the opener of the double header slated for 2:15 p.m.

Manager Doug Taitt said he would start Verne Williamson in the opener and Ted Hoemann in the nightcap. Both are righthanders. Manager Hancock of the Oilers said Graham, a newcomer to the El Dorado staff, would hurl the first game but added that he was undecided on his starter in the second contest. Graham is a southpaw.

The Oilers and White Sox wind up their series with a single game Monday night. It also marks the end of the Monroe club's home stand.

Fans Will Be Admitted To Game At Reduced Rates, Officials Announce

As a means of expressing their appreciation for the support baseball enthusiasts of Monroe have given the White Sox during their 1941 campaign, officials of the Monroe club have designated tomorrow night's series final with the El Dorado Oilers as "Appreciation Night" and the fans will be admitted at cut-rate prices.

"Despite some bad nights earlier in the season that put a strain on the club's financial standing, the support given the club as a whole has been gratifying," Walter Kellogg, club treasurer, said last night. "The group of business men who took charge of the White Sox organization this season did so only with the idea of keeping baseball here on a non-profit basis.

"So far the club has been about able to keep up its end of the expenses, thanks to the fans, and we want as many as possible to be out for the Monday night celebration."

The only assessments the fans will have to pay Monday will be the usual service tax and league fee. Adults will be admitted for 20 cents, children for 10 cents, and negroes for 15 cents.

Dave Philley, Monroe's stellar outfielder who was sold several days ago by the Shreveport Sports to the Chicago White Sox, is expected to make his final appearance here in the Monday game. Philley has been called in by the Sports and is due to report to Shreveport not later than Wednesday.

Joe Dooley, sent here from Waterloo, Ia., to take Philley's place, has already been holding down Philley's left field position while Philley is working in center during the absence of Bob Hill who suffered sunstroke at El Dorado a week ago. Hill has been under the club physician's care since, but it was reported last night that the stellar outfielder would begin working out again today or tomorrow and be ready for play sometime this week.

There are only nineteen more days before the end of the Cotton States schedule and the beginning of the championship games. As soon as the Sox finish their campaign, Manager Doug Taitt plans to launch a baseball school for all talent of this area.

Skipper Taitt will personally conduct the school and hopes to uncover more talent for use in the White Sox camp next season. Requirements for entering the school will be announced soon.

Although the Sox at the present are leading the Cotton States league they still have a tough schedule ahead before concluding their regular games. After the present El Dorado schedule they go to Texarkana for three and possibly four games as a postponed game is still pending between the Twins and Sox, and then move over to Marshall for three games.

After that only the first division club will be in the Sox' way and anything can happen in games with Greenville, Helena and Vicksburg. The Sox owe the Buckshots seven games, five regularly scheduled, one postponed and a tie game that must be played over. Only two games remain to be played with Helena's Seaporters and then there are four games on tap with the Vicksburg Hill Billies.

After tomorrow's engagement with El Dorado the locals hit the road and won't be back until the following Monday when they meet the Greenville Buckshots. Club officials, with the cooperation of Monroe and West Monroe merchants, will award an automobile to some fan on the first night of the Greenville invasion. After the Greenville series the Sox will leave again and return September 4 for a single game, their last of the regular schedule, with Vicksburg.

Although Monroe holds a fairly comfortable lead and is already considered a sure shot for the title games, the race is still close, with Vicksburg, Hot Springs, Greenville and Helena closely bunched behind the Sox. Even the Texarkana Twins are still in the race, being only half a dozen games out of the first division. El Dorado, however, would have to win just about every one of its remaining games to stand a chance of breaking into the upper class and only a miracle could help the Oilers. Marshall is definitely beyond playoff hopes.

WILLIAMS TOPS LOOP WITH .405

Joe DiMaggio Leading League In Doubles And Runs Batted In

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The leading batters in the American league this week are spaced enough that no close battles for positions are evident until the No. 5 spot is considered.

Ted Williams of Boston, still rolling merrily on, stands far atop the field with his .405. Thirty-eight points back is Cecil Travis of Washington with .367. Five points back of Travis is Joe DiMaggio of New York with .362. Dick Siebert of Philadelphia is another 10 behind Joe with .352. But beyond that, it's a free for all.

Bunched within three points of each other are Roy Cullenbine of St. Louis, with .339; Jeff Heath of Cleveland, with .338, and Sam Chapman of Philadelphia, with .336.

After that there's a gap between the averages again. Joe Cronin of Boston is nine points below Chapman with .327. Barney McCosky of Detroit has a .323 average and Taft Wright of Chicago, only new member this week in the top ten, has a .318 mark.

Through Friday's games Joe DiMaggio was the only American league batter to hold more than one leadership in the various specialty departments. He has the most doubles, 36, and the most runs batted in, 112. Otherwise Travis leads in triples with 13, Charley Keller of New York in home runs with 29 and George Case of Washington in stolen bases with 19.

Charley Ruffing's position as the league's top pitcher was improved during the week as the big Yankee right-hander turned in his 13th victory. He has lost only four games. Bobby Feller of Cleveland, the only hurler with 20 victories, has been stopped nine times. Feller, however, is still tops in strikeouts, with 209.

Boston's team batting leadership was boosted by three points during the week to .283, while Cleveland's team fielding edge remained at .977. New York's double-play total is the league's most impressive—138, which is 12 better than a week ago.

UNSUNG HOOSIER TEAM VIRTUALLY SEWS UP CROWN

By Fritz Littlejohn

HIGH POINT, N. C., Aug. 16.—(AP)—A Hoosier team from Indianapolis, so overlooked in the early predictions that nobody bothered to take pictures of its stars, all but sewed up the National Women's A. A. U. swimming championship today with a story-book comeback that swept three of four events and piled up a team total of 34 points.

And the happiest man on the place was 33-year-old Charles Lawrence (Bud) Sawin, coaching the Indianapolis Riviera Club for the first year, but a familiar figure in the Nationals. He won last year with the Lakeside Club of Louisville, Ky., before returning to his home town to take over the Riviera Club.

Four events were run today and four meet records fell, along with three American marks.

Gloria Callen, the Nyack, N. Y., high school girl with the magazine cover face and figure, kept her 100-meter backstroke crown with a performance that erased the last of Eleanor Holm Rose's marks from the record books. Glorious Gloria's time of 1 minute, 17.5 seconds clipped .7 second off the mark set by Miss Holm in 1936.

But the story today was the unsung Hoosier team. Betty Bemis climaxed the day's record-smashing by doing the 400-meters in 5 minutes, 23.7 seconds to beat out Nancy Merki of the second-place Portland, Ore., team representing the Multnomah Club.

Miss Merki set the old American and A. A. U. mark of 5:29.6 in 1939.

Betty Aspinal set a new meet mark in winning the 200-meter breast stroke for Indianapolis. She did the distance in 3 minutes, 14.9 seconds to dethrone Fujiro Katsutani and break the little Hawaiian's mark of 3:16.1 set in 1939. Miss Katsutani came the 10,000 miles from her home in Maui island, T. H., but became ill and was unable to defend her laurels.

The Indianapolis outfit had sounded a hint of what was to come in the opening event, the 800-meter relay. Miss Bemis, teamed with Joan Fogle, Mary Ann Walter and Ann Hardin, snatched the lead from the Portlanders by beating Miss Merki in a tense stretch drive that converted a four-length deficit into a four-length margin at the finish. The flying legs of the pretty little unknown drove the team to an American mark of 10 minutes, 30.7 seconds, beating the old mark held by the Washington A. C. of Seattle since 1936.

FRESHMEN LEAD IN SENIOR LOOP

Johnny Hopp Of The Cardinals Takes Over Top Spot With .332

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Rookies almost never win big league batting championships, but the way the freshmen have been passing around the National league hitting leadership in recent weeks it appears one of them will capture the honor this year.

In the past three weeks Nick Etten of the Phillies, Pete Reiser of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Johnny Hopp of the St. Louis Cardinals have rotated on the top rung of the batting ladder and they still have the first three places between them.

Hopp's average dropped seven points to .332 this week, but he took over first place anyway because Reiser slumped from .340 to .328.

The other leading hitters, for games played before Saturday, included John Cooney, Boston, .322; Joe Medwick, Brooklyn .316; Dixie Walker, Brooklyn .316; Stan Hack, Chicago .313; Enos Slaughter, St. Louis .312; and Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh .312.

Dolph Camilli of Brooklyn hit three homers to stay in front of the home-run parade at 23, although Mel Ott of the Giants and Bill Nicholson of the Cubs kept right on his heels with two apiece for a second-place tie at 21.

Mize remained the leading run producer with 87 batted in, five more than Nicholson.

Hack has scored the most runs, 80, one more than Reiser and Terry The broken shoulder Slaughter returned in total hits, however, with Moore in front at 136 and Hack second with 135. Reiser has hit the most two-baggers, 33, while Hopp and Slaughter are tied for triples at nine. The broken shoulder Slaughter received last Sunday probably has knocked him out of the batting competition for the remainder of the campaign.

Lonnie Frey of Cincinnati still paces Lee Handley of Pittsburgh in stolen bases, 13 to 12, and Elmer Riddle of the Reds has held onto the pitching leadership with a record of 12-2, just a percentage jump ahead of the 14-3 of Ernie White of St. Louis.

Mac Givens Joins Ouachita High Lions Coaching Staff

Will Assist Mentor Mack Avants; Hopefuls Will Report Tomorrow

For the first time in the history of Ouachita Parish High school, the Lions will have an alumnus on their coaching staff when they go into training here tomorrow for their 1941 campaign which opens September 12 against the Ruston Bearcats.

Mac Givens, who graduated from Ouachita in 1931 after three seasons on local gridirons, has been named assistant to Coach Mack Avants who is beginning his second season as head coach, it was announced yesterday.

Givens, who played a season with the Bastrop Rams before entering Ouachita in 1928, was a member of the last combined Ouachita and city school system team and played center on the first two Lion aggregations after the local high schools began putting separate elevens on the gridirons of Louisiana.

The former Ouachita center, who succeeds Wiltz Ott who resigned to accept a civil service position in Mississippi, is a graduate of Southwestern of Memphis. He was line coach at Memphis Tech in 1935, later coached at Morrilton, Ark., and for the past three seasons coached at Smackover, Ark. His 1940 Smackover team went through an eleven game schedule undefeated.

A squad of 36 candidates is expected to report to Coaches Avants and Givens tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock for the initial workout. Drills will be conducted twice daily at Northeast Junior college until the opening of the season.

One of the Lions' best additions for the season is Jack Johnson, a newcomer from Baton Rouge. The 195-pound halfback made the All-State team as a member of the Baton Rouge High school eleven last year and Ouachita expects him to do a world of good toward making the locals a Class AA title contender.

Outstanding lettermen returning are Sam McInnis and "Sonny" Foreman, tackles; Wayne Doss, guard; Herbert Pace, fullback; Hoyt Moncrief, quarterback; Cullen Kirby and Burren Sikes, ends.

Others due to report are Wilford Rogers, Randall Brown, Bill Hatten, Rudy Eason and James Spillers, tackles; Charles Cain, James Foster and Billy Riphorn, guards; J. S. Robinson, Fred Gulledge and Nalda Gilmore, centers; Percy Pace and Larry Bennett, fullbacks; Orville Barnes and Emmett Otwell, quarterbacks; Paul Cook, Curtis Hall, James Brown, J. M. McBeth, Dan Pickens, Robert Tull, Jerry Gregg, Malcolm Stone and Junior Mears, halfbacks; and DeWitt Benton, Paul Cottingham, Melvyn Lambert and Bobby Kilpatrick, ends.

The Ruston Bearcats, recently turned Class AA, are on the Ouachita schedule for the first time since 1934 when the Lincoln parish eleven won a 14 to 7 victory over the locals. The game will be played here.

The Minden Crimson Tide is back on schedule for the September 19 date here, and then the Lions go to Homer on September 26.

Smackover, Ark., replaced Clarks on the schedule for October 3, here, and them the locals got to Magnolia, Ark., on October 10. The October 17 date is open.

The Haynesville Golden Tornado will be met at Haynesville on October 31, and then the Lions will have another open date, November 7, before taking on the Byrd Yellow Jackets on November 14, and Bolton's Bears here November 20. The engagement with Byrd has not been definitely settled, however.

Money To Burn

Joe Engel To Pay $100 For Marrow's Scoreless Innings

ATLANTA, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Not many Sundays ago the Atlanta Crackers were handed a double setback by a veteran Chattanooga hurler by the name of Buck Marrow.

He's going to try the "iron man" stunt again Sunday, August 24, and Joe Engel, Chattanooga president who says he "has money to burn," is going to make it a possible profitable occasion for Flinger Marrow.

Down here for the day to make plans for the occasion, Joshing Joe said he would give Marrow a crisp $100 bill for every scoreless inning he pitches against the league-leading Crackers.

Engel said he would occupy a front row box seat at Ponce de Leon park and Marrow would be presented each century note in full view of the crowd. "He will visit my box after each scoreless inning," Engel announced.

"I am also considering," Engel went on, "giving away a few bucks to deserving Atlanta box seat holders. Some of them may have had a tough season, too."

in both ends of a doubleheader at

When Marrow defeated the Crackers Chattanooga recently, he pitched 15 scoreless innings and allowed a total of six hits. The scores were 5 to 0 and 10 to 1. Such a performance, at Engel's latest evaluation, would have netted him $1,500.

"I hope he pitches two shutouts against those Crackers next Sunday," Engel boasted. "I have money (Clark Griffith's?) to burn."

Chattanooga opens its final series with Atlanta next Friday. Four games are scheduled. Engel said the only reason that he would not have Marrow hurl all four games was that he "wants to give the Crackers a chance."

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(Morning World Special News Service)—The lowdown on all the beanings the Dodgers have suffered lately is that other clubs have been switching signals on 'em but the Brooks went right on swiping the old ones. . . . That's what happened when the Braves' Dick Errickson nicked three. Catcher Ray Berres continued to give his old signs but it was Errickson who was signalling what he would throw. . . . Dick Bartell says the biggest change he noticed after a year's absence from the National league was that almost every pitcher had picked up an extra pitch. . . . Southern golfers are hollering that the 340-yard hole-in-one that William A. Freene made at Rye (N. Y.) the other day would be just a putt down in their part of the country. A fellow named Cardwell sank a 425-yard ace at Winston-Salem, N. C., a few years back. . . . WHIRLAWAY WINS TRAVERS STAKES

After two mediocre efforts, Warren Wright's Kentucky flier spotted two other rivals 18 pounds and 13 lengths in the 72nd running of the historic Travers Stakes, and then high-balled right past them in the gooey mud of Saratoga's stretch to win the nation's oldest horse race in a common gallop.

He did it the hard way, with a record crowd of 24,131 looking on, and with his victory made it quite an afternoon for Owner Wright and Trainer Ben Jones.

Before Whirly picked up the $16,900 pay check for his work in the Travers his stablemate, Mar-Kell, captured the 50th running of the Spinaway Stakes for two-year-old fillies, thereby ending the unbeaten record of Al Vanderbilt's Petrify, who finished third. This one aded $8,125 to the Wright bankroll.

Going into today's race, there were all kinds of prophets around the SPA foreseeing the end of the remarkable record Whirlaway has piled up since he charged to the head of the three-year-olds in the Kentucky Derby. He had won the triple crown and, with today's success, had boosted his earnings to $275,636 for two years of racing.

But he lost the Arlington Classic to Attention three weeks ago, and he barely beat War Relic here just ten days back.

Attention wasn't on hand today. He was back in the barn with an ailing leg.

BARONS WIN TWO

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Birmingham's Barons unleashed a bombardment of home runs today to turn back the Knoxville Smokies in both ends of a double header, 10 to 5 and 3 to 2.

With the Barons trailing, 5 to 4, in the seventh inning of the first game, Hank Auer drove out a four bagger to score Dutch Mele ahead of him. Roland Van Harrington followed with another homer and Lee Gamble later came through with the third circuit clout of the inning with Earl Harrist on base.

FOOT ITCH
ATHLETE'S FOOT

RELIEF GUARANTEED OR MONEY BACK

According to the Government Health Bulletin No. E-28, at least 50% of the adult population of the United States are being attacked by the disease known as Athlete's Foot.

Usually the disease starts between the toes. Little watery blisters form, and the skin cracks and peels. After a while, the itching becomes intense, and you feel as though you would like to scratch off all the skin.

Beware of It Spreading

Often the disease travels all over the bottom of the feet. The soles of your feet become red and swollen. The skin also cracks and peels, and the itching becomes worse and worse.

Get relief from this disease as quickly as possible because it is both contagious and infectious and it may go to your hands or even to the under arm or crotch of the legs.

Why Take Chances?

The germ that causes the disease is known as Tinea Trichophyton. It buries itself deep in the tissues of the skin and is very hard to kill. A test made shows it takes 15 minutes of boiling to destroy the germ, whereas, upon contact, laboratory tests show that H. F. will kill the germ Tinea Trichophyton within 15 seconds.

H. F. was developed solely for the purpose of relieving Athlete's Foot. It is a liquid that penetrates and dries quickly. You just paint the affected parts. H. F. gently peels the skin, which enables it to get to parasites existing under the outer cuticle.

Itching Often Relieved Quickly

As soon as you apply H. F. you may find that the itching is relieved. You should paint the infected part with H. F. night and morning until your feet are better. Usually this takes from three to ten days.

H. F. should leave the skin soft and smooth. You may marvel at the quick way it brings you relief.

Don't wait for Athlete's Foot to become serious. Get H. F. today.

BOSTON BRAVES BEAT BROOKLYN DODGERS, 4 TO 1

Cincinnati Reds Make It Four In A Row Over Chicago Cubs, 4 To 1

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A three-run rally, launched by Ernie White's wild throw on Frankie Gustine's squeeze bunt, gave the Pittsburgh Pirates three runs in the eighth inning and a 4-to-2 win over the Cards today.

The defeat ended White's eight-game winning streak and cost St. Louis a chance to improve its first place lead to one and one-half games over the Dodgers, who lost to the Braves. The Corsairs saved themselves a drop into fourth place as the Reds won.

Going into the eighth, White held a 2-to-1 lead and appeared headed for victory No. 9. With one out, Van Robays beat out a hit over second and hustled to third when Fletcher singled to right. Gustine bunted the ball a little to the left of White. The Card southpaw picked up the ball but threw wild past Mancuso, Van Robays and Fletcher scoring and Gustine legging it to third. Vince DiMaggio's third hit of the day, a single to left, brought Gustine home.

The Cards nicked Ken Heintzelman for two runs in the second innings, although the first tally was unearned. Anderson fumbled Triplett's grounder and Brown walked. Marion's bunt loaded the bases and Mancuso's single sent in one run. Fletcher took White's foul in short right as Brown tallied.

DiMaggio knocked his 14th homer of the season far over the left field fence in the second inning for the Pirates.

GIANTS BEAT PHILS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Babe Young and Billy Jurges paced a 15-hit attack on four Philadelphia pitchers today to help the New York Giants to a 4-1 victory over the National league's cellar-residents.

Young and Jurges got three hits apiece, and each man figured in the Giants' two scoring innings. In the first Mel Ott drove in Johnny Rucker with the 401st double of his career, and scored on Young's single to center.

Young led off the third with an infield hit, was held at second on Harry Danning's single, and then was out trying to score on Joe Moore's hit to right. But successive singles by Jurges and Burgess Whitehead sent Danning and Moore over the plate.

Johnny Huttig, breaking a personal five-game losing streak, got credit for the victory although he didn't finish the game.

BRAVES DOWN DODGERS

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Boston Braves clipped Luke (The Hot Potato) Hamlin for four hits and as many runs in the second inning today and, with the help of effective seven-hit pitching by Tom Earley, made that enough to beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4-1.

There was one away in the Braves' big inning when Eddie Miller bounced a double off the left field fence. Another two-bagger to left by Al Roberge scored the first run, and a base on balls and a single by Earley then filled the bases. Veteran Johnny Cooney picked this timely moment to wallop a base-clearing triple to right center.

The Braves got only one other safety off Hamlin, and only two more off Tom Drake and Hugh Casey, who came in after Luke had been lifted for a pinch-hitter. But meanwhile Earley was spreading the Dodgers' seven hits over four innings with three double plays helping him out of as many tight spots.

The victory was Earley's third against four defeats. He struck out four and gave only two bases on balls.

REDS WHIP CUBS

CINCINNATI, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Cincinnati's Reds made it four-in-a-row over Chicago and won their fifth straight victory today, 4 to 1, behind Elmer Riddle's brilliant three-hit pitching.

A four-run sixth inning, featured by Bill Werber's second homer of the year with two on, turned the trick after Cub Manager Jimmy Wilson, former Red coach, was ejected from the game in the first half of the same frame on a too-vociferous protest over a play at third.

Through five innings it was a pitcher's battle, Riddle, in achieving his 13th win, faced out 15 men until, with two out in the fifth, Clyde McCullough singled for the first Chicago tally. Olsen gave up but two safeties until the Reds' "total-score" drive.

TWIN MAIN EVENT SET FOR TUESDAY

Promoter Kallio Signs Curtis, Black Dragon For Return Match

A double main event, featuring a return engagement between Jack Curtis and the Black Dragon, and the appearance of Rex Mobley, light heavyweight champion of the world, who will meet Les Chapman, has been scheduled for Tuesday night's weekly wrestling show at the Monroe arena.

Curtis attempted to unmask the Dragon here last week, but the Masked Terror won a questionable victory after each grappler had won one fall. Curtis disputed the Dragon's victory and immediately requested a return match.

Promoter Gus Kallio had no trouble getting the Dragon to risk having to reveal his identity in another engagement with the nation's junior light heavyweight champ.

"I've beaten him once, and I can do it again," the Dragon said confidently.

However, the Masked Terror has a weight superiority over the Vicksburg flash or he would probably be asking Curtis to put his junior light heavy belt on the line. The Dragon is just a little too heavy for the junior light heavyweight class.

Despite the Dragon's weight advantage, however, Curtis is one of the most capable grapplers ever to wrestle here, and many fans are already predicting that Curtis will unmask the Terror Tuesday.

Mobley, who met Curtis here a few weeks ago in a world's light heavy championship match, will be making his second appearance of the season here when he meets Chapman, the rugged Chicago matman, in the other half of the double main event.

The match will be a non-title affair, however.

Both matches on the card, which gets under way at 8:30 o'clock, will have hour and 15-minute time limits.

Aldin "Butch" Martin will referee.

Pruitt, Bueschen Close In On Connors' Batting Lead

Monroe Third Baseman Only 8 Points Behind Cotton States' Top Hitter

Merv Connors, the Texarkana first baseman who once did a stretch with the Chicago White Sox, maintained his lead in Cotton States batting the past week despite the loss of two percentage points over a week ago, but Roy Bueschen, slugging Greenville outfielder, and Guy "Red" Pruitt, onrushing Monroe third baseman, continued to close in on Connors' lead.

Bueschen, who has held the lead on occasions this season, climbed back out of third place into second place with a boost of five points to .367, just three points back of the .370 posted by Connors.

Pruitt was still in fourth place but he had jumped his average five points to .362. Roy Marion, Hot Springs second baseman, who was in second place a week ago with .363 failed to add or lose any points but dropped to third, just one point ahead of Pruitt who has jumped his average around 50 points during the last month.

Connors also tops the home run parade with 25 round-trippers and has batted in 96 runs, which is only ten below the leading figure of 106 shared jointly by Pete Medak, Monroe, and Mike Powers, Hot Springs, both of whom have gone to bat at least 100 times more than Merv.

Powers is setting the pace in doubles with 35; Ray Zimmerman, Vicksburg, is first in triples with 15; Joe Eagar, Monroe, and Jim Lucas, Helena, jointly lead in stolen bases with 24 each; and Stan Todd, Greenville, again holds the hurling lead with 18 victories against five defeats.

CARDS BOW TO BUCS, BUT RETAIN LOOP LEAD

Cincinnati Reds Make It Four In A Row Over Chicago Cubs, 4 To 1

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A three-run rally, launched by Ernie White's wild throw on Frankie Gustine's squeeze bunt, gave the Pittsburgh Pirates three runs in the eighth inning and a 4-to-2 win over the Cards today.

The defeat ended White's eight-game winning streak and cost St. Louis a chance to improve its first place lead to one and one-half games over the Dodgers, who lost to the Braves. The Corsairs saved themselves a drop into fourth place as the Reds won.

Going into the eighth, White held a 2-to-1 lead and appeared headed for victory No. 9. With one out, Van Robays beat out a hit over second and hustled to third when Fletcher singled to right. Gustine bunted the ball a little to the left of White. The Card southpaw picked up the ball but threw wild past Mancuso, Van Robays and Fletcher scoring and Gustine legging it to third. Vince DiMaggio's third hit of the day, a single to left, brought Gustine home.

The Cards nicked Ken Heintzelman for two runs in the second innings, although the first tally was unearned. Anderson fumbled Triplett's grounder and Brown walked. Marion's bunt loaded the bases and Mancuso's single sent in one run. Fletcher took White's foul in short right as Brown tallied.

DiMaggio knocked his 14th homer of the season far over the left field fence in the second inning for the Pirates.

GIANTS BEAT PHILS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Babe Young and Billy Jurges paced a 15-hit attack on four Philadelphia pitchers today to help the New York Giants to a 4-1 victory over the National league's cellar-residents.

Young and Jurges got three hits apiece, and each man figured in the Giants' two scoring innings. In the first Mel Ott drove in Johnny Rucker with the 401st double of his career, and scored on Young's single to center.

Young led off the third with an infield hit, was held at second on Harry Danning's single, and then was out trying to score on Joe Moore's hit to right. But successive singles by Jurges and Burgess Whitehead sent Danning and Moore over the plate.

Johnny Huttig, breaking a personal five-game losing streak, got credit for the victory although he didn't finish the game.

BRAVES DOWN DODGERS

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Boston Braves clipped Luke (The Hot Potato) Hamlin for four hits and as many runs in the second inning today and, with the help of effective seven-hit pitching by Tom Earley, made that enough to beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4-1.

There was one away in the Braves' big inning when Eddie Miller bounced a double off the left field fence. Another two-bagger to left by Al Roberge scored the first run, and a base on balls and a single by Earley then filled the bases. Veteran Johnny Cooney picked this timely moment to wallop a base-clearing triple to right center.

The Braves got only one other safety off Hamlin, and only two more off Tom Drake and Hugh Casey, who came in after Luke had been lifted for a pinch-hitter. But meanwhile Earley was spreading the Dodgers' seven hits over four innings with three double plays helping him out of as many tight spots.

The victory was Earley's third against four defeats. He struck out four and gave only two bases on balls.

REDS WHIP CUBS

CINCINNATI, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Cincinnati's Reds made it four-in-a-row over Chicago and won their fifth straight victory today, 4 to 1, behind Elmer Riddle's brilliant three-hit pitching.

A four-run sixth inning, featured by Bill Werber's second homer of the year with two on, turned the trick after Cub Manager Jimmy Wilson, former Red coach, was ejected from the game in the first half of the same frame on a too-vociferous protest over a play at third.

Through five innings it was a pitcher's battle, Riddle, in achieving his 13th win, faced out 15 men until, with two out in the fifth, Clyde McCullough singled for the first Chicago tally. Olsen gave up but two safeties until the Reds' "total-score" drive.

TWIN MAIN EVENT SET FOR TUESDAY

Promoter Kallio Signs Curtis, Black Dragon For Return Match

A double main event, featuring a return engagement between Jack Curtis and the Black Dragon, and the appearance of Rex Mobley, light heavyweight champion of the world, who will meet Les Chapman, has been scheduled for Tuesday night's weekly wrestling show at the Monroe arena.

Curtis attempted to unmask the Dragon here last week, but the Masked Terror won a questionable victory after each grappler had won one fall. Curtis disputed the Dragon's victory and immediately requested a return match.

Promoter Gus Kallio had no trouble getting the Dragon to risk having to reveal his identity in another engagement with the nation's junior light heavyweight champ.

"I've beaten him once, and I can do it again," the Dragon said confidently.

However, the Masked Terror has a weight superiority over the Vicksburg flash or he would probably be asking Curtis to put his junior light heavy belt on the line. The Dragon is just a little too heavy for the junior light heavyweight class.

Despite the Dragon's weight advantage, however, Curtis is one of the most capable grapplers ever to wrestle here, and many fans are already predicting that Curtis will unmask the Terror Tuesday.

Mobley, who met Curtis here a few weeks ago in a world's light heavy championship match, will be making his second appearance of the season here when he meets Chapman, the rugged Chicago matman, in the other half of the double main event.

The match will be a non-title affair, however.

Both matches on the card, which gets under way at 8:30 o'clock, will have hour and 15-minute time limits.

Aldin "Butch" Martin will referee.

Monroe Third Baseman Only 8 Points Behind Cotton States' Top Hitter

Merv Connors, the Texarkana first baseman who once did a stretch with the Chicago White Sox, maintained his lead in Cotton States batting the past week despite the loss of two percentage points over a week ago, but Roy Bueschen, slugging Greenville outfielder, and Guy "Red" Pruitt, onrushing Monroe third baseman, continued to close in on Connors' lead.

Bueschen, who has held the lead on occasions this season, climbed back out of third place into second place with a boost of five points to .367, just three points back of the .370 posted by Connors.

Pruitt was still in fourth place but he had jumped his average five points to .362. Roy Marion, Hot Springs second baseman, who was in second place a week ago with .363 failed to add or lose any points but dropped to third, just one point ahead of Pruitt who has jumped his average around 50 points during the last month.

Connors also tops the home run parade with 25 round-trippers and has batted in 96 runs, which is only ten below the leading figure of 106 shared jointly by Pete Medak, Monroe, and Mike Powers, Hot Springs, both of whom have gone to bat at least 100 times more than Merv.

Powers is setting the pace in doubles with 35; Ray Zimmerman, Vicksburg, is first in triples with 15; Joe Eagar, Monroe, and Jim Lucas, Helena, jointly lead in stolen bases with 24 each; and Stan Todd, Greenville, again holds the hurling lead with 18 victories against five defeats.

Dear Mr. Ewing,

May I take this means of expressing to you and your papers our thanks for the splendid "ad" which appeared in Sunday's issue in connection with our campaign to raise funds for the purchase of an "Iron Lung".

The fact that your action was entirely spontaneous, and without suggestion or solicitation from any member of our committee, makes it even more commendable. With such cooperation from our civic-minded citizens the task of raising the necessary funds will be considerably lightened.

We sincerely appreciate your cooperation and support.

Yours very truly,
A. N. Robinson,
Chairman.

The News-Star—World, realizing its responsibility to this community, will continue in the future, as it has done in the past, to foster any worthy cause for the civic advancement of this section.

Cards Of Thanks (1)

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends for their acts of kindness, beautiful floral offerings and courtesies rendered at the death of our beloved little daughter, Patricia Ann Thompson.

We especially want to thank Rev. Jeff Dean for his consoling words and the Dixie Funeral Home for their splendid service.

MR. & MRS. LEONARD THOMPSON.
ELSA JEAN THOMPSON.
MR. & MRS. J. W. THOMPSON.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to our many friends for their sympathy and beautiful floral offerings received at the sudden death of our loved one, John Vernon Gates. We are especially grateful to Brother D. C. Black and Dean C. C. Colvert for their consoling words; members of the First Baptist Church, Monroe, and fellow employes of the Mobile Paint Manufacturing Company for their many kind deeds; and the Dixie Funeral Home for the courtesies rendered.

MRS. LORA SLAY GATES.
JAMES V. GATES.
REV. J. L. GATES.
MRS. MARY WILSON.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to use this medium to express to our many friends our sincere thanks for the many courtesies that have been rendered during these past trying days. The passing of our darling Katherine was made more bearable by these many courtesies. We especially desire to thank Rev. and Mrs. Hastings for their consoling words. To everyone we give our heartfelt thanks.

MR. & MRS. S. E. MORRIS.

Highest STANDARDS

Every year the increasing number of calls made upon us proves our leadership in this community and the superiority of our service. One standard of service, THE HIGHEST, to all regardless of financial circumstances.

OUACHITA VALLEY

The Camden baseball club of the Ouachita Valley league will invade Brown park this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock for an engagement with Manager Jack Bagwell's Brown Paper Mill Brownies.

Officials of the Brown club last night announced that all soldiers visiting here today would be admitted free to the game as guests of the Brown Paper mill.

Manager Bagwell said either Sid Nethery, big righthander, or "Lefty" Counts would be on the mound for the locals.

Other Ouachita Valley league games today will find Crossett's Millers at Basrop, and the Springhill Sports at Hodge.

Cards Of Thanks (1)

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends for their acts of kindness, beautiful floral offerings and courtesies rendered at the death of our beloved little daughter, Patricia Ann Thompson.

We especially want to thank Rev. Jeff Dean for his consoling words and the Dixie Funeral Home for their splendid service.

MR. & MRS. LEONARD THOMPSON.
ELSA JEAN THOMPSON.
MR. & MRS. J. W. THOMPSON.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to our many friends for their sympathy and beautiful floral offerings received at the sudden death of our loved one, John Vernon Gates. We are especially grateful to Brother D. C. Black and Dean C. C. Colvert for their consoling words; members of the First Baptist Church, Monroe, and fellow employes of the Mobile Paint Manufacturing Company for their many kind deeds; and the Dixie Funeral Home for the courtesies rendered.

MRS. LORA SLAY GATES.
JAMES V. GATES.
REV. J. L. GATES.
MRS. MARY WILSON.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to use this medium to express to our many friends our sincere thanks for the many courtesies that have been rendered during these past trying days. The passing of our darling Katherine was made more bearable by these many courtesies. We especially desire to thank Rev. and Mrs. Hastings for their consoling words. To everyone we give our heartfelt thanks.

MR. & MRS. S. E. MORRIS.

Highest STANDARDS

Every year the increasing number of calls made upon us proves our leadership in this community and the superiority of our service. One standard of service, THE HIGHEST, to all regardless of financial circumstances.

OUACHITA VALLEY

The Camden baseball club of the Ouachita Valley league will invade Brown park this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock for an engagement with Manager Jack Bagwell's Brown Paper Mill Brownies.

Officials of the Brown club last night announced that all soldiers visiting here today would be admitted free to the game as guests of the Brown Paper mill.

Manager Bagwell said either Sid Nethery, big righthander, or "Lefty" Counts would be on the mound for the locals.

SABOTEURS HURT FRENCH SUPPLIES

Reward Of Million Francs Offered For Arrest Of Train Wreckers

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Paris police, warning the population that sabotage on railway lines serving the occupied French capital was threatening the city's food supply, tonight offered 1,000,000 francs reward for information leading to the arrests of the wreckers.

The prefecture of police abandoned all attempts at secrecy in warning that the sabotage had reached such serious proportions that cooperation of the public was necessary to stop it.

The appeal brought to the minds of many Frenchmen Chief of State Marshal Petain's recent warning that he felt an "ill wind rising in many regions of France."

The announcement came only a day after General Heinrich von Stuelpnagel, commander of the German armed forces in France, proclaimed that the entire population of occupied France and not merely the guilty would be held responsible for the outbreaks which have been blamed on Communists.

Today's announcement said:

"Many attempts have recently been made against the railroad lines and means of transportation. These attempts are endangering human lives and not only those thousands of workers who commute daily by these means of transportation.

"They involve communications and especially compromise the supply system which already is very difficult in the present situation. Consequently the whole population is summoned in the general interest to cooperate in the repression and even prevention of these attempts.

"A reward of 1,000,000 francs is offered any person who will make possible the arrest of the authors of the attempts committed."

Navy Bandsman's Life Is Mostly Made Up Of Music

Members Of Group Which Will Play Here Has Crowded Day

Teflis Grotto of Monroe, through a special committee headed by David C. Carter, is busily engaged in preparing the program and advertising the United States navy band, which will give a matinee and night performance at Neville High school auditorium, Friday, October 17.

While the date is some weeks distant, there is none too much time remaining to familiarize the public with the remarkable musical organization that is to come here. This will be the first time that such a nationally known band has ever given a Monroe performance, and it is expected that great numbers of people from all sections of north Louisiana will attend. The Chamber of Commerce and all civic clubs of Monroe and West Monroe are said to be solidly supporting the appearance of the famous band, and it is expected that P.-T. A. groups from many cities of Louisiana will urge students to attend, as a special rate is made to students.

Mr. Carter stated Saturday that Teflis Grotto was required to guarantee $1,200 for the band's appearance. The advertising throughout the Fifth congressional district will require possibly as much as $800 added expenditure, so that it is quite likely that $2,000 will be the sum the Grotto will be required to raise to break even on the programs, he said.

Mr. Carter stated Saturday that he has received many inquiries as to how the band functions and its position in the naval setup. Tour Manager Wayne Borton has provided him with answers to some of the questions that arise.

The band was organized by congress in order that the navy might be suitably represented in the various ceremonies and official functions in the nation's capital. Thus the navy band became the representative organization of the entire naval force of the United States.

By special act of congress and permission of President Roosevelt, the United States navy band will make a seven-week tour this fall, when 20 states will be visited.

The bandsman's day begins a few minutes before 8 a.m., when the navy band plays for the traditional flag raising ceremony. The balance of the morning is spent either in rehearsing the numerous programs or in actual performance of concerts and radio programs.

All broadcasts originate in the Sail Loft, a building formerly used for the making of sails, which has been converted into a modern concert hall, seating 3,000 people. In this concert hall are also held the dances and social functions of the navy personnel. The navy band usually enjoys a capacity audience, representing the entire United States and Canada, which gathers to hear the famous "Hour of Memories" program broadcast Mondays, except when the band is on a tour.

During the winter months, when the symphony orchestra phase of the band's activities predominates, concerts are given in the evening, and one can enjoy the finest symphonic works interspersed with lighter music, from the oldest classics to the most modern scores.

The United States Navy School of Music is a training institution for young musicians 18 to 25 years of age who desire to make music their lifework. A four-year conservatory course is condensed into two years study, after which the students are assigned to sea duty with fleets in units of 20 men and a bandmaster.

The personnel of the United States navy band consists of four ranks: musicians first class, first musicians bandmasters temporarily appointed, and bandmasters permanently appointed. The members of the band receive subsistence money in addition to the regular pay of their grade, enabling them to live with their families in their own homes.

AUTHORITY TO BORROW SOUGHT

Administration Polls Legislature On Getting $1,190,000

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The state administration polled the legislature by mail today on a proposal to authorize the governor to borrow $1,190,000 to be distributed to various departments.

The board of liquidation authorized the poll yesterday after a meeting during which Martin Close, finance director, reported that his department was without the use of $750,000 which had been transfererd to it by the board on its own authority.

The $1,190,000 which the government asks authorization to borrow would be distributed as follows:

To Supervisor of Public Funds Jerome A. Hayes, $150,000.

To the department of finance, $540,000.

To the New Orleans Charity hospital, $500,000.

In addition, the proposal submitted to the legislators included a request for their consent that the 1940 regular appropriation act, which set maximum amounts for each department to receive, be modified sufficiently to make possible the distribution of these funds.

District Judge James D. Womack, acting on the maximum provision of the act, recently issued injunctions interpreted as preventing the transfer of additional funds to the finance department and the supervisor of public funds.

Both Close and Hayes told the board of liquidation their departments would be forced to suspend operations or curtail work unless more funds were forthcoming.

Close pointed out that lack of funds for this department would paralyze welfare payments, veterans' pensions and warrants for the ordinary expenditures of the penitentiary, East Louisiana State hospital, State Colony and Training school and Southwest Charity hospital.

YUKON STORIES CALLED FICTION

Old Timers Debunk Tales Of Blood And Thunder In Alaska

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—(AP)—All those blood and thunder stories you may have read about the early days of Alaska and the Yukon, declare the men who lived through them, are just fiction.

More than half a hundred of the old timers—men who participated in the gold rush during the earliest days, from 1881 to 1898—occupied a special table last night at the annual banquet of the 13th International Sourdough reunion.

There was plenty of romance, they agreed, and more than enough of hardship and privation, but very little of blazing guns, gold dust robberies and bodies of shooting victims bared by the melting snows of spring.

Take F. M. Hicks, who was a pallbearer at Soapy Smith's funeral at Skagway in July, 1889. Hicks, who went to the Yukon in 1879 from Montana, where he had been in the cattle business, said he used to laugh when Robert W. Service read excerpts from his lead-pencil manuscript of "The Spell of the Yukon" at White Horse in 1902. Service was a bank clerk there.

"We didn't pack guns except for hunting," Hicks declared. "A man was safer there in the early days than he is in Los Angeles right now. We used to leave our gold dust in tin cans in our cabins."

As for Soapy Smith's untimely demise, that was a carry-over of bad blood between the famous gambler and "a man named Reed"—engendered in Colorado bonanza days.

Theodore S. Solomons reached Skagway in 1898, sledded a big outfit over White pass to Lake Bennett, prospected and mined and was the first postmaster at Candle, on the Arctic ocean. He agreed with Hicks' debunking of the blood and thunder phase of the territory's history.

He knew Service, as well as Rex Beach and Jack London, during their days in the North.

"Beach went through the mill," he said. "London was there only about a year, and he got most of his information about Alaska from talks with the miners during the winter."

There was a little "rough stuff" in Skagway, and none in Dawson and the Klondyke, Solomons declared, "except a few murders in dance halls and saloons." He had but one murder case while he was practicing law, he said.

Business Girls' Clubs Hold Picnics, Barbecues, Swim Parties

One of the ways in which the Young Women's Christian association, supported by the Twin City Community chest, cooperates with the community is through a building, educational, and recreational program for the development and enrichment of the individuals in its membership.

During this month the two business girls' clubs have continued their programs and activities, emphasizing recreation and "outside activities" as picnics, barbecues, and swim parties.

The Young Women's Christian association maintains a residence. It is not a "home for needy girls" but a boarding home with wise counsel and supervision of girls. It is a center serving girls and women in various forms of individual adjustments and employment.

One young girl came to Monroe without a place to live. She had very little income. She was employed through the assistance of the Young Woman's Christian association and has now become self-supporting. During the past few months a number of girls have completed school and vocational training and have become self-sustaining girls, taking their places in community life because the Young Women's Christian association has maintained a home for these girls.

At present there are twenty-one girls in the residence under the supervision of Mrs. John D. Coats.

The association seeks to cooperate with the community in its programs and activities. At the time when Monroe entertained the soldiers the association through its business girls' clubs and the board sponsored "open house" at two different times for the men.

During the past month the association carried on its program of varied activities, seeking to meet the needs and interests of its individual members and cooperating with the community in its programs and projects.

The Young Women's Christian association is a world-wide membership of women and girls of different ages, occupations, needs and interests, and nationalities and races, who come together in a voluntary association.

NEGRO SOLDIERS TO BE GREETED

Special Plans Made For Men Of This Race While In Monroe

A special program has been arranged to welcome colored soldiers now in camp in Monroe. A committee of colored citizens has been named to cooperate with the plan. It is comprised of: Rev. Irvine G. Penn, chairman; E. W. Sims, secretary; Dr. J. C. Ray, treasurer; Eluen Heston, Sr., who will have charge of the colored soldiers' center, which will be located on DeSiard street; L. E. Allen, W. T. Jones, J. Lee Hardy, Dr. R. O. Pierce, Dr. M. J. Foster, Ben Burten, Dr. S. D. Hill, Dr. J. A. Chandler, Dr. G. McClanahan, Dr. J. B. Thompson, Herman Marbles, Isaiah Graves, J. A. Newkirk, Robert Van Hook, Dave Duty, Ben Jones, L. Davenport, and Walter Mime.

The women's auxiliary will include the membership of the colored women's clubs, the Alturistic club and young women's organizations, the Tuxedo Girls, and the Deluxe club.

Today at 3:30 p.m., at Martin Temple church, Adams and 19th streets, church choirs, together with representatives of the interests that affect the colored race here will appear with a grand welcome program.

The city of Monroe will furnish police escort for the 28th quartermaster corps from the camp to the church. The public is invited to attend.

The Ritz theater, on Tuesday night, has issued through this committee, 100 passes for colored soldiers to attend the picture show in a body. Game night and a smoker will be held on Thursday night, the place to be announced at Sunday's meeting.

Arrangements are being completed for a special dance to be given by the women's auxiliaries Friday night at Savoy ball room in the Miller-Roy building. All colored churches and organizations are requested to plan some form of entertainment for the soldiers. For the time being, the city headquarters of these soldiers will be at Martin Temple until the center is opened on DeSiard street.

SABOTEURS HURT FRENCH SUPPLIES

Reward Of Million Francs Offered For Arrest Of Train Wreckers

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Paris police, warning the population that sabotage on railway lines serving the occupied French capital was threatening the city's food supply, tonight offered 1,000,000 francs reward for information leading to the arrests of the wreckers.

The prefecture of police abandoned all attempts at secrecy in warning that the sabotage had reached such serious proportions that cooperation of the public was necessary to stop it.

The appeal brought to the minds of many Frenchmen Chief of State Marshal Petain's recent warning that he felt an "ill wind rising in many regions of France."

The announcement came only a day after General Heinrich von Stuelpnagel, commander of the German armed forces in France, proclaimed that the entire population of occupied France and not merely the guilty would be held responsible for the outbreaks which have been blamed on Communists.

Today's announcement said:

"Many attempts have recently been made against the railroad lines and means of transportation. These attempts are endangering human lives and not only those thousands of workers who commute daily by these means of transportation.

"They involve communications and especially compromise the supply system which already is very difficult in the present situation. Consequently the whole population is summoned in the general interest to cooperate in the repression and even prevention of these attempts.

"A reward of 1,000,000 francs is offered any person who will make possible the arrest of the authors of the attempts committed."

Members Of Group Which Will Play Here Has Crowded Day

Teflis Grotto of Monroe, through a special committee headed by David C. Carter, is busily engaged in preparing the program and advertising the United States navy band, which will give a matinee and night performance at Neville High school auditorium, Friday, October 17.

While the date is some weeks distant, there is none too much time remaining to familiarize the public with the remarkable musical organization that is to come here. This will be the first time that such a nationally known band has ever given a Monroe performance, and it is expected that great numbers of people from all sections of north Louisiana will attend. The Chamber of Commerce and all civic clubs of Monroe and West Monroe are said to be solidly supporting the appearance of the famous band, and it is expected that P.-T. A. groups from many cities of Louisiana will urge students to attend, as a special rate is made to students.

Mr. Carter stated Saturday that Teflis Grotto was required to guarantee $1,200 for the band's appearance. The advertising throughout the Fifth congressional district will require possibly as much as $800 added expenditure, so that it is quite likely that $2,000 will be the sum the Grotto will be required to raise to break even on the programs, he said.

Mr. Carter stated Saturday that he has received many inquiries as to how the band functions and its position in the naval setup. Tour Manager Wayne Borton has provided him with answers to some of the questions that arise.

The band was organized by congress in order that the navy might be suitably represented in the various ceremonies and official functions in the nation's capital. Thus the navy band became the representative organization of the entire naval force of the United States.

By special act of congress and permission of President Roosevelt, the United States navy band will make a seven-week tour this fall, when 20 states will be visited.

The bandsman's day begins a few minutes before 8 a.m., when the navy band plays for the traditional flag raising ceremony. The balance of the morning is spent either in rehearsing the numerous programs or in actual performance of concerts and radio programs.

All broadcasts originate in the Sail Loft, a building formerly used for the making of sails, which has been converted into a modern concert hall, seating 3,000 people. In this concert hall are also held the dances and social functions of the navy personnel. The navy band usually enjoys a capacity audience, representing the entire United States and Canada, which gathers to hear the famous "Hour of Memories" program broadcast Mondays, except when the band is on a tour.

During the winter months, when the symphony orchestra phase of the band's activities predominates, concerts are given in the evening, and one can enjoy the finest symphonic works interspersed with lighter music, from the oldest classics to the most modern scores.

The United States Navy School of Music is a training institution for young musicians 18 to 25 years of age who desire to make music their lifework. A four-year conservatory course is condensed into two years study, after which the students are assigned to sea duty with fleets in units of 20 men and a bandmaster.

The personnel of the United States navy band consists of four ranks: musicians first class, first musicians bandmasters temporarily appointed, and bandmasters permanently appointed. The members of the band receive subsistence money in addition to the regular pay of their grade, enabling them to live with their families in their own homes.

TOUR MANAGER

AUTHORITY TO BORROW SOUGHT

Administration Polls Legislature On Getting $1,190,000

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The state administration polled the legislature by mail today on a proposal to authorize the governor to borrow $1,190,000 to be distributed to various departments.

The board of liquidation authorized the poll yesterday after a meeting during which Martin Close, finance director, reported that his department was without the use of $750,000 which had been transfererd to it by the board on its own authority.

The $1,190,000 which the government asks authorization to borrow would be distributed as follows:

To Supervisor of Public Funds Jerome A. Hayes, $150,000.

To the department of finance, $540,000.

To the New Orleans Charity hospital, $500,000.

In addition, the proposal submitted to the legislators included a request for their consent that the 1940 regular appropriation act, which set maximum amounts for each department to receive, be modified sufficiently to make possible the distribution of these funds.

District Judge James D. Womack, acting on the maximum provision of the act, recently issued injunctions interpreted as preventing the transfer of additional funds to the finance department and the supervisor of public funds.

Both Close and Hayes told the board of liquidation their departments would be forced to suspend operations or curtail work unless more funds were forthcoming.

Close pointed out that lack of funds for this department would paralyze welfare payments, veterans' pensions and warrants for the ordinary expenditures of the penitentiary, East Louisiana State hospital, State Colony and Training school and Southwest Charity hospital.

YUKON STORIES CALLED FICTION

Old Timers Debunk Tales Of Blood And Thunder In Alaska

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—(AP)—All those blood and thunder stories you may have read about the early days of Alaska and the Yukon, declare the men who lived through them, are just fiction.

More than half a hundred of the old timers—men who participated in the gold rush during the earliest days, from 1881 to 1898—occupied a special table last night at the annual banquet of the 13th International Sourdough reunion.

There was plenty of romance, they agreed, and more than enough of hardship and privation, but very little of blazing guns, gold dust robberies and bodies of shooting victims bared by the melting snows of spring.

Take F. M. Hicks, who was a pallbearer at Soapy Smith's funeral at Skagway in July, 1889. Hicks, who went to the Yukon in 1879 from Montana, where he had been in the cattle business, said he used to laugh when Robert W. Service read excerpts from his lead-pencil manuscript of "The Spell of the Yukon" at White Horse in 1902. Service was a bank clerk there.

"We didn't pack guns except for hunting," Hicks declared. "A man was safer there in the early days than he is in Los Angeles right now. We used to leave our gold dust in tin cans in our cabins."

As for Soapy Smith's untimely demise, that was a carry-over of bad blood between the famous gambler and "a man named Reed"—engendered in Colorado bonanza days.

Theodore S. Solomons reached Skagway in 1898, sledded a big outfit over White pass to Lake Bennett, prospected and mined and was the first postmaster at Candle, on the Arctic ocean. He agreed with Hicks' debunking of the blood and thunder phase of the territory's history.

He knew Service, as well as Rex Beach and Jack London, during their days in the North.

"Beach went through the mill," he said. "London was there only about a year, and he got most of his information about Alaska from talks with the miners during the winter."

There was a little "rough stuff" in Skagway, and none in Dawson and the Klondyke, Solomons declared, "except a few murders in dance halls and saloons." He had but one murder case while he was practicing law, he said.

Carl McHenry Home Is Scene Of Formal Event

Affair Reintroduces Former Resident Of Monroe Who Recently Moved Here From Baton Rouge

Dimly reminiscent of the days when the Old South was famed the world over for its chivalrous gentlemen and beautiful women, is that most charming of all summer gatherings—a formal garden party.

Such was the event which reintroduced Miss Jena Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Jackson, former residents of this city who recently moved here from Baton Rouge, to Monroe society. Hostesses for the occasion were Misses Martha and Marguerite McHenry, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. McHenry.

The scene of the garden party was the home of Mrs. Carl McHenry, whose wide gardens are surpassed by no others in Monroe. Borders of summer flowers and massed shrubs formed a background of muted colors and greenery against which the pastel-shaded tea gowns showed up to greatest advantage.

Those who stood in the receiving line on the velvety lawn to greet guests were Miss Martha McHenry, Miss Jena Jackson, Mrs. E. N. Jackson, Miss Marguerite McHenry, Mrs. Neal McHenry, and Mrs. Carl McHenry.

The guest of honor, Miss Jackson, made an attractive picture in a shell pink lace dress with a fitted waist and flaring skirt made of myriad rows of narrow ruffles. Costume jewelry of unusual beauty and a corsage of palest pink carnations completed her ensemble.

Her mother, Mrs. Jackson, was dressed in a flowing white jersey model with starched lace sleeves and waist band. She wore a shoulder corsage of salmon pink gladioli.

Co-hostess, Miss Marguerite McHenry, wore a gown of marquisette in a delicate shade of pink. Bands of fine lace insertion encircled the skirt. Her corsage was of rosebuds of the same shade of pink as the dress.

Mrs. Neal McHenry, mother of the hostesses, was gowned in a model combining a silver embroidered bodice and a floating slate blue net skirt. She wore a shoulder corsage of pink roses and azuradums.

Mrs. Carl McHenry received guests in a draped chiffon gown of an off-shade of turquoise blue, accented with jeweled clips at the neck. Talisman rosebuds formed her corsage.

Guests were served with frosted green mint punch from a crystal bowl placed on a wrought iron garden table which was flanked by tall pottery urns entwined with flowering vines. Mrs. Clyde Paine, wearing a white crepe gown made on classic lines, presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. A. K. Kilpatrick, in a crisp summer dress with a long full skirt, fitted bodice, and tiny sleeves, alternated with Mrs. Paine.

Mrs. Reese Major, Mrs. Henry Biedenharn, Jr., Miss Glo Major, Mrs. Marie Frazier, and Miss Mary Wilton McHenry, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl McHenry, all dressed in pastel-colored dresses made from floating summer fabrics, passed among guests, who stood or sat in conversational groups, with trays laden with assorted varieties of sandwiches, canapes, cakes, confectioneries, nuts, and mints.

Out-of-town guests included: Misses Mary Schleg, Sheboygan, Wis.; Flo Turner, Baton Rouge, La.; Georgia Rose Roundtree, Tallulah, La.; Lucille Jarrell, Columbia, La.; Laurette Ralph, Eudora, Ark.; Alexa Lawler, Ruston, La.; Anne Goyne, Ruston; O'cille Pugh, Rayville, La.; Alice Nelle Fulford, Birmingham, Ala.; Pigeon Major, New Roads, La.; Evelyn Jarrell, Columbia; Marion Barnett, Baton Rouge; Louise Doherty, Baton Rouge; Fay Kent Guess, Hammond, La.; Dorothy Hathcox, Oak Ridge, La.; Gene Blanchard, Baton Rouge; Phoebe Vickers, Baton Rouge; June Mitchell, Ruston; Boogie Woodward, Arcadia, La.; Ellen Gulley, Farmerville, La.; Faye Wimberly, Arcadia; and Mrs. J. R. Myrick, Girard, La.

Miss Jackson is a recent graduate of Louisiana State university, where she was very prominent in campus activities. For two years she was a beauty and a favorite in The Gumbo, college yearbook. She was also elected as Cotton Queen and served as Fashion Editor for The Pell-Mell campus magazine. Miss Jackson was interested in sorority circles, having served as president of the active chapter of Kappa Delta sorority last year, and as a member of Delta Gamma Delta, intersorority organization.

Miss Sarah Ellen Gunby Honoree At Party Here

A conversational hour honoring Miss Sarah Ellen Gunby of Fort Bliss, El Paso, Tex., was given by Miss Olive Gunby at her home. Miss Sarah Ellen Gunby is a visitor in the home of the Misses Edith and Olive Gunby for several weeks.

The honor guest, wearing a dusty rose sport dress, was introduced to many girls of her age who called during the designated hours.

She stood against a decorative background of varicolored summer flowers. The same type of decorations were used in the dinning room where a novel wheelbarrow arrangement of flowers centered a refreshment table which was overlaid with a soft rose cloth. Frosted drinks buried in mounds of crushed ice, dainty sandwiches, canapes, and individual cakes were served to guests.

Assisting the hostess in serving guests were Mrs. George Gunby, Miss Sallie Humble, Miss Madle Moore, Miss Edith Gunby, Miss St. Claire Hayden, Miss Alice Lee Combes and Miss Kay McHenry.

Among those who called were: Misses Nan Drew, Clayton Kilpatrick, Dodo Kellogg, Marilyn Bush, Satchie Cooper, Bennie Hughes, Laura Flournoy, Rosemary Worsham, Betty Firnberg, Juanita Lippmin, Cornelia Herron, Louise Rivoire, Margaret Mashaw, Frances Baldwin, Joan Boardman, Rozanne Reid, Margie Robbins, Betty Jean Hardeman, Jean Parsons, Melba Stevenson and Georgia Alford.

Boat Ride On Ouachita Enjoyed By Younger Set

Robert Lee Coleman and Lloyd Lenard were hosts to a group of friends Thursday night on a boat ride up the starlit Ouachita river on the Brown Kraft boat. Chaperons were Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Metcalf.

The boat docked at a sand bar some distance up the river while guests enjoyed a supper of hot hamburgers, cold drinks, and mixed cakes. The return journey was spent in singing, dancing, and lounging in the comfortable deck chairs.

Included on the occasion were: Misses Evelyn Aden, Betty Jean Hardeman, Dorothea Girault, Tena McCoy, Mildred Keller, and Messrs. Billy Armstrong, Robert Young, Charles Mims, Alex Winn, Lloyd Lenard, Robert L. Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Metcalf, and Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Metcalf.

Mrs. Brantley Honored At Annual Reunion

An annual reunion was combined with the celebration of an 84th birthday when the children of Mrs. Martin B. Brantley, mother of Acting Chief of Police B. L. Brantley, met at the old Brantley homestead three miles east of Farmerville.

The children, grandchildren, and intimate friends turned out en masse for the occasion which was highlighted by a barbecue, with Chief Brantley as host.

Among the children of Mrs. Brantley who were present were her sons, J. E., J. W., J. T. and L. M. Brantley, all of Farmerville; Arleigh Brantley, of Marshall, Tex., and Chief Brantley who also brought as a special guest, Sergeant J. M. Busby and his family.

A daughter who with her husband and children attended the festivities was Mrs. P. H. Hamm of Monroe.

A huge cake containing 84 candles was presented to Mrs. Brantley by Chief Brantley's daughters, Mrs. S. A. Johnson and Mrs. J. S. Wear. Other gifts were heaped on the beaming honor guest by children, grandchildren and friends.

The party was held on the spacious lawn adjoining the house which is vacant the year round except on the annual reunion day. Mrs. Brantley's birthday occurred August 9, but the celebration of it was delayed so that it might coincide with the reunion.

Mrs. Brantley lives with her oldest son, J. E. Brantley, in Farmerville.

Swimming Party Given For Miss Emily McCaleb

A wiener roast and swimming party was the way in which Miss Bettye Tucker entertained her house guest, Miss Emily McCaleb of Green Cove Springs, Fla. The entertainment took place at the United Gas clubhouse on the banks of the Ouachita river.

Several girls in the party remained after the party to spend the week-end at the spacious clubhouse. Featured during the week-end were early morning swims and picnic meals.

Shower Given In Honor Of Mrs. Joseph Roshto

The recent announcement of the marriage of Miss Mary Eleanor Coverdale, daughter of Sheriff and Mrs. Milton Coverdale, to Joseph Edward Roshto of Baton Rouge, La., was the occasion for a shower honoring Mrs. Roshto Friday night at the home of Miss Cornelia Herron, with Miss Herron, Miss Frances Smith, and Miss Mildred Cotton as hostesses.

Mrs. Roshto wore a shadow-printed white chiffon dress made on long, flowing lines. Her mother, Mrs. Coverdale, greeted guests in a tailored white eyelet embroidered frock. Miss Smith, wearing a draped black jersey dress, Miss Cotton, wearing navy blue sheer with white accents, and Miss Herron, in a poudre blue summer voile, extended courtesies to their guests.

Pale pink predominated in the flowers and in refreshments. Altheas and dwarf zinnias were arranged in bouquets in which the color scheme was skillfully blended. Refreshments were punch, sandwiches, and confectioneries.

The opening of gifts, always the main attraction at such a gathering, revealed many lovely presents of miscellaneous types. Mrs. Roshto was assisted in opening them by her hostesses and her mother.

Among the guests were: Misses Irma Sherrard, Anna Lee Russell, Gladys Emma Whitfield, Anne Goodwin, Gerry Manning, Lodi Cann, Jean Terzia, Mary Jo Stanley, Florence Fluker, Rita Brownless, Marguerite and Martha McHenry, Beth Rinehart, Noves Roye, Nelda Caldwell, Carolyn Royce, Hortense Peck, Louise Hawkins, Joyce McKoin, Juanita Lippmin, Adelaide Parker, Dorothy Bradley, Ann Atkins, Frances Raby, Sue McBride, Patsy Slack, Martha Ann Moore, Virginia Brown, Monica Liles, Paula Smith, and Mesdames Milton Coverdale, F. T. Smith, Jr., Frank Cline, Alton Burge, Truman Peters, and Bensil Herron.

Study Of Nursing Urged By Association Officer

Confirming reports that a shortage of registered nurses exists in hospitals and public health nursing services of the state, Miss Jane Martin, secretary of the Louisiana State Nurses' association, speaking from the association headquarters' office in New Orleans, urged qualified, patriotic young women, with high school or college background, to meet the country's need for nurses by applying for admission to state accredited schools of nursing and there preparing themselves for satisfying, useful service in the fields of nursing and health.

Hospitals throughout the state, Miss Martin pointed out, have been operating at full capacity all year with hardly a bed vacant in any of the major wards. This situation has placed a heavy burden on hospital nursing staffs, already depleted by calls to service in army and naval hospitals, industrial units, and expanding public health services.

The present urgent need for nurses apparently is not a temporary one. Because of the wider use people are making of hospitals and public health facilities, it is expected to continue long after the existing national emergency is past.

To meet the need for nurses, nursing schools able to increase their enrollments without sacrifice of standards of education are urged to admit more qualified students to their fall classes. The schools in this state have already signified their readiness to do this.

A list of the schools may be secured from the state nurses association at 2605 Prytania street, New Orleans, La. The association will also send to young people interested in nursing as a career, vocational information which will help them to select a good school of nursing and will tell them of the far-flung opportunities for constructive service which exist for competent professional nurses.

Federated Club's Chairman Visits Here

A meeting at which plans for a state convention to take place in November were formulated took place when Mrs. B. B. Fortinberry of Baton Rouge, state chairman of fine arts for L. F. W. C., met with Mrs. H. R. Saenger, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, and Mrs. J. R. White in Monroe recently.

During Mrs. Fortinberry's visit in Monroe, she officially added another phase of music, music division and community music, to Mrs. Coon's state chairmanship of American music and folk songs. The motto, "Hear America First," will be stressed in the musical division, and special music is being planned to occupy a prominent place during the convention.

Mrs. Saenger will serve as local chairman of exhibits during the state convention, and, according to Mrs. Fortinberry and Mrs. Saenger, this is to be an outstanding exhibit. Definite plans will be announced later concerning cash awards and prizes for the paintings.

Mrs. White will serve as local chairman of poetry during the convention, assisting the state chairman of poetry, Miss Anne Reiley Nesom of Baton Rouge.

Due to the absence from the city of Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, only tentative plans for the fine arts department were made for the convention, which will take place on the 6th, 7th and 8th of November.

While Mrs. Fortinberry was in Monroe, she made the following appointments: Mrs. H. R. Saenger, city chairman of the American National Art Week, November 1 to 8, and Mrs. J. R. White, Fifth district chairman of the National Thanksgiving Poetry contest, of which Mrs. Fortinberry is state chairman.

Misses McHenry Honor Miss Jena Jackson At Garden Party Here

Affair Reintroduces Former Resident Of Monroe Who Recently Moved Here From Baton Rouge

Dimly reminiscent of the days when the Old South was famed the world over for its chivalrous gentlemen and beautiful women, is that most charming of all summer gatherings—a formal garden party.

Such was the event which reintroduced Miss Jena Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Jackson, former residents of this city who recently moved here from Baton Rouge, to Monroe society. Hostesses for the occasion were Misses Martha and Marguerite McHenry, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. McHenry.

The scene of the garden party was the home of Mrs. Carl McHenry, whose wide gardens are surpassed by no others in Monroe. Borders of summer flowers and massed shrubs formed a background of muted colors and greenery against which the pastel-shaded tea gowns showed up to greatest advantage.

Those who stood in the receiving line on the velvety lawn to greet guests were Miss Martha McHenry, Miss Jena Jackson, Mrs. E. N. Jackson, Miss Marguerite McHenry, Mrs. Neal McHenry, and Mrs. Carl McHenry.

Miss Martha McHenry wore a periwinkle blue marquisette gown, with full skirt, short puffed sleeves, and fitted bodice with square neckline. Her corsage was of pink rosebuds, daisies, and tube roses.

The guest of honor, Miss Jackson, made an attractive picture in a shell pink lace dress with a fitted waist and flaring skirt made of myriad rows of narrow ruffles. Costume jewelry of unusual beauty and a corsage of palest pink carnations completed her ensemble.

Her mother, Mrs. Jackson, was dressed in a flowing white jersey model with starched lace sleeves and waist band. She wore a shoulder corsage of salmon pink gladioli.

Co-hostess, Miss Marguerite McHenry, wore a gown of marquisette in a delicate shade of pink. Bands of fine lace insertion encircled the skirt. Her corsage was of rosebuds of the same shade of pink as the dress.

Mrs. Neal McHenry, mother of the hostesses, was gowned in a model combining a silver embroidered bodice and a floating slate blue net skirt. She wore a shoulder corsage of pink roses and azuradums.

Mrs. Carl McHenry received guests in a draped chiffon gown of an off-shade of turquoise blue, accented with jeweled clips at the neck. Talisman rosebuds formed her corsage.

Guests were served with frosted green mint punch from a crystal bowl placed on a wrought iron garden table which was flanked by tall pottery urns entwined with flowering vines. Mrs. Clyde Paine, wearing a white crepe gown made on classic lines, presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. A. K. Kilpatrick, in a crisp summer dress with a long full skirt, fitted bodice, and tiny sleeves, alternated with Mrs. Paine.

Mrs. Reese Major, Mrs. Henry Biedenharn, Jr., Miss Glo Major, Mrs. Marie Frazier, and Miss Mary Wilton McHenry, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl McHenry, all dressed in pastel-colored dresses made from floating summer fabrics, passed among guests, who stood or sat in conversational groups, with trays laden with assorted varieties of sandwiches, canapes, cakes, confectioneries, nuts, and mints.

Out-of-town guests included: Misses Mary Schleg, Sheboygan, Wis.; Flo Turner, Baton Rouge, La.; Georgia Rose Roundtree, Tallulah, La.; Lucille Jarrell, Columbia, La.; Laurette Ralph, Eudora, Ark.; Alexa Lawler, Ruston, La.; Anne Goyne, Ruston; O'cille Pugh, Rayville, La.; Alice Nelle Fulford, Birmingham, Ala.; Pigeon Major, New Roads, La.; Evelyn Jarrell, Columbia; Marion Barnett, Baton Rouge; Louise Doherty, Baton Rouge; Fay Kent Guess, Hammond, La.; Dorothy Hathcox, Oak Ridge, La.; Gene Blanchard, Baton Rouge, Phoebe Vickers, Baton Rouge; June Mitchell, Ruston; Boogie Woodward, Arcadia, La.; Ellen Gulley, Farmerville, La.; Faye Wimberly, Arcadia; and Mrs. J. R. Myrick, Girard, La.

Miss Jackson is a recent graduate of Louisiana State university, where she was very prominent in campus activities. For two years she was a beauty and a favorite in The Gumbo, college yearbook. She was also elected as Cotton Queen and served as Fashion Editor for The Pell-Mell campus magazine. Miss Jackson was interested in sorority circles, having served as president of the active chapter of Kappa Delta sorority last year, and as a member of Delta Gamma Delta, intersorority organization.

Monroe Girls Enjoying 6-Week Outing

Five Are Honored By Election To Council

Never A Dull Moment At Camp Near Kerrville; Local Girls Assist In Annual Dinner Dance

There is never a dull moment at Waldemar, where life continues to be full of excitement for the Monroe girls who are spending six weeks at this charming camp overlooking the waters of the Guadalupe, near Kerrville, Tex. Days to remember are these days when the girls have been getting excellent instruction in their favorite land and water sports.

An honor was bestowed upon the Monroe group with the election of five of the girls to membership on the Waldemar Kampong council to serve during the first of the three periods into which the term is divided. Each girl elected to membership is given ten honor points toward her all-star award. The responsibility that accompanies this coveted honor can be entrusted only to outstanding girls who have proved themselves worthy of the trust. The girls elected were: Misses Jerry Biedenharn, Arabella Bancroft, Sara Terzia, Frances Black, and Mary Alice Mickel.

There have been dances, dinners, picnics, skating parties, horseback rides, and so many activities that the days are passing only too quickly for these young campers.

The walls of Cypress Inn, the scene of the annual Mexican dinner and dance honoring Waidemar campers and others from all sections of the state, echoed and re-echoed the merry din of laughter and gay chatter of sprightly senioritas dressed in their most colorful costumes.

The following Monroe girls, arrayed in spangles, mantillas, sequin skirts, and gay Mexican blouses, assisted in making this dinner dance one of the outstanding events of the term:

Miss Arabella Bancroft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bancroft; Misses Jerry and Jo Ann Biedenharn, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Biedenharn; Miss Frances Bennet Black, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Black; Miss Pauline Breard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Breard, Miss Ann Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Brown. Miss Mary Atkins Dixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dixon.

Miss Esther Ewing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Ewing; Miss Cleta Godfrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Godfrey; Miss Elizabeth Humble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Humble, Miss Ann Claire Humphries, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Humphries; Miss Betty Sue Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene

Miss Rhoda Kellogg, daughter of Mr. R. L. Kellogg; Miss Jane Kilpatrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Kilpatrick; Miss Marguerite Lamkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ebb Tyler Lamkin; Miss Mary Anita Lennon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hulen Lennon; Miss June Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lewis, Miss Cornelia McHenry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. McHenry.

Miss Mary Alice Mickel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Mickel; Miss Betty Sue Shotwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Shotwell; Misses Clarice and Lee Slagle, daughters of Mr and Mrs. E. C. Slagle; Miss Sara Terzia, daughter of Mrs. Theo Terzia; Miss Jessie Lee Touchstone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Touchstone; Miss Mary Helen Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Walker; and Miss Mary Frances Zeigen, daughter of Mr. G. W. Zeigen.

Miss Edna Tanner Is Wed To Rev. Ashbrook

Ceremony Is Performed Tuesday By Bride's Father, Pastor Of West Monroe Church

A wedding characterized by beauty of detail and quiet dignity was that of Miss Edna Tanner, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Tanner of West Monroe, to Rev. Lowell C. Ashbrook, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Ashbrook of Essington, Pa. The ceremony was performed Tuesday, August 12, at 5 p.m. at the Assembly of God church, with the bride's father, who is pastor of the church, officiating.

A background of bamboo vines artistically interwined with woodland ferns and white crape myrtle lent an illusion of cool green depths to the church. A large arch formed of the same vines and flowers used in the background framed the bride in exquisite loveliness. Tall floor standards holding mixed flowers completed the decorations.

A prenuptial concert was rendered with Miss Mary Grace Lawn at the piano and Mrs. James D. Cockman of Madison, Ill., sister of the bride, performing on the vibraharp. Miss Marjorie Waldon sang "I Love You Truly" and "Together."

The bridal party entered to the strains of Wagner's wedding march from "Lohengrin" played by Miss Lawn. During the ceremony a number of melodies were played, forming a soft musical background. The recessional used was Mendelssohn's.

The bride's maid-of-honor, and only attendant, was her sister, Miss Dorothy Tanner. She wore a blush rose marquisette over satin. The bodice was made on tight-fitting lines with puffed sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. Both it and the voluminous skirt were daintily trimmed with lace. Her bouquet was of pale pink asters.

Best man was the Rev. James D. Cockman of Madison, Ill., an intimate friend of the bridegroom.

The bride's gown was of white Chantilly lace over stiff slipper satin. It had a tight-fitting bodice buttoned to the waist with tiny satin-covered buttons. The neck was cut in a low V-shape. The long sleeves, puffed at the top and close-fitting at the wrists, fell in points over the wrists. The full skirt ended in a long floor train. She wore a diaphanous floor-length veil of illusion, caught to her head with a coronet of traditional orange blossoms. Her bridal bouquet was fashioned of white asters and tube roses.

A reception followed the wedding and was held at the home of the bride's parents. Lavishly arranged throughout the reception suite were mixed flowers, in colors and bouquets suggestive of a wedding.

The parents of the bride and groom welcomed guests, who were escorted into the dining room, where the bride, assisted by her bridegroom, cut the wedding cake. The cake was centered on a table covered with heirloom lace over white satin and was of tiered style, embossed in appropriate bridal fashion with lilies of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashbrook left immediately after the reception for Higginsville, Mo. For traveling, the bride wore a black and white redingote ensemble with black accessories and a white shoulder corsage.

Mrs. Ashbrook attended Northeast Junior College and is a graduate of Central Bible Institute at Springfield, Mo. Her husband also graduated from the Central Bible Institute and is at present charged with a pastorate at Higginsville, Mo.

Out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Ashbrook of Essington, Pa.; Mrs. E. H. Greene of Fort Worth, Tex.; Mrs. John Patridge, Harlingen, Tex.; Mrs. Albert Ramsey, Summerfield, La.; and Mrs. M. D. Barber, Summerfield, La.

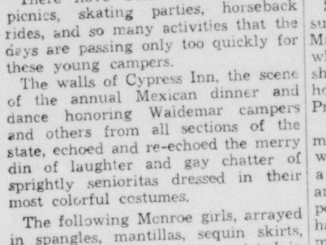

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Miss Lois Green, daughter of Mrs. John S. Green of Bastrop, whose engagement to Rev. J. Lyn Elder has been announced. The wedding will take place September 3 at the First Baptist church in Bastrop.

Of wide interest to friends throughout the state is the announcement made by Dr. and Mrs. James J. Robert of Baton Rouge, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their second daughter, Katherine Perkins, to Charles Edward Beadles of Pampa, Tex., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Beadles of Monroe.

Miss Robert, a very popular member of younger society, received her master's degree from Louisiana State university in sociology and also attended Smith college. She is a member of Chi Omega sorority, of Alpha Lambda Delta leadership group, and of Phi Gamma Mu, professional social science organization.

She is the granddaughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Agrippa Gayden of Norwood and of Dr. J. C. Robert of Centreville, Miss., and Mrs. Fannie Harris Robert.

Mr. Beadles is a graduate of Louisiana State university in civil engineering and a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. He was president of the student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers and a member of Sigma Tau Sigma, honorary engineering group. He was a member of the Y. M. C. A. council.

The wedding will take place on September 6 in a home ceremony at the Robert residence on North Boulevard, and will claim much attention throughout the state. It will be one of the most prominent weddings of next month.

Books About Home Now Available At Library

"Books about your home" is the subject of a display of books at the Ouachita Parish Public library. Included among the books are these titles:

The library wishes to thank the following persons for recent gifts of books and magazines: Mrs. Robert Parker, Mrs. Gordon Wright, Mrs. Fred Fudickar, Mrs. James Russell, Mrs. S. E. Huey, Mrs. Hathorn, Mrs. J. E. Walsworth and Mrs. Jack Rogers.

Watermelon Party Held By Altrusa Club

A meeting and watermelon party was combined when members of the Altrusa club of Monroe gathered last Thursday evening.

The meeting was held at the home of Miss Bernice McCoy, president of the club. The Altrusa club is cooperating with other organizations in the city in acting as hostesses at soldier recreation centers. A member from this particular club will be present at the center on North Fourth street each evening from 7 to 10 p.m.

Part of the business transacted by the club was a decision to change the business meeting from noon luncheon meetings to the second Thursday of each month at 7 p.m. at the Frances Hotel.

Business done, the members of the club adjourned to Bernstein park where Mrs. Elmese Brice served ice-cold watermelon to Maude Golson, Davie Goodlet, Agatha Burkett, Clydie Cox, Nell Golston, Mary Benoit, Adrienne Carr, Bernice McCoy, Hattie Taylor, Evelyn Reims and Mamie McNeill.

The Right Reverend Monsignor N. F. Vandegaer, James Pascal Norris, Harry Jordan, Joe Gebhardt and Nick Costanza motored to Shreveport to attend the profession ceremonies at St. Vincent's college there.

SHE KNOWS GOD WELL ENOUGH TO ASK HIM FOR ANYTHING!

To make her sick brother well. To send her a new doll. To give her better marks in School That's the stuff little girls' prayers are made of! Miss Emily Connell McGee And Joseph Frank O'Neal To Be Married Today

Presbyterian Church Is Scene Of Ceremony

Many Prenuptial Parties Honor Bride-To-Be Before Wedding Of Prominent Couple Here

This evening at 7 o'clock Miss Emily Connell McGee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harrington McGee, will wed Joseph Frank O'Neal, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Eldon O'Neal of Sibley, La., in one of the most socially prominent weddings of the summer. The wedding will take place at the First Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Duncan Naylor of Canton, Miss., officiating.

Miss McGee will have as her maid-of-honor her cousin, Miss Helen Harvey McGee of Jackson, Miss. Matron-of-honor will be Mrs. W. H. McGee, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., sister-in-law of the bride. Bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Alice O'Neal, of Delhi, cousin of the groom; Miss Mary Louise Fudickar, Miss Marie Tousley of Eros, La., and Miss Catherine Mullis. Little Jo Nell O'Neal of Delhi, La., cousin McGee, Sr., Mrs. W. H. McGee, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., Miss Eleanor Faulk, Miss Evelyn Baur, Miss Mary Louise Fudickar, Miss Ann Carter Johnston, Miss Mary Alice O'Neal, Miss Beth Rinehart, Miss Martha Jane Hill, Miss Anna Lee Russell, Miss Mack Faye Hammons and Miss McGee.

Typical of the several conversational hours with which Miss McGee was honored was that given by Mrs. A. V. Miller at her home. Mrs. McGee wore a white mesh frock with white accessories. Miss McGee also wore a white summer sheer made with full skirt and fitted bodice.

Predominating in the color scheme was yellow and white as reflected is the flowers and the delicately embossed cakes which were served as part of the refreshments. Other refreshments were fruit punch, canapes and confections.

Members of the wedding party and intimate friends were present.

The luncheon was held at the of the groom, will be the flower girl.

For his best man, the groom will have the bride's brother, Walter Harrington McGee, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga. Groomsmen will be Daniel Milton Moore, Jr., Benjamin Land of Ruston, William W. Trimble, Jr., and the Rev. Palmer Deloteus of New Orleans, La.

A wedding reception will be held immediately after the wedding at the Frances Hotel.

Over a hundred out-of-town guests are expected to attend the wedding which will bring to an end two weeks of prenuptial events of many kinds.

A very charming luncheon given by Mrs. C. E. Faulk in the Maple room at the Virginia Hotel was one of the courtesies extended Miss McGee in the past few days. A delicate rose and white color scheme was closely adhered to in the floral decorations as well as in various courses of the original meal.

An exquisite floral bouquet formed of pink asters and rose of Montana was placed in the center of the table with smaller replicas of it placed diagonally at each end of the table.

Both the hostess and the honoree were dressed in all white costumes. Miss McGee's was of embroidered linen with a corsage of pink asters. Mrs. Faulk's frock was a cool summer model made on tailored lines. The bride's mother, Mrs. McGee, wore a green dress with a corsage of pink asters.

Each guest presented Miss McGee with some form of "good wishes" in the form of poems, recipes and pictures. Outstanding among these was an original watercolor painting by Miss Ann Carter Johnston.

Luncheon guests were Mrs. W. H. Frances Hotel at 12:30 yesterday. A profusion of summer flowers in mixed colors decorated the table. Those present were: Miss Emily McGee, Mrs. Walter H. McGee, Sr., mother of the bride, Miss Mary Louise Fudickar, Miss Catherine Mullis, Miss Marie Gousley of Eros, La., Miss Mary Alice O'Neal of Delhi, La., Mrs. Walter H. McGee, Jr., Mrs. J. Clyde McGee of Jackson, Miss., mother of the hostess, and Miss Helen Harvey McGee.

Miss McGee and Mr. O'Neal were feted at a dinner at the Frances Hotel following the wedding rehearsal by Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. McGee, Jr., brother and sister of the bride.

Mixed multi-colored flowers were used in decorating the private dining room. Attractive place cards featuring the bride and groom motif designated the respective places of guests. The bridal note was further carried out in the novelty cakes which were daintily embossed in appropriate fashion.

Dinner guests were: Miss Emily McGee and Frank O'Neal, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Land of Ruston, La., Miss Mary Mason, Palmer Delotens of New Fudickar, Miss Helen Harvey McGee, Miss Catherine Mullis, Miss Marie Tousley, Miss Beth Rinehart, Miss Mary Mason, Palmer Deloteus of New Orleans, Dan Moore, William Trimble, Cavitt Cookston of Winnfield, La., Clifton Furlow, Burt Davis, Rev. Duncan Naylor and Mr. and Mrs. Walter McGee, Jr.

Miss Sarah Elizabeth Randle of Monroe, a student of Southern Methodist university, made the spring semester honor roll of that institution, R. L. Brewer, registrar, announced. Students who are listed on the honor roll are required to make a scholastic average of at least "B" in all subjects. Miss Randle, a junior student, is the daughter of Mrs. Verno B. Randle of 502 South Riverfront, West Monroe.

Mrs. J. M. McKee, Mrs. John Peek McKee, John Peek, Jr., and Alma Dell McKee have returned to Monroe from a visit to Bella Vista and Eureka Springs, Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McDowell and daughter, Virginia, will leave Monroe Thursday for an extended trip through the North and East, with Chicago, Detroit, Niagara Falls, New York, Washington, D. C., Chattanooga and several points in Canada included on their itinerary.

Visiting Mrs. W. J. Porter is Miss Willie Mae Porter of Longview, Tex., where she is a deaconess in the Methodist church.

Miss Athline Connell has gone to San Francisco, Calif., to spend several weeks vacationing.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Powell, Mrs. George Green, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harrison and daughter, Addye Lee, will leave today for a week in the Ozark mountains.

Friends of Mrs. A. J. McGinn will be glad to hear that she returned to her home from the hospital and is now able to receive visitors at 1701 Stuart avenue.

Quite a family reunion was held when the three sisters of Mrs. Lizzie Brownlee came to Monroe to pay her a visit. No less than 49 years have lapsed since the four sisters were last together. The visitors were Mrs. A. L. Mayes of Santa Anna, Calif., Mrs. J. L. Armour of Yokum, Texas, and Mrs. Esther Averett of Lubbock, Texas. Mrs. Brownlee makes her home with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Landrum.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McDowell and daughter, Virginia, motored to Shreveport for several days' visit. On their return trip they were accompanied by their son, Jack, who spent a few days with them before leaving for Camp Livingston.

Of interest to many friends in this section of the state is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Mary Angie Balch, daughter of Mrs. Ella Balch of Swartz, to Glenn Pace. The wedding was solemnized at the home of the Rev. I. J. Brooks, Thursday night at 9:30 p.m.

Maid of honor was an intimate friend of the bride, Miss Irene Tarver, and best man was Aubrey Mason.

The bride wore an ensemble featuring patriotic colors, with a flag red jacket, white chiffon blouse, and royal blue skirt.

Mr. Pace was formerly the assistant manager of the Paramount theater here in Monroe but has been stationed at the army arsenal at Augusta, Ga., for several months. The couple will make their home in Augusta.

Mrs. Stella Robinson recently returned from a vacation trip which included journeys through Chicago, Yellowstone National park, Salt Lake City, Utah, and Longmont, Colorado.

L. W. Shafton and children, Leslie and Kay, of McComb, Miss., are guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hammock in West Monroe.

PROMINENT BRIDE . . .

One of Monroe's most prominent summer weddings was that of Miss Mary Elizabeth Shaughnessy, daughter of Mrs. F. X. Shaughnessy, to Mr. Guilford McCleery, son of Mrs. C. G. McCleery.

Miss Horton Becomes Bride Of C. C. Salley

Home Of Mr. And Mrs. W. C. Salley In West Monroe Is Scene Of Nuptial Ceremony

Myriad burning tapers rising from banks of pastel-colored gladioli made the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Salley in West Monroe an appropriate setting for the marriage of their son, Carlton C. Salley, to Miss Johnye Agnes Horton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Horton of Sterlington, La. The double ring ceremony was performed August 3 at 4 p.m., with the Rev. L. R. Morgan officiating.

Tall white candles lent a church-like atmosphere to the room. Bouquets of gladioli in blended pastel shades were so placed as to accentuate the improvised altar before which the couple stood to repeat their marital vows. Immediately behind the altar stood a tall floor vase holding a fan-shaped arrangement of specimen gladioli.

A concert of prenuptial music was rendered by Miss Beth Rinehart and Miss Mack Faye Hammons. After Miss Rinehart's rendition of "Because," Miss Hammons played "Liebestraum" on the piano. Miss Rinehart brought the concert to a close by singing "I Love You Truly."

The bride's sole attendant was a former classmate, Miss Alice Lorraine Eunson of Sterlington. Miss Eunson wore a white organza dress with a fitted bodice trimmed with lace ruffles which were also used on the full skirt. Her corsage was of orchids.

The best man was Ross Willis of Baton Rouge, La.

After their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Salley will be at home to friends at 625 Ferdinand street, Baton Rouge.

Mrs. Salley attended Northeast Junior College and Louisiana Tech, where she was prominent in campus activities. Mr. Salley also attended Louisiana Tech, from which he graduated with an engineer's degree.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Miss Girlinghouse and Mr. Willis.

Programs For 1941-42 Outlined By P.-T. A.

Consumer Education And Citizenship Will Be Especially Emphasized During Coming Year

Consumer education and citizenship will be especially emphasized on P.-T. A. programs for the coming school year, it was announced by Mrs. Fagan Cox of Monroe, state president of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher Association.

The members of the P.-T. A. have busied themselves for the past weeks planning and outlining programs, and as a result of their labors, have a complete year's plan ready for distribution throughout the state.

The consumer education phase of the plan has been under the direction of Mrs. Cecil Brown, second vice-president and chairman of consumer education. She was assisted in her work by Dr. Clara Tucker, member of the faculty of Louisiana State university, chairman of adult education; and Dean E. B. Robert of the school of education at L. S. U., chairman of parent education.

A series of programs incorporating citizenship and the part played by the P.-T. A. in this connection have been under the supervision of Dr. Harold N. Lee, of Sophie Newcomb college, sixth vice-president.

The National Congress has outlined a suggested program which includes discussions of good homes, sound health, safety, equalized educational opportunity, conservation of human values and natural resources, vocational adjustment, constructive leisure, civic responsibility, and active spiritual faith. The state committee has been guided in planning its activities by these suggestions.

The composite parts of the program have been collected from the planning committees and compiled into unit packages by Miss Kate Perkins of Monroe, who is the program chairman. She announced that 235 of these packages were at the state office in Monroe, ready to be sent out to P.-T. A. organizations all over the state.

Mother's Friend helps bring ease and comfort to expectant mothers.

MOTHER'S FRIEND, an exquisitely prepared emollient, is useful in all conditions where a bland, mild anodyne massage medium in skin lubrication is desired. One condition in which women for more than 70 years have used it is an application for massaging the body during pregnancy . . . it helps keep the skin soft and pliable . . . thus avoiding unnecessary discomfort due to dryness and tightness. It refreshes and tones the skin. An ideal massage application for the numb, tingling or burning sensations of the skin . . . for the tired back muscles or cramp-like pains in the legs. Quickly absorbed. Delightful to use.

Miss Emily Connell McGee And Joseph Frank O'Neal To Be Married Today

Many Prenuptial Parties Honor Bride-To-Be Before Wedding Of Prominent Couple Here

This evening at 7 o'clock Miss Emily Connell McGee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harrington McGee, will wed Joseph Frank O'Neal, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Eldon O'Neal of Sibley, La., in one of the most socially prominent weddings of the summer. The wedding will take place at the First Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Duncan Naylor of Canton, Miss., officiating.

Miss McGee will have as her maid-of-honor her cousin, Miss Helen Harvey McGee of Jackson, Miss. Matron-of-honor will be Mrs. W. H. McGee, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., sister-in-law of the bride. Bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Alice O'Neal, of Delhi, cousin of the groom; Miss Mary Louise Fudickar, Miss Marie Tousley of Eros, La., and Miss Catherine Mullis. Little Jo Nell O'Neal of Delhi, La., cousin McGee, Sr., Mrs. W. H. McGee, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., Miss Eleanor Faulk, Miss Evelyn Baur, Miss Mary Louise Fudickar, Miss Ann Carter Johnston, Miss Mary Alice O'Neal, Miss Beth Rinehart, Miss Martha Jane Hill, Miss Anna Lee Russell, Miss Mack Faye Hammons and Miss McGee.

Typical of the several conversational hours with which Miss McGee was honored was that given by Mrs. A. V. Miller at her home. Mrs. McGee wore a white mesh frock with white accessories. Miss McGee also wore a white summer sheer made with full skirt and fitted bodice.

Predominating in the color scheme was yellow and white as reflected is the flowers and the delicately embossed cakes which were served as part of the refreshments. Other refreshments were fruit punch, canapes and confections.

Members of the wedding party and intimate friends were present.

Yesterday marked the end of prenuptial festivities with a bridesmaids luncheon and a post-rehearsal dinner. Hostess at the luncheon was Miss Helen Harvey McGee of Jackson, Miss., maid-of-honor.

The luncheon was held at the of the groom, will be the flower girl.

For his best man, the groom will have the bride's brother, Walter Harrington McGee, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga. Groomsmen will be Daniel Milton Moore, Jr., Benjamin Land of Ruston, William W. Trimble, Jr., and the Rev. Palmer Deloteus of New Orleans, La.

A wedding reception will be held immediately after the wedding at the Frances Hotel.

Over a hundred out-of-town guests are expected to attend the wedding which will bring to an end two weeks of prenuptial events of many kinds.

A very charming luncheon given by Mrs. C. E. Faulk in the Maple room at the Virginia Hotel was one of the courtesies extended Miss McGee in the past few days. A delicate rose and white color scheme was closely adhered to in the floral decorations as well as in various courses of the original meal.

An exquisite floral bouquet formed of pink asters and rose of Montana was placed in the center of the table with smaller replicas of it placed diagonally at each end of the table.

Both the hostess and the honoree were dressed in all white costumes. Miss McGee's was of embroidered linen with a corsage of pink asters. Mrs. Faulk's frock was a cool summer model made on tailored lines. The bride's mother, Mrs. McGee, wore a green dress with a corsage of pink asters.

Each guest presented Miss McGee with some form of "good wishes" in the form of poems, recipes and pictures. Outstanding among these was an original watercolor painting by Miss Ann Carter Johnston.

Luncheon guests were Mrs. W. H. Frances Hotel at 12:30 yesterday. A profusion of summer flowers in mixed colors decorated the table. Those present were: Miss Emily McGee, Mrs. Walter H. McGee, Sr., mother of the bride, Miss Mary Louise Fudickar, Miss Catherine Mullis, Miss Marie Gousley of Eros, La., Miss Mary Alice O'Neal of Delhi, La., Mrs. Walter H. McGee, Jr., Mrs. J. Clyde McGee of Jackson, Miss., mother of the hostess, and Miss Helen Harvey McGee.

Miss McGee and Mr. O'Neal were feted at a dinner at the Frances Hotel following the wedding rehearsal by Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. McGee, Jr., brother and sister of the bride.

Mixed multi-colored flowers were used in decorating the private dining room. Attractive place cards featuring the bride and groom motif designated the respective places of guests. The bridal note was further carried out in the novelty cakes which were daintily embossed in appropriate fashion.

Dinner guests were: Miss Emily McGee and Frank O'Neal, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Land of Ruston, La., Miss Mary Mason, Palmer Delotens of New Fudickar, Miss Helen Harvey McGee, Miss Catherine Mullis, Miss Marie Tousley, Miss Beth Rinehart, Miss Mary Mason, Palmer Deloteus of New Orleans, Dan Moore, William Trimble, Cavitt Cookston of Winnfield, La., Clifton Furlow, Burt Davis, Rev. Duncan Naylor and Mr. and Mrs. Walter McGee, Jr.

Miss Sarah Elizabeth Randle of Monroe, a student of Southern Methodist university, made the spring semester honor roll of that institution, R. L. Brewer, registrar, announced. Students who are listed on the honor roll are required to make a scholastic average of at least "B" in all subjects. Miss Randle, a junior student, is the daughter of Mrs. Verno B. Randle of 502 South Riverfront, West Monroe.

Mrs. J. M. McKee, Mrs. John Peek McKee, John Peek, Jr., and Alma Dell McKee have returned to Monroe from a visit to Bella Vista and Eureka Springs, Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McDowell and daughter, Virginia, will leave Monroe Thursday for an extended trip through the North and East, with Chicago, Detroit, Niagara Falls, New York, Washington, D. C., Chattanooga and several points in Canada included on their itinerary.

Visiting Mrs. W. J. Porter is Miss Willie Mae Porter of Longview, Tex., where she is a deaconess in the Methodist church.

Miss Athline Connell has gone to San Francisco, Calif., to spend several weeks vacationing.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Powell, Mrs. George Green, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harrison and daughter, Addye Lee, will leave today for a week in the Ozark mountains.

Friends of Mrs. A. J. McGinn will be glad to hear that she returned to her home from the hospital and is now able to receive visitors at 1701 Stuart avenue.

Quite a family reunion was held when the three sisters of Mrs. Lizzie Brownlee came to Monroe to pay her a visit. No less than 49 years have lapsed since the four sisters were last together. The visitors were Mrs. A. L. Mayes of Santa Anna, Calif., Mrs. J. L. Armour of Yokum, Texas, and Mrs. Esther Averett of Lubbock, Texas. Mrs. Brownlee makes her home with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Landrum.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McDowell and daughter, Virginia, motored to Shreveport for several days' visit. On their return trip they were accompanied by their son, Jack, who spent a few days with them before leaving for Camp Livingston.

Of interest to many friends in this section of the state is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Mary Angie Balch, daughter of Mrs. Ella Balch of Swartz, to Glenn Pace. The wedding was solemnized at the home of the Rev. I. J. Brooks, Thursday night at 9:30 p.m.

Maid of honor was an intimate friend of the bride, Miss Irene Tarver, and best man was Aubrey Mason.

The bride wore an ensemble featuring patriotic colors, with a flag red jacket, white chiffon blouse, and royal blue skirt.

Mr. Pace was formerly the assistant manager of the Paramount theater here in Monroe but has been stationed at the army arsenal at Augusta, Ga., for several months. The couple will make their home in Augusta.

Mrs. Stella Robinson recently returned from a vacation trip which included journeys through Chicago, Yellowstone National park, Salt Lake City, Utah, and Longmont, Colorado.

L. W. Shafton and children, Leslie and Kay, of McComb, Miss., are guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hammock in West Monroe.

PROMINENT BRIDE . . .

One of Monroe's most prominent summer weddings was that of Miss Mary Elizabeth Shaughnessy, daughter of Mrs. F. X. Shaughnessy, to Mr. Guilford McCleery, son of Mrs. C. G. McCleery.

Miss Horton Becomes Bride Of C. C. Salley

Home Of Mr. And Mrs. W. C. Salley In West Monroe Is Scene Of Nuptial Ceremony

Myriad burning tapers rising from banks of pastel-colored gladioli made the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Salley in West Monroe an appropriate setting for the marriage of their son, Carlton C. Salley, to Miss Johnye Agnes Horton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Horton of Sterlington, La. The double ring ceremony was performed August 3 at 4 p.m., with the Rev. L. R. Morgan officiating.

Tall white candles lent a church-like atmosphere to the room. Bouquets of gladioli in blended pastel shades were so placed as to accentuate the improvised altar before which the couple stood to repeat their marital vows. Immediately behind the altar stood a tall floor vase holding a fan-shaped arrangement of specimen gladioli.

A concert of prenuptial music was rendered by Miss Beth Rinehart and Miss Mack Faye Hammons. After Miss Rinehart's rendition of "Because," Miss Hammons played "Liebestraum" on the piano. Miss Rinehart brought the concert to a close by singing "I Love You Truly."

The bride's sole attendant was a former classmate, Miss Alice Lorraine Eunson of Sterlington. Miss Eunson wore a white organza dress with a fitted bodice trimmed with lace ruffles which were also used on the full skirt. Her corsage was of orchids.

The best man was Ross Willis of Baton Rouge, La.

The bride wore white eyelet embroidered organza over satin and a large white garden hat. She carried a small pearl-colored Bible from which hung white satin ribbons and sweetheart roses. Her corsage was of sweetheart roses to match the Bible spray. For something old, she wore a heirloom ring belonging to an intimate friend, Miss Jeanne Weatherly, and for something borrowed, she had a cross, the property of Miss Dorothy Girlinghouse of Alexandria, La.

A reception, also at the bridegroom's home, followed the wedding ceremony, with Mrs. W. C. Salley and Mrs. John R. Horton receiving guests. The bride's table was covered with lace over white satin and centered by a tiered embossed wedding cake. A miniature bride and bridegroom in full wedding regalia topped the cake, which was surrounded by low arrangements of white flowers.

After their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Salley will be at home to friends at 625 Ferdinand street, Baton Rouge.

Mrs. Salley attended Northeast Junior College and Louisiana Tech, where she was prominent in campus activities. Mr. Salley also attended Louisiana Tech, from which he graduated with an engineer's degree.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Miss Girlinghouse and Mr. Willis.

Programs For 1941-42 Outlined By P.-T. A.

Consumer Education And Citizenship Will Be Especially Emphasized During Coming Year

Consumer education and citizenship will be especially emphasized on P.-T. A. programs for the coming school year, it was announced by Mrs. Fagan Cox of Monroe, state president of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher Association.

The members of the P.-T. A. have busied themselves for the past weeks planning and outlining programs, and as a result of their labors, have a complete year's plan ready for distribution throughout the state.

The consumer education phase of the plan has been under the direction of Mrs. Cecil Brown, second vice-president and chairman of consumer education. She was assisted in her work by Dr. Clara Tucker, member of the faculty of Louisiana State university, chairman of adult education; and Dean E. B. Robert of the school of education at L. S. U., chairman of parent education.

A series of programs incorporating citizenship and the part played by the P.-T. A. in this connection have been under the supervision of Dr. Harold N. Lee, of Sophie Newcomb college, sixth vice-president.

The National Congress has outlined a suggested program which includes discussions of good homes, sound health, safety, equalized educational opportunity, conservation of human values and natural resources, vocational adjustment, constructive leisure, civic responsibility, and active spiritual faith. The state committee has been guided in planning its activities by these suggestions.

The composite parts of the program have been collected from the planning committees and compiled into unit packages by Miss Kate Perkins of Monroe, who is the program chairman. She announced that 235 of these packages were at the state office in Monroe, ready to be sent out to P.-T. A. organizations all over the state.

Monroe Housewives Quick To Offer Assistance In Entertaining Soldiers

Miss Lucyle Godwin Heads Activities Here

Many Entertainment Committees Have Been Created Under Direction Of Recreation Head

"May I have a glass of water, please?" asked the young soldier of the lady who had invited him to her home for lunch.

"Yes, certainly. I'll tell my maid to bring you one." And she prepared to call the maid.

"No, wait. (Falteringly). Could you—er—would you let me walk on back and look through your house. It's been so long since I've been in a real home. . . ."

This little episode occurred verbatim in a local home and was only one of many which have served to spur the women to action in an attempt to remedy such a state of affairs. It is largely through the efforts of public-spirited, warm-hearted women that recreation centers for soldiers have sprung up, entertainments have been planned, and people have opened their homes to the khaki-clad, homesick boys.

Acting as the spearhead of the movement is Miss Lucyle Godwin, who also serves as superintendent of recreation for the city. This bustling little woman with energy enough for one twice her size was cornered just long enough to make a few remarks about the situation.

"It's wonderful the way people are offering their aid." (Reporter's note: Five such persons came into Miss Godwin's office as she made this brief statement.)

"I only hope enough people will cooperate to invite all of the 86 soldiers who are stationed at the supply depot out for Sunday's dinner today. This group will be stationed in Monroe for the duration of maneuvers and will be the last to leave.

"We more or less look upon them as 'our boys' and want to make them feel at home while they're here.

"No fires were built, and no dinner was cooked when the 106th cavalry spent Sunday in Monroe several weeks ago," Miss Godwin continued. "Every single one of the 400 soldiers had dinner in the home of some Monroe family. I don't see why we can't duplicate that situation for only 86 boys today."

With this parting shot Miss Godwin rushed off to make arrangements for some other part of the whirlwind campaign.

Entertainment committees of every description have been appointed throughout the city. At the head of the "home guest" committee are Mrs. W. C. Oliver and Richard Troy. People wishing to have soldiers in their home for a meal or just for a visit are requested to contact one of the chairmen.

Said Mrs. Oliver in this connection. "The army feeds the boys well, but it cannot hope to provide a substitute for the family contacts vital to the morale of every soldier. It is our duty to see that they have an opportunity to mix with mothers and fathers, play with the children, and romp with the cats and dogs."

The children need no prompting to exert their natural hospitality. One of the best examples of the part they are playing was furnished by two little boys a few mornings ago. They had been for an early morning swim and on the way home from the pool fell in with two soldiers out for a stroll. Nothing would do but the youngsters must run home and get permission to bring them home to breakfast.

The mother, a natural Southern hostess, made the boys feel at home by refraining from making extra preparations for breakfast other than the ones already under way. Said the full and happy guests at the close of the meal, "We've heard about Southern waffles, but we never hoped to taste any as good as these were."

Other committees are making plans for parties and dances. Any group desiring to arrange a social gathering for soldiers may do so by contacting Mrs. Ivy Jordan, who is chairman of the party committee. Mrs. Clyde Paine and Mrs. Annie Lee West Stahl have charge of the large dances. Young girls will not be allowed to attend social functions unless they are invited and accompanied by one of the hostesses.

Fishing, golf, tennis, boating, and swimming committees are ready to see to it that the sportsmen in the army will have a chance to satisfy their craving for activity. And on the other side of the fence, the music-lovers and bookworms have been just as amply provided for.

Even the soldier who finds wielding a needle one of the most difficult parts of army life will have his worries taken care of during his stay in Monroe. All he has to do is to contact headquarters at 804 South Grand, and his mending will be magically taken care of.

The extensive plans which have been made would seem to assure the soldier of happiness while he is in this city, but it must not be forgotten that it is the little touches of hospitality on the part of individuals which will determine the success of the campaign.

It took only a little incident to make one soldier swear eternal allegiance to the city of Monroe. The person responsible was a banker, who, fortunately, was possessed of a sense of humor and an understanding nature.

The soldier in question had worked in a bank in a big northern city before his induction into the army, and, as he put it when he wandered into a bank here, "just had a hankering to see what a southern bank looked like."

As he stood gazing about, his eye happened to fall upon an envelope containing several checks addressed to a bank in that big northern city. This is the plea he put before our banker:

"You see, mister, my girl works in that bank. I met her when I was just a runner in the bank where I worked. I used to take packages just like that one over to her, and we'd always chat a while. Then when I was promoted, I used to slip notes for the new runner to deliver.

"Please, won't you let me write a note to her and put it in with those checks? I know she'll open it. Please, sir?"

And that's exactly what happened. Now one morning when his sweetheart up north opens a package from Monroe, Louisiana, she'll find a note just like the ones he wrote when he worked in the other bank.

Mere permission to write a few lines was all that was necessary to please that soldier, and it's just such small things as that which will please the rest of them.

That's what the women of this city are striving for. They are "all out for defense of soldier morale."

Monroe Housewives Quick To Offer Assistance In Entertaining Soldiers

Miss Lucyle Godwin Heads Activities Here

Many Entertainment Committees Have Been Created Under Direction Of Recreation Head

"May I have a glass of water, please?" asked the young soldier of the lady who had invited him to her home for lunch.

"Yes, certainly. I'll tell my maid to bring you one." And she prepared to call the maid.

"No, wait. (Falteringly). Could you—er—would you let me walk on back and look through your house. It's been so long since I've been in a real home. . . ."

This little episode occurred verbatim in a local home and was only one of many which have served to spur the women to action in an attempt to remedy such a state of affairs. It is largely through the efforts of public-spirited, warm-hearted women that recreation centers for soldiers have sprung up, entertainments have been planned, and people have opened their homes to the khaki-clad, homesick boys.

Acting as the spearhead of the movement is Miss Lucyle God vin, who also serves as superintendent of recreation for the city. This bustling little woman with energy enough for one twice her size was cornered just long enough to make a few remarks about the situation.

"It's wonderful the way people are offering their aid." (Reporter's note: Five such persons came into Miss Godwin's office as she made this brief statement.)

"I only hope enough people will cooperate to invite all of the 86 soldiers who are stationed at the supply depot out for Sunday's dinner today. This group will be stationed in Monroe for the duration of maneuvers and will be the last to leave.

"We more or less look upon them as 'our boys' and want to make them feel at home while they're here.

"No fires were built, and no dinner was cooked when the 106th cavalry spent Sunday in Monroe several weeks ago," Miss Godwin continued. "Every single one of the 400 soldiers had dinner in the home of some Monroe family. I don't see why we can't duplicate that situation for only 86 boys today."

With this parting shot Miss Godwin rushed off to make arrangements for some other part of the whirlwind campaign.

Entertainment committees of every description have been appointed throughout the city. At the head of the "home guest" committee are Mrs. W. C. Oliver and Richard Troy. People wishing to have soldiers in their home for a meal or just for a visit are requested to contact one of the chairmen.

Said Mrs. Oliver in this connection. "The army feeds the boys well, but it cannot hope to provide a substitute for the family contacts vital to the morale of every soldier. It is our duty to see that they have an opportunity to mix with mothers and fathers, play with the children, and romp with the cats and dogs."

The children need no prompting to exert their natural hospitality. One of the best examples of the part they are playing was furnished by two little boys a few mornings ago. They had been for an early morning swim and on the way home from the pool fell in with two soldiers out for a stroll. Nothing would do but the youngsters must run home and get permission to bring them home to breakfast.

The mother, a natural Southern hostess, made the boys feel at home by refraining from making extra preparations for breakfast other than the ones already under way. Said the full and happy guests at the close of the meal, "We've heard about Southern waffles, but we never hoped to taste any as good as these were."

Other committees are making plans for parties and dances. Any group desiring to arrange a social gathering for soldiers may do so by contacting Mrs. Ivy Jordan, who is chairman of the party committee. Mrs. Clyde Paine and Mrs. Annie Lee West Stahl have charge of the large dances. Young girls will not be allowed to attend social functions unless they are invited and accompanied by one of the hostesses.

Fishing, golf, tennis, boating, and swimming committees are ready to see to it that the sportsmen in the army will have a chance to satisfy their craving for activity. And on the other side of the fence, the music-lovers and bookworms have been just as amply provided for.

Even the soldier who finds wielding a needle one of the most difficult parts of army life will have his worries taken care of during his stay in Monroe. All he has to do is to contact headquarters at 804 South Grand, and his mending will be magically taken care of.

The extensive plans which have been made would seem to assure the soldier of happiness while he is in this city, but it must not be forgotten that it is the little touches of hospitality on the part of individuals which will determine the success of the campaign.

It took only a little incident to make one soldier swear eternal allegiance to the city of Monroe. The person responsible was a banker, who, fortunately, was possessed of a sense of humor and an understanding nature.

The soldier in question had worked in a bank in a big northern city before his induction into the army, and, as he put it when he wandered into a bank here, "just had a hankering to see what a southern bank looked like."

As he stood gazing about, his eye happened to fall upon an envelope containing several checks addressed to a bank in that big northern city. This is the plea he put before our banker:

"You see, mister, my girl works in that bank. I met her when I was just a runner in the bank where I worked. I used to take packages just like that one over to her, and we'd always chat a while. Then when I was promoted, I used to slip notes for the new runner to deliver.

"Please, won't you let me write a note to her and put it in with those checks? I know she'll open it. Please, sir?"

And that's exactly what happened. Now one morning when his sweetheart up north opens a package from Monroe, Louisiana, she'll find a note just like the ones he wrote when he worked in the other bank.

Mere permission to write a few lines was all that was necessary to please that soldier, and it's just such small things as that which will please the rest of them.

That's what the women of this city are striving for. They are "all out for defense of soldier morale."

Robinson, Dietrich, Raft Starred In 'Manpower' Here

Edward G. Robinson, Marlene Dietrich and George Raft are starred in "Manpower," opening today at the Paramount theater. Robinson and Raft love just as hard as they pack a wallop, and both are out for Marlene.

"B. I. T. D." stands for "Blossoms in the Dust," and in Technicolor. Greer Garson, pictured above with Walter Pidgeon, is featured. Felix Bressart, Marsha Hunt, Fay Holden and more than 800 youngsters ranging from 17 days to eight years of age, are featured. It fictionizes the life of a living woman. Edna Gladney, of Texas, gave the story its birth, for "Blossoms in the Dust" are "little children."

Richard Arlen, Lilli Palmer and Barry Mackay in "Silent Barriers," at the Joy today, Monday and Tuesday.

New Film Playing At . Paramount

Alan Hale And Frank McHugh Also In Stellar Cast Of Exciting Picture

FILMDOM'S most dynamic threesome are starred in Warner Bros.' exciting film, "Manpower," which makes its local bow today at the Paramount theater. The unbeatable star combination which heads the cast is Edward G. Robinson, Marlene Dietrich and George Raft.

Robinson and Raft play the roles of a couple of robust linemen whose dangerous job it is to repair broken high tension wires. They are great pals, sharing each other's happiness and trouble, until a de-lucious blonde, played by alluring Marlene Dietrich, comes along. Hard, cold and calculating, she suspects Robinson of having ulterior motives when he showers her with gifts and shows his affection in many ways. But Robinson is sincere. He has never known the love of a woman and Dietrich becomes his ideal.

Raft sees her for what she is and tells Robinson to forget about her. He says that she has gold-digger's blood in her veins and will bring nothing but trouble to Robinson. Raft goes still further. He asks Dietrich to drop Robinson. That sends her into a rage and she accepts Robinson's marriage proposal partly because she feels sorry for him and partly to spite the embittered Raft.

But a marriage built on spite and pity is bound to have disastrous results. Try as she may, Dietrich can't get used to Robinson's well-meaning, but clumsy ways. And to make things worse, she falls head-over-heels for Raft!

The pent-up emotions of those three characters run through their hearts with the power of a high-voltage cable. . . . Robinson idolizing Dietrich. . . . Raft, at first contemptuous of her, later fascinated by her confession of love for him. . . . Dietrich, nearly driven to madness with her pretended love for Robinson, having to listen to him continually praise the man she really loves. It's a situation loaded with T. N. T., and it explodes in the high-powered climax.

Alan Hale and Frank McHugh supply plenty of laughs in "Manpower" as two practical jokers who don't lose their sense of humor in the face of danger. Other players in the supporting cast are Walter Catlett, Eve Arden and Barbara Pepper.

Raoul Walsh who has directed many an action-packed film hit was in familiar territory on his "Manpower" assignment, which is an original screenplay written by two of Hollywood's most talented scenarists, who wrote the script for "Torrid Zone," Richard Macaulay and Jerry Wald.

Don Ameche whacks Oscar Levant on the head with what might be a Monroe telephone book, to the astonishment of Mary Martin. This is just one phase of the proceedings in the comedy, "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," playing the Saturday midnight show at the Paramount. "Rochester" has a holiday from Jack Benny and is appearing in this picture.

'Billy The Kid' Plays At Capitol

Robert Taylor Heads Outstanding Cast In Technicolor Western

RIDING the western ranges, Robert Taylor presents a romantic, swashbuckling figure in "Billy the Kid," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's gripping story of a western Robin Hood, coming today to the Capitol theater. Depicted in Technicolor which presents picturesque locations in the pioneer west in their full beauty, the picture is a smashing adventure tale, one of the most ambitious in many a season.

The story deals with a bandit who is engaged to help a gang who are robbing and oppressing ranchers. Because of his code never to fire on an unarmed man, The Kid befriends an English settler and comes to love his sister, who is engaged to the ranch foreman, a boyhood friend.

The bandit turns on his employers, ranges himself on the side of the ranchers, and prepares to take the law into his own hands amid numerous thrilling encounters, an escape from jail and other thrills. The dramatic climax, in which he gives his life for his friend, is one of the most thrilling episodes in western literature.

Two song hits, "Viva la Vida" and "Lazy Acres" are sung in episodes of the western adventure drama. Dramatic highlights include a great cattle stampede, gun battle between "The Kid" and cattle rustlers, the jail escape and other stirring details.

With Noah Beery, Jr., hanging around, Anita Louise and Russell Hayden don't have much chance for romance in this scene from "Two in a Taxi," featuring Dick Purcell, Fay Helm and Chick Chandler, playing Tuesday at the Capitol.

Priscilla goes wild, and there's a reason: she's just found out she inherited a million dollars in "Million Dollar Baby," and Priscilla Lane says that this is the way she would very probably act in real life, too. May Robson, Ronald Reagant and Jeffrey Lynn are co-featured. Playing Wednesday at the Capitol theater.

Corporal William Thomas Philley, United States Marine Corps, who was accepted for the marines last September at the local office, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Philley of Route 1, Oak Grove, officials of the Monroe Marine Corps recruiting office in the local postoffice building, announced yesterday.

Corporal Philley is on a 15-day vacation, after which he will return to his regular duties with the Tenth Regiment (Artillery), Second Marine Division, San Diego, Calif., and resume his regular duties. Philley received basic training at San Diego, and since his enlistment has received rapid promotion.

OFFICERS NO EXCEPTION TO THIS NAVAL SENTRY

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 16.—(Special)—Like every other naval air station, navy yard or marine base, the navy aviation base at Opa-Locka is guarded by United States marines.

Personnel of these stations are supplied passes to be exhibited to marine sentries when they leave or enter the stations.

Recently Commander Gerald Bogan, commanding officer at Opa-Locka, Mrs. Bogan, and another officer and his wife, were about to leave the station for the day. A marine sentry stopped them and asked that they produce their passes. They explained they had left them at home and tried to identify themselves. The marine sentry announced, "I don't know anyone in this automobile. You must have passes—or else!" The officers and their wives returned home and got their passes.

Out of every 100 drug addicts in the United States today, 80 are men.

WILL INAUGURATE 'WAITRESS WEEK'

"Be kind to waitress week," inaugurated at Seattle, was such a success that it will be observed nationwide. One of the 10 commandments for that week was: "Don't forget she is a lady—if you are expected to treat her as a gentleman."

Another one was: "As a customer, you are always right. But that doesn't mean the waitress is always wrong."

FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT DETAILS MADE KNOWN

While funeral arrangements for Clyde S. Brown, 45, former Monroe business man and operator of a chain of funeral homes, who was killed in New Orleans early Friday in an auto accident, were not known here Saturday more details of the accident were available. Mr. Brown was killed at 2:39 a.m. when his car, operated by William McKee, 20, of Algiers, collided with a heavy truck on a curve on Gentilly highway.

He was returning to Bogalusa, his present home, after a trip to New Orleans. As the auto swung into a curve in the highway, McKee lost control of the machine. The car became wedged under the body of the truck, driven in an opposite direction.

Brown's death was almost instantaneous. McKee received lacerations to the scalp and left arm as well as contusions of the back. He was able to leave a hospital shortly after he had received treatment and was booked on a charge of involuntary homicide pending the making of a further investigation by the district attorney.

TROUSERS AND SHIRTS ARE STOLEN FROM ROOM

Two pairs of khaki trousers and two khaki shirts were stolen from W. D. Stroud, who resides in Room 5 above the Dixie Lunch room at 609 DeSiard street, early Saturday morning, police reported yesterday.

Stroud told police that entry probably was made through a window, since his door was locked.

TANKS GET SIRENS

CAMP POLK, La., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Accoutrements on a group of new M-3 light tanks delivered to the 3rd armored (Bayou Blitz) divisions included windshield wipers for rainy weather, sirens for demoralizing the enemy with shrieking noises—and 37 mm. cannon abetted by machine guns for certain other tasks.

In the United States, there are 1,115,453 Evangelical Lutheran church members.

Alan Hale And Frank McHugh Also In Stellar Cast Of Exciting Picture

FILMDOM'S most dynamic threesome are starred in Warner Bros.' exciting film, "Manpower," which makes its local bow today at the Paramount theater. The unbeatable star combination which heads the cast is Edward G. Robinson, Marlene Dietrich and George Raft.

Robinson and Raft play the roles of a couple of robust linemen whose dangerous job it is to repair broken high tension wires. They are great pals, sharing each other's happiness and trouble, until a de-lucious blonde, played by alluring Marlene Dietrich, comes along. Hard, cold and calculating, she suspects Robinson of having ulterior motives when he showers her with gifts and shows his affection in many ways. But Robinson is sincere. He has never known the love of a woman and Dietrich becomes his ideal.

Raft sees her for what she is and tells Robinson to forget about her. He says that she has gold-digger's blood in her veins and will bring nothing but trouble to Robinson. Raft goes still further. He asks Dietrich to drop Robinson. That sends her into a rage and she accepts Robinson's marriage proposal partly because she feels sorry for him and partly to spite the embittered Raft.

But a marriage built on spite and pity is bound to have disastrous results. Try as she may, Dietrich can't get used to Robinson's well-meaning, but clumsy ways. And to make things worse, she falls head-over-heels for Raft!

The pent-up emotions of those three characters run through their hearts with the power of a high-voltage cable. . . . Robinson idolizing Dietrich. . . . Raft, at first contemptuous of her, later fascinated by her confession of love for him. . . . Dietrich, nearly driven to madness with her pretended love for Robinson, having to listen to him continually praise the man she really loves. It's a situation loaded with T. N. T., and it explodes in the high-powered climax.

Alan Hale and Frank McHugh supply plenty of laughs in "Manpower" as two practical jokers who don't lose their sense of humor in the face of danger. Other players in the supporting cast are Walter Catlett, Eve Arden and Barbara Pepper.

Raoul Walsh who has directed many an action-packed film hit was in familiar territory on his "Manpower" assignment, which is an original screenplay written by two of Hollywood's most talented scenarists, who wrote the script for "Torrid Zone," Richard Macaulay and Jerry Wald.

"B. I. T. D." stands for "Blossoms In the Dust," and in Technicolor. Greer Garson, pictured above with Walter Pidgeon, is featured. Felix Bressart, Marsha Hunt, Fay Holden and more than 800 youngsters ranging from 17 days to eight years of age, are featured. It fictionizes the life of a living woman. Edna Gladney, of Texas, gave the story its birth, for "Blossoms in the Dust" are "little children."

With Noah Beery, Jr., hanging around, Anita Louise and Russell Hayden don't have much chance for romance in this scene from "Two in a Taxi," featuring Dick Purcell, Fay Helm and Chick Chandler, playing Tuesday at the Capitol.

Priscilla goes wild, and there's a reason: she's just found out she inherited a million dollars in "Million Dollar Baby," and Priscilla Lane says that this is the way she would very probably act in real life, too. May Robson, Ronald Reagant and Jeffrey Lynn are co-featured. Playing Wednesday at the Capitol theater.

'Billy The Kid' Plays At Capitol

Robert Taylor Heads Outstanding Cast In Technicolor Western

RIDING the western ranges, Robert Taylor presents a romantic, swashbuckling figure in "Billy the Kid," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's gripping story of a western Robin Hood, coming today to the Capitol theater. Depicted in Technicolor which presents picturesque locations in the pioneer west in their full beauty, the picture is a smashing adventure tale, one of the most ambitious in many a season.

The story deals with a bandit who is engaged to help a gang who are robbing and oppressing ranchers. Because of his code never to fire on an unarmed man, The Kid befriends an English settler and comes to love his sister, who is engaged to the ranch foreman, a boyhood friend.

The bandit turns on his employers, ranges himself on the side of the ranchers, and prepares to take the law into his own hands amid numerous thrilling encounters, an escape from jail and other thrills. The dramatic climax, in which he gives his life for his friend, is one of the most thrilling episodes in western literature.

Two song hits, "Viva la Vida" and "Lazy Acres" are sung in episodes of the western adventure drama. Dramatic highlights include a great cattle stampede, gun battle between "The Kid" and cattle rustlers, the jail escape and other stirring details.

WHOLESOME HUMOR FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

MONROE, LOUISIANA, SUNDAY, AUGUST 17, 1941

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
BY HAROLD R FOSTER

Registered U. S. Patent Office

Synopsis: WHEN THE TIME COMES PRINCE VALIANT ACTS, HE SCALES THE HAREM WALL, CLIMBS TO HER BALCONY AND MAKES SUCH IMPETUOUS LOVE TO BERNICE THAT SHE IS BEWILDERED. WHEN SHE FINDS OUT THIS HANDSOME YOUNG SLAVE IS INDEED A PRINCE SHE IS SWEPT OFF HER FEET.

"I'LL GO WITH YOU." SHE WHISPERS, TREMBLIMG WITH EXCITEMENT. "HORSES WILL BE WAITING AT THE STABLES IN AN HOUR." "...AND DON'T FORGET THE 'SINGING SWORD'...OR YOUR JEWELS," VAL ADDS

THE GREAT SWORD IS TAKEN FROM ITS PLACE ON THE WALL

IN THE STABLE YARD VAL MEETS THEM. BERNICE HAS BROUGHT ALONG TWO ATTENDANTS, THEREBY INCREASING THE HAZARD OF DISCOVERY OR TREACHERY. BUT VAL DOESN'T MIND, HIS PLANS ARE COMPLETE.

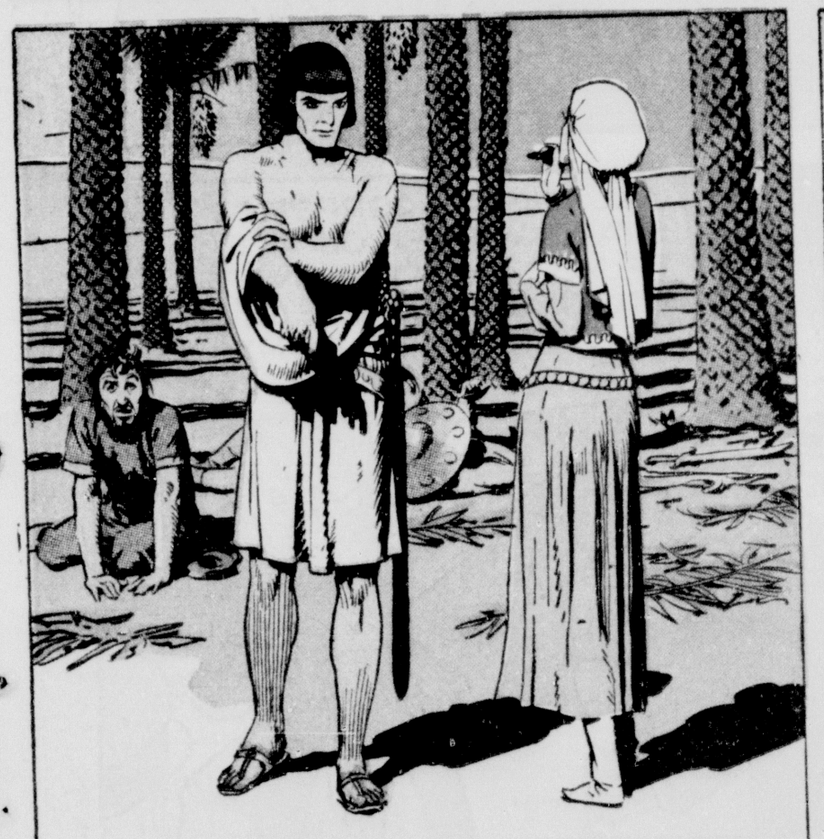

ACROSS THE DESERT TOWARD DAMASCUS THEY GO, ARRIVING AT THE FIRST OASIS AFTER SUNUP.

ONE OF THE ATTENDANTS WEARS THE HELMET AND CHAIN-MAIL THAT VAL WILL NEED IN THE FUTURE, SO HE REMOVES THE OTHER ATTENDANT TEMPORARILY, SO HE WON'T INTERFERE.

"YOUR FACE IS VERY FAMILIAR," SAYS VAL, DRAWING HIS SWORD. "YOU ARE THE ONE WHO GAVE ME THE LASH, ARE YOU NOT?" THERE WAS, BY THAT TIME, NO POSSIBILITY OF AN ANSWER!

VAL TURNS TOWARD BERNICE AND THERE IS A LOOK ON HIS FACE THAT FRIGHTENS HER. SOMEHOW THIS ELOPEMENT IS NOT TURNING OUT AS SHE EXPECTED.

"THROUGH YOU, POOR, STUPID, SILKEN LITTLE FOOL, I HAVE REGAINED MY SWORD, MY LIBERTY AND MY FORTUNE. SO I SEND YOU BACK. AND WHY HAVE I USED YOU THUS? LET THE SCARS ON MY BACK, FROM THE WHIPPING YOU ORDERED, BE YOUR ANSWER!"

FREE! FREE AGAIN! WITH THE "SINGING SWORD" ONCE MORE AT HIS SIDE AND THE HIGH ROAD TO ADVENTURE BEFORE HIM. .....HE WATCHES THE SOBBING MAID RIDE AWAY.....AND SIGHS. (HE ALSO FEELS REMORSE.)

BULL MOOSE! ARE YOU HURT?

ME, HURT? HA HA! I HARDLY GET HAIR MUSSED-

G-GOSH! HE COULD CHEW UP AN ARMY TANK! YOU'RE THE STRONGEST MAN IN THE WORLD, AREN'T YOU?

I FIGHT ANYBODY OR ANYTHING IN ANY WAY ANY PLACE, YESSIR!

COME, CHESTER- WE EXPLORE THIS PLACE SOME MORE- MAYBE WE FIND SOME MORE BIG GRASS-HOPPERS- BULL MOOSE NEED EXERCISE, NO?

SURE! I'M NOT A BIT SCARED WITH YOU HERE!

GEE- I'M THIRSTY- TOO BAD THAT WATER IS SO HOT-

ME FIX-

-THEN I TAKE OTHER KNAPSACK - MAKE A COUPLE OF HOLES IN THE BOTTOM OF IT, FILL IT WITH WATER, AND -

-HANG IT ABOVE FIRST KNAPSACK, THEN WATER DRIPS DOWN ON IT, CAUSES EVAPORATION ON OUTSIDE OF KNAPSACK - MAKES WATER INSIDE VER' COLD, NO?

AN HOUR LATER-

SEE? DIDN'T I TELL YOU? WATER NICE AND COOL NOW-

BOY-IT'S GOOD- SH-H! WHAT'S THAT?

SEE? I FILL ONE WATER-TIGHT KNAPSACK-THEN I HANG IT UP ON TREE-

I HEARD A NOISE - LIKE SOMETHING MOVING AROUND IN THOSE BUSHES!!

IS GOOD - BULL MOOSE FEEL LIKE WRESTLING SOME MORE GRASS-HOPPERS

YES- BUT LADY PLUSHBOTTOM VERY FOOLISHLY PROMISED THAT I WOULD APPEAR AT A MUSICALE HER LADIES' CLUB IS GIVING THIS AFTERNOON.

YOU WANTA GET OUT OF IT?

I WOULD.

WELL, WHY DON'TCHA WRITE A IMPORTANT TELEGRAM TO YOURSELF CALLIN' YOU AWAY, AND THEN GO TO THE GAME.

AND NOW, LADIES, THE FIRST NUMBER ON OUR PROGRAM IS A GROUP OF OLD BALLADS BY LORD PLUSHBOTTOM, LADY PLUSHBOTTOM ACCOMPANYING—

MY WORD! WHY DOESN'T THE BOY SHOW UP WITH THAT TELEGRAM?

ALL RIGHT GO ON! ONE-TWO-THREE ONE-TWO--

NUMALI'S VICTORY

UNDER A FLAG OF TRUCE NUMALI PRESENTED PAGGA RAMBA'S ULTIMATUM TO THE IBEKS.

"SURRENDER--OR YOUR KING, WHO IS OUR PRISONER, WILL BE KILLED!" WRETCHED KAMUR CALLED A COUNCIL.

SOME WANTED TO YIELD, HOPING TO REVOLT LATER.

OTHERS FELT SURRENDER NOW MEANT SLAVERY FOREVER.

PRINCE KAMUR'S HEART WAS HEAVY. AMONG THESE SIMPLE PEOPLE, DEVOTION TO PARENTS WAS STRONG.

FINALLY HE SAID SADLY: "I CANNOT LET MY FATHER DIE. WE WILL SURRENDER."

"TOMORROW YOUR MEN WILL MARCH TO THE FORT AND LAY DOWN THEIR ARMS," NUMALI COMMANDED. THEN HE LEFT.

MEANWHILE, TARZAN ASCENDED THE MOUNTAINS TO FIND KAMUR. SUDDENLY--

THE APE-MAN WHIRLED. "WHOEVER YOU BE, COME INTO THE OPEN AND FIGHT!" HE SHOUTED.

A GIANT IBEK APPEARED. "I SEEK KAMUR," TARZAN SAID. THE WARRIOR REGARDED HIM WITH SUSPICION.

"YOU'RE A SPY FROM THE FORT. YOU WANT TO KILL MY BROTHER KAMUR."

"NO--I AM TARZAN, HIS FRIEND." "NOW I KNOW YOU LIE," THE IBEK DECLARED. "KAMUR HAS TOLD ME THAT TARZAN LIVES IN THE FAR JUNGLE."

WHILE THORSON ENTERTAINS THE OFFICERS OF THE BELLIGERENT SUBMARINE IN HIS STUDY, LIL TIPTOES INTO KITTY'S ROOM—

"WELL!" SAYS KITTY, "WHAT ARE YOU DOING HERE IN THORSON'S HOME?" "I AM HERE FOR THE SAME REASON THAT YOU ARE," ANSWERS LIL—"DON'T YOU FORGET THAT MY NAME IS 'SASHA DUBROV' AND YOU'RE SUPPOSED TO BE A BEREAVED WIDOW--IF ANY OF US SLIP UP, OUR LIVES--AND JIM'S--WON'T BE WORTH A PLUGGED NICKEL!"
